48 INSTITUTIONS
HERE SHARE IN FORD GRANT OF $500,000,000Eight Colleges, 40 Hospitals in This Area
Among Recipients of Largest Gift in Charitable History.

Eight colleges and 40 hospitals in the St. Louis area will share in a $500,000,000 gift of the Ford Foundation to the nation's privately supported colleges, universities and hospitals, it was announced last night in New York City.

The gift, largest single contribution in philanthropic history, will be divided as follows:

To 615 regionally accredited, private colleges and universities, for the primary purpose of helping to increase teachers' pay—$210,000,000.

To 3500 privately supported hospitals in all 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico—$200,000,000.

To privately supported medical schools—$90,000,000.

$7,600,000 in This Area.

Institutions in the St. Louis area were designated to receive a total of almost $7,600,000. They included both schools and hospitals.

With the grants to the colleges based on 1954-55 faculty payrolls in the arts and sciences, Washington University was the largest recipient in the St. Louis area with an appropriation of $2,000,000. St. Louis University was next with a gift of $1,087,500.

Gifts to Maryville, Fontbonne and Webster colleges, all separately financed but corporate colleges under the over-all supervision of St. Louis University, brought the total allocation to the university and its three affiliated institutions to $1,505,700.

The $210,000,000 appropriation to schools was swelled by an additional $30,000,000 appropriated last March by the foundation. The smaller sum, which has not yet been distributed, will be allotted to 126 colleges as supplemental grants by reason of the fact they have "led the way in their regions in improving the status and compensation of American college teachers."

In Missouri, Lindenwood College, St. Louis and Washington universities qualified for the attainment grants which are included in the amounts allocated to the three institutions. In Illinois, Blackburn College at Carlinville; Lake Forest College, Lake Forest; Northwestern University, Evanston; The Principia, Elmhurst; Rockford College, Rockford; and University of Chicago qualified for the extra grants.

Hospital Grants.

Among the hospitals, Barnes led the list with $250,000 while Missouri Baptist was next with $209,900.

Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley of Washington University said he was deeply grateful to the Ford family and to the Foundation for this most generous gift.

"This very significant grant from the Ford Foundation to help raise faculty salaries at Washington University is a true act of education," he said. "We are deeply grateful to the Ford family and to the Foundation for this most generous gift."

"Nothing could be more encouraging than to have one of the outstanding examples of success in the American economic system provide this enormous support to the men and women who are guiding the intellectual development in furnishing the inspiration for the young people of this nation."

Officials of the university had filled out forms requested by the foundation some time ago and then forgot them, it was recalled. None had anticipated grants of this size.

The first reaction of the Very Rev. Paul C. Reiser, S.J., president of St. Louis University was: "My gosh!"

He added that the announcement was an amazing coincidence in coming on the heels of the university announcement of its expansion plans last Sunday. "The university is extremely grateful at the news of the generous assistance forthcoming from the Ford Foundation for salaries of our liberal arts faculty," Father Reiser said.

"We are grateful to the foundation because of the incentive its action will give others to identify themselves with this outstanding means of assisting higher education. They could have chosen no better area of assistance than the liberal arts teacher."

A survey of schools here affected by the grants shows that salaries for full-time faculty members vary from a low of $3,400 for some instructors with master's degrees to a high of approximately $9,500 for some full professors.

University officials have not yet had time to calculate the effect of grants on their present salary schedules. "It would be safe to assume that the average teacher will receive a salary increase of several hundred dollars from this grant," one spokesman said.

Since the grants are for en-

NEW U.S.-RED CHINA TALKS
URGED BY INDIA AND RUSSIA

They Praise Geneva Parley but Call for 'Wider Understanding' Through Meetings at Higher Levels.

NEW DELHI, Dec. 13 (UP)—India and Russia today jointly called for high-level peace talks between the United States and Communist China.

A joint declaration by Premier Nehru and Premier Bulganin praised the four-month-old Geneva talks on the ambassadorial level between the United States and Red China but urged "wider" understanding through meetings at higher levels. They "deplored" Red China's lack of membership in the United Nations and said the "legitimate rights" of Communist China to coastal islands and Formosa "should be satisfied."

Indian and Russian experts will consider "further mutually advantageous forms of economic and technical co-operation," the announcement said. The two premiers reaffirmed their belief in Nehru's principles of co-existence and ranged over most of the points of European and Asiatic tension. Much of the statement was a rehash of positions taken previously by both Nehru and the Kremlin.

Soviet Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev also signed the 700-word statement.

The two Soviet leaders are leaving India tomorrow for Afghanistan.

By the Associated Press.

Khrushchev, in a speech to a group representing the Hindi Association of the Indian Parliament, boasted of "annoying America" over the issue of Portuguese India and said he did not mind "if our remarks are disliked and resented."

"I have said that Goa (Portuguese settlement in India) must come to India, which has a rightful claim over it," he said.

"But that annoyed America—and they came out with strong support of Portuguese possession of Goa."

"I said that the Portuguese forcibly occupied Goa, that they perpetrated atrocities and cruelties over the people of Goa. They committed all sorts of thefts in that territory. They have no right to continue to maintain their hold over Goa."

Khrushchev's remarks referred to a joint statement issued in Washington by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and visiting Portuguese Foreign Minister Paulo Cunha. Dulles and Cunha referred to the "Portuguese provinces" in India and condemned speeches by Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin were making in India.

The joint statement said these speeches were designed to foment trouble between East and West.

HOTEL JEFFERSON
MAY BE SOLD TO SHERATON CHAIN

Negotiations are under way for sale of Hotel Jefferson to the Sheraton Hotel chain by the Hilton Corp., a Hilton spokesman at Los Angeles, told the Post-Dispatch today.

The statement confirmed rumors recently circulating in St. Louis hotel circles. The Hilton spokesman said New York's Hotel New Yorker, one of the world's largest hostels, also was involved in the negotiations.

The 750-room Jefferson, St. Louis' largest hotel, was bought by Hilton in 1950 for $4,050,000. In August 1954 Hilton took over the Statler chain, including Hotel Statler in St. Louis. Last April the Department of Justice charged the Hilton Corp. with anti-trust law violation and asked for a court order to force the chain to divest itself of hotels in St. Louis and other cities.

Meanwhile, the Sheraton Corp. announced last week it planned to sell its 600-room Statler Hotel here to the Fields Management Co. for $3,600,000.

ATOM CARRIER APPEARS TO BE OUT THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Navy appeared today to have failed in an effort to include a provision for building an 85,000-ton atomic powered carrier in the next budget recommendation to Congress.

The proposal, it was reported, failed to get approval from the Defense Department and budget makers.

The request for congressional authorization to start building such a super-size, superpowered ship is being held in abeyance pending further development and study of designs for atomic reactors and of the ship itself, some of these officials said.

The plan for a big atomic carrier was described in a story carried yesterday by the Norfolk (Va.) Virginian-Pilot. The newspaper said the carrier might have as many as eight atomic heat generators to develop steam for driving the carrier at high speed.

ELMER DOLAN RESIGNS FROM POLICE DEPARTMENT

Elmer Dolan, suspended St. Louis policeman who was released from prison Friday after serving a term for perjury in the Greenlee ransom inquiry, submitted his resignation to the police department today.

Dolan handed his written resignation to Maj. James Thompson, acting police inspector, when Thompson told him by appointment in the 5600 block of Delmar boulevard.

The young police officer was suspended by the Police Board shortly after the ransom inquiry began in late 1953. The suspension was made permanent the day Dolan was sentenced to two years in prison May 21, 1954, but he had remained on the rolls of the department.

Pistol on Popcorn Crunchers

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP)—David Gordon couldn't stand the crunching of three popcorn eaters in a Pasadena theater. In desperation, he pulled a pistol on the nibblers.

There was some commotion in the theater and police took Gordon to jail and revoked, at least temporarily, his permit to carry a weapon. He said he didn't pull the pistol until one

MORE EVIDENCE OF ACCOMPLICE
IN SMITH DEATHSFillmore Young Indicates Readiness to Fill Some Gaps in His Story of Killings.

Further evidence to strengthen the theory that Fillmore Young had an accomplice in the killing of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith of Lebanon, Ill., has been obtained by investigators, the St. Clair county sheriff's office told the Post-Dispatch today.

Questioning of Young, Carlisle (Ill.) Negro, was resumed by Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford Flood, who said Young has indicated he now may be ready to fill in some of the blank spaces in his original statement about how he shot the Smiths in their home Nov. 23 and disposed of the bodies in wells.

In his latest statement, Flood reported, Young said he was under the influence of a drug on the day of the killings. He prepared the drug, he said, from materials he purchased from a drug store.

An East St. Louis woman, with whom Young was reported to have been drinking the two days before the murder, was taken into custody today. She was to be brought to the sheriff's office in Belleville for questioning.

Young yesterday shattered one theory held by investigators that he could not have disposed of the bodies alone. The husky, 205-pound man removed a 600-pound concrete cover from the well where he had placed Mrs. Smith's body. It had taken four deputy sheriffs to lift the cover.

But while being questioned on the ride back to the jail, Young remarked: "Why should I put the finger on anybody else? Why should I mess up someone else's life?"

Later, after reaching the jail, he told deputies he would like to see his father, Newton Young, Carlisle poultry and egg dealer. A deputy called the father by telephone and the meeting was arranged.

Newton Young went to the jail with one of his two daughters, Mrs. Sylvia Bower of Aurora, Ill. They held an earnest conversation with Fillmore Young in private. Soon after they left he asked to see Deputy Flood and talked with Flood at some length.

Chief arguments for the second man theory were the discovery in the Smith home of a broken tooth which did not belong to Young or either of the Smiths, evidence that bullets had been fired from both .22 and .32 caliber pistols, and Young's repetitions use of the word "we" in describing actions which occurred before and after the murder.

The St. Louis police laboratory reported two bullets taken from Smith's body and one from

DIXON-YATES
GROUP SUES U.S.
FOR $3,534,778
OVER CONTRACTMississippi Valley Co.
Petition Includes
Claims of 24 Other Firms in Cancellation of Project.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—The Dixon-Yates syndicate sued the United States Government today to recover $3,534,778 in expense allegedly spent or obligated by the utility combine on its canceled contract with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The suit was filed in the United States Court of Claims by Mississippi Valley Generating Co., the corporation set up especially to build and operate the projected steam generating plant at West Memphis, Ark.

In a statement issued at the same time, Edgar H. Dixon, president of Mississippi Valley, said: "We will prosecute our rightful claims with the same vigor which characterized our efforts to fulfill our part of the contract."

The legal action stems directly from the AEC's notification to the company last Nov. 23 that the contract was not an obligation which would be recognized by the United States. That decision was based on evidence that the conflict-of-interest statutes had been violated by Adolphe H. Wenzell, New York investment banker.

Claims by 24 Other Firms.
Mississippi Valley Generating Co. claimed $571,374 "in its right." In addition, it asked for varying amounts it said had been claimed against Mississippi Valley by 24 other firms, making up the total of $3,534,778.

Largest of these subsidiary claims was $2,208,743 by Westinghouse Electric Corp. on a purchase order for three condensing plants and accessories. Ebasco Services, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Electric Bond & Share Co., claimed $589,000 for engineering, purchasing and traffic, inspection and expediting, construction management, starting and testing and other services, the suit said.

Another of the claims was for $246,193 by the New York City Board of Education for the firm of Cahill, Gordon, Reinold & Ohl for "legal services and advice." The suit today was signed by John T. Cahill, senior partner of that firm.

There also was a claim of $45,687 by the Pandick Press, Inc., of New York, for printing services.

The two public utility holding companies that jointly set up Mississippi Valley also have claims against the new corporation, the suit said. Middle Southern Utilities, Inc., of which Dixon is president, seeks $465,100. The Southern Co., with Eugene A. Yates as its board chairman, asks for $29,715.

Ordered by Eisenhower.
President Eisenhower personally directed negotiation of the controversial contract in June 1954. It was intended to feed private power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system for use at Memphis, Tenn.

Last July Mr. Eisenhower intervened again to direct its cancellation. The reason given was that Memphis had decided to build its own power plant rather than accept Dixon-Yates power.

Investigation by a special Senate Anti-Monopoly subcommittee at the same time was bringing out the facts about the role played by Wenzell. He was a senior vice president of First

DR. OTTO JOHN,
BONN OFFICIAL WHO BOLTED TO REDS, RETURNSSurrenders to West German Police — Attacked Adenauer Government After Defection Last Year.

By BRACK CURRY
BONN, Dec. 13 (AP)—Dr. Otto John, the notorious German turncoat security chief, has returned to the West.

The West German Government announced today that the defector "man of a thousand secrets," who deserted to Communist East Germany 16 months ago, had surrendered to West German security police.

German sources said he crossed into West Berlin yesterday and was flown secretly to West Germany the same afternoon. He is being questioned by the prosecutor of the West German Supreme Court.

Where he is being held and how he eluded the Communist police were not revealed. It was known here that the East Germans suspected he might be planning to flee back to the West and had put him under constant surveillance.

When Chancellor Adenauer told a meeting of his coalition government's parliamentary leaders that John was back in West Germany, they thought he was joking and roared with laughter.

East German Statement.
East Germany's official Communist government news agency ADN tonight issued a 47-word announcement of John's return.

It said:
"Dr. Otto John, former president of the Bonn Office for the Protection of the Constitution, who was granted asylum in the (East) German Democratic Republic on July 20, 1954, has left the German Democratic Republic."

"Dr. John had repeatedly stated that he intends to conduct the fight against neo-fascism in West Germany."

John bolted to the Communists on the tenth anniversary of the birth of Adolf Hitler in which he and his brother played prominent parts.

Two months before his desertion he had dined in Washington with Allen Dulles, director of the United States Central Intelligence Agency. For 10 years he had worked with the British secret service.

John had been director of West Germany's Office for Protection of the Constitution. His duties had been to expose Communist and Nazi plotters inside the Bonn republic, work directly connected not only with the security of the West German Republic but also of the 400,000 Allied troops in the country.

After he joined the Communists publicly, John charged that Adenauer's government was reviving Nazism and militarism. He said the "only forum" he could find to combat this trend was in the Communist East.

His defection to the Communists had been reported living in Potsdam, writing his memoirs and editorials for Communist publications. Eyewitnesses said he was last seen Friday in Leipzig when he was among the audience at a speech by East German Communist boss Walter Ulbricht.

John, who is now 46 years old, was a personable, talented man who had defied intrigue for years. He always had a cloak-and-dagger bent. A boy wonder who had a legal degree, he was named business trustee of Lufthansa, the Nazi government's international airline, in 1936 when he was only 27.

He had mixed with all types of individuals—princes and revolutionaries, Gestapo brutes and Red stooges, austere idealists and libertines. As an airline executive, he was supposed to be well equipped for gathering special information for the Gestapo in his trips abroad.

But he also became friendly on these trips with a German baron who had deserted the Nazi diplomatic service for British asylum, and with a Dutch double-agent who two-timed the British in favor of the Soviet Union in wartime.

When the assassination plot against Hitler failed, John's brother Hans was among those executed. Otto escaped on a Lufthansa plane to Spain and there reported to British agents top secrets of the V-weapon rocket launchers. He was reported by western intelligence officials to be masterminding a Communist plot to lure prominent West German officials to the east.

Glib and dapper, John was treated as a distinguished guest by the Soviet zone regime. Omnipresent stories about John's activities began to seep out of East Germany. He was reported by western intelligence officials to be masterminding a Communist plot to lure prominent West German officials to the east.

However, by last December John was described in the West as Otto John, unemployed. He was reported to have turned from a dazzling propaganda jewel to a white elephant. Apparently not even the Communists trusted him.

PRESIDENT SWAPS HEART NOTES WITH LYNDON JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (UP)—President Eisenhower and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson exchanged notes—and advice—today about their recent heart attacks.

Johnson suffered a coronary thrombosis July 2. The President was similarly stricken Sept. 24. They had their first chance to talk about their experiences at today's conference at the White House.

Johnson reported that the President was cordial and reiterated his often expressed interest in the Texas Senator's recovery. During a short recess in the legislative talks, Johnson said, "We talked about our conditions—when we tired and so on."

Johnson said the President "conducted the meeting well and looked well." Mr. Eisenhower, he said, "expressed the usual admonition for me not to overdo it and I replied in kind."

EARTH SATELLITE'S
MIDDLE STAGE
MOTOR ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—The United States earth satellite project moved ahead today with the award of a contract to the Aerojet General Corp. of Azusa, Calif., to build a liquid rocket motor for the second stage of the three-stage space vehicle.

The Glenn L. Martin Co., Baltimore, Md., was previously given the contract to produce the launching part of the vehicle, which will constitute the first stage of the rocket. The third stage, which will contain the satellite itself and its numerous instruments, will be developed and built by one or more manufacturers still to be selected.

The contract for the second stage of the vehicle was announced by the Navy, whose chief of research is in overall charge of developing the first known man-made satellite. The first, or launching stage of the vehicle, will consist of an improved Viking rocket for which a new and more efficient motor is now being developed by the General Electric Co.

The third stage, which will contain the satellite itself and its numerous instruments, will be developed and built by one or more manufacturers still to be selected.

Archbishop Boris's 18-Inch Beard
Trapped by Airplane Seat Strap

OTTAWA, Dec. 13 (UP)—Archbishop Boris of Russia got his beard caught in an airplane seat strap last night and it took the efforts of a passenger agent, a stewardess and two Russian aids to extricate the luxurious 18-inch whiskers.

Boris, who represents the Moscow patriarch in America and came here as a guest of the United Church of Canada, had his troubles from the moment he squeezed through the door of a DC-3 taking him to Toronto.

The archbishop weighs about 300 pounds, so he was given two seats. But that brought a problem. Seat belts are designed to go around single girths and hook on to single seats.

Someone tried to tie the two belts together but they couldn't quite meet. Then an employee found an old cargo strap. It worked and the archbishop was almost secured for the flight.

But at that moment the prelate turned his head. His flowing gray-black beard was caught—under the strap. There was an unchurchedmanlike roar and the airline people paled. The other passengers craned to see, and some, it was reported, laughed out loud.

The archbishop's two associates jumped to the rescue, and in Russian told him to take it easy while they yanked his beard free.

The archbishop kept up a running commentary in Russian. Only he and his companions knew what he was saying, but he did get the idea across, just before takeoff, that he thought the airliner wasn't the right size for someone of his stature.

EXPANDED PLAN
GIVEN TO HOUSE,
SENATE LEADERS
OF BOTH PARTIESForeign Policy Also Outlined — U.S. May Offer Increased Economic and Technical Assistance.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (UP)—President Eisenhower urged Democratic Congressional leaders today to support a national security program which was disclosed to include a military budget expanded to $35,200,000,000.

This would be an increase of $700,000,000 over military spending this year. Nearly half of the total would go to the Air Force and would include money for a stepped-up guided missile program, Congressmen said. The figures were described as not final.

Mr. Eisenhower also appealed for Democratic and Republican backing of the Administration's foreign policy program, including a $2,670,000,000 in foreign aid spending and a stepped up overseas information program. He made the plea at a two-hour and 40-minute conference with Republican and Democratic Congressional leaders on the defense and foreign policy programs the Administration will submit to Congress in January.

Conferees reported afterwards that Mr. Eisenhower said the basic objectives of the expanded military program were to avert disaster in case of attack and to retaliate immediately.

Tone Is Optimistic.
On the whole, however, the tone of the meeting was optimistic. Congressional leaders said they saw no indication of any imminent threat of war, although Mr. Eisenhower expressed disappointment over the failure of the recent Big Four foreign ministers conference at Geneva.

The estimate of $35,200,000,000 in defense spending for the fiscal year starting next July 1 was given to the conferees by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and an occasional surprise. Wilson had said last week after each cabinet meeting that defense spending would be about the same as this year—$34,500,000,000.

The expanded military budget raised new questions about the chances of any election-year tax cut. Taxes were not discussed at today's conference.

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he had been warned that military spending questions given to the conferees today were not final. He refused to discuss the figures. But he said that, "generally speaking, if they follow what they gave us, it's a good program."

PROGRAMS AIMED AT RED OFFENSIVE

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent
of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—President Eisenhower presented his 1956 foreign and defense programs to congressional leaders of both parties today and said they would be aimed at combating the new Russian economic and diplomatic offensive.

The programs, outlined in a two-hour and 40-minute conference at the White House, apparently were received favorably by Democratic Senate and House leaders, who approved a general statement on topics discussed at the bipartisan meeting.

Chairman Richard B. Russell (Dem.), Georgia, of the Senate Armed Services Committee told reporters: "I think the defense program looks fairly good."

Russell said congressional committees, with Democrats in the majority, will want to go over the Administration proposals in detail, however, before committing themselves.

Details Not Disclosed.
Details of the proposed programs were not disclosed, but the White House statement said the Administration intends to place "special emphasis on the economic aspects of foreign policy, particularly in view of the stepped-up Soviet campaign in this field in southeast Asia and the Middle East."

This was taken to mean the United States may offer increased economic and technical assistance to countries in these parts of the world, in an effort to counter the Soviet drive.

RUSSIANS FAVOR SEPARATE VOTES ON 18 APPLYING FOR U.N. SEATS

They Insist, However, on Single Resolution — Council Approves Election Plan, 8-1 — U.S. Abstains.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 13—Russia today agreed to vote separately on each of the 18 candidates for membership in the United Nations provided the Security Council would report the election of the entire package to the General Assembly in a single resolution.

Arkady A. Sobolev, argued that thus if one of the 18 did not achieve the assembly two-thirds majority, the Security Council vote would be nullified and all the other applicants would be refused entry to the world organization.

The council was deliberating for the second time the admission of the 18 candidates compelled for consideration by the Assembly to attain "the widest possible membership" for the U.N. since the "package" was jeopardized by the threat of Russian or Nationalist Chinese veto.

Russia has said it would reject 13 non-Communist applicants for membership unless five Communist states, as accepted by Russia. The United States and Belgium abstained.

The Associated Press said the Council, by an 8-to-1 vote overriding Nationalist China, approved the voting plan as accepted by Russia. The United States and Belgium abstained.

Proposal Called Illegal. Nationalist China declared it would not accept the package deal. Tingfu F. Tsiang declared all council members were well aware that it was illegal and improper.

He also said his delegation would vote against the original Soviet resolution stipulation of a one-at-a-time ballot on each candidate to insure assembly approval of each nation as the election proceeded.

Tsiang said he would not agree, either, to the proposal for separate voting on the candidates if it necessarily meant that the balloting would be in chronological order or if it prevented voting with colleagues. He said he has sponsored of republics of South Viet Nam and South Korea.

He repeated his objections to the entry of the five Communist countries, maintaining that they were Russian satellites, neither independent nor "peace-loving." He urged the council not to "surrender" to Soviet bulldozing by violating the charter.

No Mention of Veto. Although Tsiang said he would not support the "package deal" he did not say he would cast the adverse vote against the five Communist countries which would constitute a veto if they achieved the needed seven assenting votes. He pleaded with colleagues to stand up to the Soviet Union and say we will not be dictated to.

Britain will vote for all 18 applicants, although with reservations on the five Soviet-backed candidates. Sir Pierson Dixon announced. He expressed doubt that they met charter specifications limiting membership to sovereign, peace-loving states.

Dixon questioned the legality of the Soviet move to present the assembly with an unalterable list of successful candidates. He recalled the opinion of a member of the International Court of Justice, expressing the view that decisions to admit one state to the U.N. should not be dependent on the admittance of another.

He said the United Kingdom would subscribe to the resolution prescribing for separate balloting on each nominee, listing the 18 in the order of their applications for membership.

Albania, Outer Mongolia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania are the five Communist candidates for admission. Non-Communist applicants are Jordan, Ireland, Portugal, Italy, Austria, Finland, Ceylon, Nepal, Libya, Cambodia, Japan, Laos and Spain.

Promptly after the 60-nation assembly voted 52 to two asking the council to consider with favor the 18 nominees, Nationalist China filed 13 separate resolutions calling for admission of 11 of the 13 independent applicants. The Republics of South Korea and South Viet Nam, specifically excluded by the assembly resolution, were substituted in the Nationalist resolution for Nepal and Finland, which have recognized Red China.

Russia countered with a formal motion to vote chronologically on the nominees, but added the provision that the General Assembly would be summoned to ratify each successful candidate before the Security Council proceeded to the next applicant.

Albania at Top. That would make the voting order start with iron-curtained Albania and Outer Mongolia, the nation in dispute, would be second. Independents and other Communist nations would follow. If either failed of election, the Soviet veto presumably would be used on all the rest.

A joint New Zealand-Brazil resolution followed, stipulating the chronological vote, but directing completion of the election in the Security Council before the result was transmitted to the assembly. The Soviet Union then filed 18 separate

Senator Johnson Hopes President Will Be Able to Run Next Year

Senate Majority Leader LYNDON JOHNSON (left) and House Speaker SAM RAYBURN, Texas Democrats, arriving at White House today for foreign policy briefing.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 — Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, who led a delegation of Democratic congressional leaders to a conference with President Eisenhower at the White House today, hopes that the Chief Executive will have recovered sufficiently from his heart attack to head the Republican ticket in 1956.

Johnson, Senate majority leader, who suffered a heart attack five months ago, returned to the capital Sunday night from his ranch in Texas and met with Washington reporters late yesterday for the first time since July 2.

His report that his physicians had described his recovery from a heart ailment as "phenomenal," led to an inquiry as to whether he thought a man who had suffered a heart attack in 1955 should run for public office in 1956.

Johnson replied that he could not speak even for himself in reply to such a question, but he added quickly:

"I hope the President's health is such that he could be a candidate if he chooses."

Johnson was stricken about 10 weeks before President Eisenhower suffered his heart attack Sept. 24.

Though he said his recovery in the opinion of his physicians had been phenomenal, he left considerable doubt as to just what extent he will apply himself to the arduous duties of the majority leadership in the sessions beginning next Jan. 3.

He indicated that he was going to have to slow the pace he maintained following his selection for the high Senate post when the Democrats took control in the 1954 election.

He is to go to Atlanta, Ga., resolutions in the date-of-application order recommending admission of all 18 named in the assembly resolution.

The Soviet Union implied it would veto the Chinese resolution which would start the voting with Italy, Japan and Spain. Although this seemingly would be a procedural question and not subject to veto, the point was academic. It was clear that the chronological order would be preserved or the membership package would fall apart.

To find means of allaying Russian suspicions that its Communist candidates would fall short of the two-thirds Assembly approval, the 52 nations which affirmed the Assembly resolution met yesterday without reaching a satisfactory solution. Those voting against the resolution, China, and Cuba, and the five nations which abstained, United States, France, Greece, Belgium and Israel, were absent.

United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. characterized the meeting as a "star chamber proceeding." He said it was a misguided effort to solve the enigma, and that it was the kind of a tactic that would not be understood in the United States.

SYRIA ASKS U.N. TO HOLD HEARING ON BORDER CLASH

Nation's Press Assails Britain, France and U.S. for 'Leniency' to Israel.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 13 (AP)—Syria called today for a United Nations Security Council meeting to hear complaints about the newest Israeli-Syria border clashes.

Ahmed Shukairy, Syrian delegation leader, asked for the meeting in a letter.

The letter described the clashes as "a flagrant violation of the armistice... an act of aggression by Israel." It called for the meeting "as soon as possible" to consider measures to halt hostilities.

Dispatches from Damascus said there were demonstrations last night against Israel and the Syrian press voiced strong protests against the United States, Britain and France for what the newspapers called a lenient attitude that encourages Israel to commit further aggressions.

Front-page editorials in Damascus newspapers urged the Syrian government and people to double their efforts for financing large-scale armament projects since the "western pro-Israel attitude leaves no other alternative."

A dispatch from the Israeli Ein Gev settlement on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee said Syrian forces were returning to and rearming positions blown up by Israeli raiders Sunday night.

Israel has claimed 55 Syrians killed and six Israeli dead in the raid conducted along a 10-mile front to wipe out the fortifications.

United Nations truce observers confirmed 41 Syrian dead but were continuing their investigation.

PEIPING SAYS IT DOUBLED CO-OP FARMS SINCE AUGUST

TOKYO, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Peiping radio said today Red China has almost doubled the number of co-operative farms since August.

The radio, quoting the official government newspaper, the Peiping Peoples Daily, said that from Aug. 1 to Nov. 10 more than 590,000 new agricultural co-operatives of a semi-Socialist nature were set up.

China now has over 1,240,000 agricultural producer co-operatives, the broadcast added.

Asked what was likely to be the first item on the agenda when the Senate reconvenes, Johnson replied with a flash of humor:

"Prayer."

'OPEN SKY' ARMS PLAN GIVEN U.N. PRIORITY, 53 TO 5

Communist Opposed—Early Consideration Also Approved for Bulgarian Proposal.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 13—The United States, despite Soviet objection, won approval in the United Nations Political Committee yesterday for "priority" in future U.N. disarmament negotiations for President Eisenhower's "open sky" arms inspection plan.

The resolution, adopted 53 to 5, also called on the U.N. disarmament subcommittee, composed of the world's five top atomic powers, to give early consideration to the proposal by Soviet Premier Bulganin for the stationing of control groups at "strategic centers" in the United States and Russia.

Mr. Eisenhower proposed at the Geneva "summit" conference a system of guarding against surprise attack through a Soviet-American exchange of military blueprints to be verified by aerial reconnaissance.

Soviet Charges Answered. The resolution as adopted included as much of various Soviet and Indian sentiments on disarmament as its sponsors—the United States, Britain, France and Canada—felt they could accept. It sought to answer Russian charges that the West has "abandoned" all ideas of real disarmament by stating that the major powers "should continue their endeavors to reach agreement on a comprehensive disarmament plan." It also declared that "account should also be taken" of an Indian proposal for ending all nuclear weapons tests.

The negative votes were registered by Russia and the other four members of the Communist bloc.

Soviet attempts to inject into the Western resolution the main Russian views on disarmament were beaten down when they were introduced as amendments. Finally, when Russia insisted on a vote on its own resolution after the Western proposal had been adopted, the committee decided 40 to 11, with 6 abstentions, to dispense with that vote.

Lodge Jubilant. United States delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. declared after the balloting that "this has been a very great day" in the U.N.'s history.

"I believe the resolution will tend to protect the world against aggressions and to lead the way to disarmament," Lodge said, "and to bring us measurably nearer to those great goals for which this organization was founded."

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov took a different view. He said the resolution adopted was concerned only with "the collection of information" and that it "leads us astray."

The vote forecast a similar decision when the assembly takes final action in a plenary session later this week.

It was clear, however, that the basic difference in the Western and Soviet views on disarmament remains. The West insists that any disarmament plan must be protected by an adequate system of inspection and control. The Soviet continues to place a plan for immediate arms reduction and nuclear weapons prohibition ahead of the control issue.

15 MISSILE MEN QUIT LOCKHEED IN POLICY DISPUTE

Resignations Follow That of Gen. Quesada — Disagreement Over Management.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13—About 15 top scientists and research technicians in the guided missiles division of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. have resigned in a policy dispute with management, inquiry by the Post-Dispatch disclosed today.

The resignations followed within a month that of Air Force Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada (retired), who was general manager of the firm's missile systems division in nearby Burbank. Gen. Quesada joined Lockheed in 1953 after resigning from Olin Industries of East Alton.

Asked about the resignations, Paul Hibbard, acting general manager of the guided missiles division, told the Post-Dispatch: "The situation came about very simply over who should manage research projects. The men who resigned felt that only scientists could do that, and we felt that the projects could best be headed by people experienced in management."

"We couldn't convince them and that's too bad. They have a right to their views."

Hibbard said many of those who resigned recently felt that, with Gen. Quesada gone, the company would not permit the same kind of research to continue as had been in progress under his direction.

"Frankly, we told the men, after Gen. Quesada resigned, that we intended to go right ahead on our research projects," Hibbard said. "It's a funny thing. They just wouldn't believe us. It's quite a puzzle to me."

"I guess they didn't have confidence in us. We're disappointed but not dismayed. The whole division cannot depend on 15, or even 50, men."

Hibbard described those who resigned as "very fine, able people—every one of them." Those submitting resignations include Ernest Krause, director of the research division of missiles; Montgomery H. Johnson, director of the nuclear laboratory; and John Barnes, director of computers and controls.

PAYS STATE TAX IN COINS COVERED WITH GRAPHITE

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 13 (AP)—A disgruntled taxpayer made a final payment of $72.47 on his 1948 state income tax yesterday in coins—38 pounds of them, covered with graphite.

It cost Don E. Dawes of Brookings, Ore., $250 just to mail in the payment, the state tax commission said.

With the coins, mostly pennies, Dawes enclosed a note: "With the help of my children's piggy bank will get this bill paid. I'm sure you'll find it all here."

He also included a Christmas card inscribed "from Santa Claus."

Tax Commissioner Carl Chambers said he would accept the money. He assigned two employees to remove the graphite.

COUNTY HIGHWAY CHIEF ASKS THAT CUTS IN FUNDS BE RESTORED

Kiburz Tells Council Bond Issue Won't Help Resurface and Maintain Roads Except Bridges.

Approval by St. Louis county voters last month of bond proposals for highway improvements is no reason to cut the 1956 budget for road resurfacing and maintenance, County Highway Engineer Fred M. Kiburz told the County Council last night.

Kiburz said, at a public hearing on the budget, that the bonds would help only in connection with repairs to or reconstruction of a few bridges.

He appealed for restoration of his original recommendation of $1,640,000 for the highway department, cut by Supervisor Luman F. Matthews to $1,348,000. The cut included a reduction from $718,000 to $501,000 for contractual services and from $322,000 to $772,000 for salaries.

Other Appeals. Six other county department heads also appealed to the council for restoration, in full or in part, of budget cuts recommended by Matthews. The total budget he recommended was $8,214,390, which represented a cut of $2,165,218 from requests by officials and department heads.

Chief Deputy Assessor August F. Rumpung asked authority to use part of a $50,000 item in his office's budget, intended to finance a start on the reassessment program, for salary increases for 30 of the 76 employees of the office.

Assessor Phil G. Deuser had asked for $804,886, including $410,000 for a start on reassessment, but Matthews cut the $410,000 to $50,000. Rumpung said salary increases were needed to prevent loss of trained employees to private business.

Garnholz Seeks Funds. Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz, whose request for $114,650 was cut to $96,000, asked for enough of a restoration to permit hiring of two additional assistant prosecutors, an investigator and a full-time grand jury secretary.

Other officials who appeared at the hearing were Recorder of Deeds Gerald J. Donworth, County Clerk Leo E. Slevers, County Counsel Herbert C. Funke and Civil Defense Director Charles Skow.

COURT RULES MRS. HELFRICH IS NOT PARTY TO TAX RETURN

The United States tax court in Washington ruled yesterday that Mrs. Alma Helfrich, former wife of Carl Helfrich, East St. Louis coal dealer, did not join Helfrich in filing a 1947 income tax return on which the Government made a jeopardy assessment of $189,364.

Helfrich went to Mexico before he was charged with income tax evasion in 1952. He and Mrs. Helfrich were divorced in 1951. At a tax hearing here last January, Mrs. Helfrich contended she did not sign the joint tax return with Helfrich and therefore was not liable for any part of the taxes, interest and penalties sought by the Government.

The United States tax court held that Mrs. Helfrich had no intention of making a joint return and did not, in fact, file one. Mrs. Helfrich now is living in Mexico. Her former husband once was a partner in the old Hyde Park Club, a gambling establishment at Venice, Ill.

PRESIDENT GIVEN FIVE BANTAMS BY RAISERS HERE

President Eisenhower has received five bantam chickens, including one rooster and four hens—all just one-third the size of the average barnyard fowl—for his farm at Gettysburg, Pa., from Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Boern of Creve Coeur.

The Boerns, who operate the Oliz House restaurant on Craig road in Creve Coeur, received acknowledgment of their gift from Ann C. Whitman, personal secretary to Mr. Eisenhower in a letter dated Dec. 2. The letter said the birds "arrived in excellent condition and have been added to the few other chickens he (the President) has on his farm."

It was decided to send the small chickens, which Mr. and Mrs. Boern raise as a hobby, as pets for the President's grandchildren, who visit the farm frequently. The birds are very friendly, Mrs. Boern said, adding that they have given many to friends' children.

MASTER TRAFFIC PLAN INDORSED BY AUTO CLUB

Governors Say No One Municipality Alone Can Solve Problem in City and County.

A master traffic control plan for the St. Louis-St. Louis county area, advocated by the Chamber of Commerce, received the endorsement yesterday of the Automobile Club of Missouri board of governors.

"We emphatically agree," the board commented at its semi-annual meeting, "with the principle that the need for efficient traffic regulation and control is an area problem, and not one that can be solved through the efforts of any one municipality."

In another action, the board urged that top priority be given to Federal highway legislation and called on Missouri members of Congress to "devote their greatest talents" to enacting the highway program into law.

In endorsing a master traffic plan, the Automobile Club estimated that the St. Louis area was losing $20,000,000 a year in tourist trade because of traffic bottlenecks that cause visitors to avoid this section of Missouri.

"The tremendous rise in motor vehicle registrations and the formidable problems created thereby make it imperative," the statement said, "that traffic rules and regulations be formulated by those professionally and technically equipped to the job."

C. of C. Report.

The Chamber of Commerce committee report proposed a city charter provision that would take routine traffic regulation powers from the Board of Aldermen and give them to a separate commission, whose policies would be carried out by a professional traffic expert.

After pointing to need for "realistic speed limits" and co-operation among municipalities in handling traffic, the Automobile Club officials urged formation "at the earliest possible moment" of a citizen's committee to draft a city-county master traffic plan.

Matt F. Morse, president of the club, said the Missouri group's endorsement of federal aid for highways was in line with policies adopted by the American Automobile Association at its Washington meeting last September.

"The federal road program was not passed by the last session of Congress," Morse said, "and the delay in undertaking construction of the 40,000-mile interstate highway system has meant a loss for the entire nation."

BURNED BODY OF MAN FOUND IN BUILDING BEING RAZED

The burned body of an unidentified man was found at the bottom of an elevator shaft in an empty building at 819 North Fourth street yesterday. The body was found by construction firm workers who are razing the building to clear a path for the Third Street Highway, police reported.

The workers were salvaging steel from the shaft when they found the body beneath a pile of debris and timbers, police were told.

A fire occurred in the building last Nov. 20, police said, and it is believed the man was in the building at the time and possibly fell down the shaft while trying to escape the blaze.

SURVEY OF CITY'S AIR TRANSPORT NEEDS APPROVED

C. of C. Study to Bolster St. Louis Demands to CAB for Improved Service.

A $3000 survey of St. Louis air transport needs, to bolster the city's demands before the Civil Aeronautics Board for improved service, has been approved by the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday following a joint meeting between members of the chamber's Air Board and the Municipal Airport Commission.

Milton M. Kinsey, Air Board chairman, said the survey would be made by a firm of consultants, not yet selected.

Questionnaires already have been prepared for circulation among area business firms, seeking information on industrial needs for air transportation. Hotels and other agencies also will be queried and the replies turned over to the consultants for use in the survey.

Survey Welcomed.

Director of Public Utilities Conway Briscoe, who is chairman of the airport commission, said the commission welcomed the survey. He pointed out that up to now the commission has been busy with physical development of Lambert-St. Louis Field, including the new $4,000,000 terminal building, and that it is time to press for better passenger service at the field.

He pointed out that improved airline service to and from St. Louis was made last month when a delegation of city officials and Chamber of Commerce representatives conferred with CAB members in Washington.

The delegation was told that some improvements in service were under consideration, and Lee K. Mathews, Chamber of Commerce transportation commissioner, submitted a memorandum to CAB outlining the city's needs.

Also discussed at yesterday's meeting were what to do with Columbia Bottoms, acquired by the city some years ago for proposed use as an airport, and problems connected with use of Lambert-St. Louis Field by the military services.

She Knocked Him Down

MRS. DONALD STANLEY

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer. JOHN DOOLAN

THIEF FLOORED BY WOMAN CLERK

She Catches Him Rifling Purse — He Admits Other Thefts.

John Doolan, arrested yesterday after an alert clerk in a woman's dress shop on Grand boulevard found him stealing from an employee's purse, has admitted 15 similar thefts in the last two months in which he posed as a telephone repairman, police announced.

The clerk, Mrs. Donald Stanley, knocked Doolan down with a blow of her hand, then ran after him screaming "Stop, thief!" as he fled from the Smart Shop, 329 North Grand.

Her cries were heard by two detectives, James Raymond and Andrew Ritter, who were driving nearby. They chased Doolan west in an alley between Lindell boulevard and Olive street. He finally stopped when they drew revolvers.

Doolan, a filling station attendant living at 936 Hamilton boulevard appeared at the Smart Shop late yesterday and said he was a telephone repairman assigned to check a disturbance on the line. He went to a back room, where employees of the store keep their coats and handbags.

Mrs. Stanley, who lives at 700 Union boulevard, became suspicious of his activities and, investigating, found him taking a billfold containing $16 from another employee's purse.

"When I saw what he was doing I knocked him down with my hand," Mrs. Stanley said. "He got up and pushed me away. I ran after him screaming."

NO MORE HUNTING IN BERKELEY, LAW MADE UP TO DATE

An old ordinance which had permitted residents of Berkeley to discharge firearms as long as the bullet did not pass beyond their own property was brought up to date last night by the board of aldermen.

The ordinance now prohibits the carrying or discharge of firearms by anyone except officers of the law.

Mayor Thomas C. Boyle explained that at the time the original ordinance was passed in 1937 there were 100-acre farms in Berkeley, and the law was approved so that residents might hunt on their own property.

He added that Berkeley is now a community of one-half-acre and one-acre lots. "The ordinance has been revised to meet the needs of a suburban community," he said.

MOTORIST FINED $150 ON TWO TRAFFIC CHARGES

Edward Foster, of the 1400 block of South Vandeventer avenue, was fined $150 yesterday by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd on charges of careless driving and driving when intoxicated. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Police said Foster was driving an automobile that struck two parked cars in the 4100 block of Clayton avenue Dec. 9.

Foster, 27 years old, pleaded not guilty but admitted he had had about 10 bottles of beer in the period preceding his arrest.

ing but he broke away and ran down the street.

Doolan, 30 years old, told police he served 18 months in a Canadian reformatory for housebreaking. He has lived here since September.

U.S. TAX SCANDALS GRAND JURY RECESSES

Returns 3 Indictments Not Connected With Tax Investigation.

The federal grand jury which has been investigating tax scandals in the Truman Administration adjourned today, subject to recall, after returning three indictments in criminal cases not connected with the tax inquiry.

United States Attorney Harry Richards said his office would have no matters to present to the jury until after Jan. 1, but he told reporters that Wyllis Newcomb, head of a Justice Department team handling the tax investigation, might want the grand jury back before the end of the year.

In one of the indictments returned today, Sherman A. Gendron, former taxicab driver and automobile salesman who has been living in the 4100 block of Russell boulevard, was charged in three counts with taking a 22-year-old waitress from St. Louis to Quincy and Centralia, Ill., for purposes of prostitution. Gendron's home is in Moline, Ill. Two indictments were suppressed pending arrest of defendants.

17 AUTO DEATHS CHECKED BY PATROL UNIT IN MONTH

A total of 17 fatal automobile accidents and 197 automobile injury cases were investigated last month by Troop C of the Missouri State Highway Patrol. The troop, with headquarters at Kirkwood, covers a 10-county area in the east-central portion of the state.

Total property losses resulting from the accidents were estimated at $175,747. The statistics do not include municipalities of more than 10,000 persons.

In 1954 the death total was 138 as of Dec. 1. This year the figure was 131 by the same date.

HUGE FORD GRANT

downed funds for an initial 10-year period, each school will annually receive approximately 5 per cent of the total grant for annual expenditure for teachers' salaries.

One high-placed university official said investment in preferred and common stocks could increase the rate of return from the grant, but that 5 per cent was a figure that could be relied upon.

Thus, a 5 per cent return from the $2,009,800 grant to Washington University would give the school an additional $100,490 annually to apply to higher teachers' salaries.

St. Louis University said it was not able to determine individual salary increases for 100 lay persons on the full-time faculty in its College of Arts and Sciences. The university spokesman said last year salaries ranged from $3600 for some instructors to $9225 for some full professors. Average full-time faculty salary was $5500.

Range at Washington U.
At Washington University it was learned salaries range from $3900 to approximately $9500. An inexperienced faculty member with a Ph. D. degree, the result of at least seven years' university study, receives approximately $4500, an informed source said.

An official of The Principia College, Elmhurst, Ill., said salaries for its 42 full-time faculty members range from $3600 for an instructor with a master's degree to $5000 to $6500 for full professors.

Lindenwood College reported its salary scale for faculty members ranges from $3400 for an instructor with a master's degree to full professor salaries from $4000 to $5650. An inexperienced teacher with a Ph. D. begins at approximately $4000.

The majority of faculty members at Fontbonne College are in religious orders. Lay persons on the faculty have salaries ranging from $3500 for instructors to $4500 for full professors.

Blackburn College does not have different ranks for faculty members. Salaries for the teachers vary from $3500 for an instructor with a bachelor's or master's degree to $5200. An experienced teacher with a Ph. D. begins at $4200 to $4500.

Officials at Maryville College were not available for questioning on salaries. Webster College said its policy prevented it from releasing information on salaries of lay faculty members.

Washington and St. Louis universities were among 36 such institutions receiving more than $1,000,000. The largest gift and the maximum permissible under the recommendation of the advisory committee that devised the method of distribution was $2,000,000 which went to New York University.

Other large gifts went to Harvard University, $4,510,000; University of Chicago, $4,324,200; and Yale University, $4,000,900.

How Gifts Will Be Paid.
At least one-half of each grant is to be paid next July 1 and the remainder a year later. The college grants were given in the form of 10-year endowments. During that period, the interest earned on the principal is to be used solely for increasing teachers' salaries. At the expiration of the 10-year period, the college may use the money as it sees fit.

It was estimated that if the income were distributed across-the-board to all faculty members, it would permit a 4 per cent salary rise for every teacher in the liberal arts program of each privately supported four-year college in the nation. In the 126 institutions receiving the additional gift for their efforts at raising salaries, the increase would be about 6 per cent. However, there is no requirement that equal increases be given all teachers. Furthermore, the "bonus" grant may be used for other than salary purposes.

The hospital grants are for improvement and expansion of service to the public and are not to be used for operating expense, the foundation's statement said.

Programs suggested as acceptable for these funds include improvement of or addition to facilities or services, additions to or training of personnel and conducting of research.

The list of hospitals announced was believed to include all those meeting the qualifications set out by the advisory committee for the gifts. Final determination of eligible hospitals and the exact amount of each grant will be made by the foundation.

Medical Schools Not Listed.
Medical schools eligible for grants from the $90,000,000 appropriated by the foundation to help them strengthen their institutions were not announced. The foundation statement said that allocations to individual schools will be determined by the foundation trustees after they have studied a report to be made by an as yet unnamed advisory group.

Announcement of the gifts to local institutions was greeted with expressions of gratitude. At Fontbonne College, Sister Susanne Marie Vachon C.S.J. said: "We are very happy because we are trying to set up an endowment to raise teachers' salaries. This grant will start the endowment fund. I feel like a little girl with a birthday present. We were just praying we would get some help to raise our salaries. Now we can work for a salary."

Sister Mariella S.L., president of Webster College, said: "I haven't had time to feel rich yet." She said the grant for salaries will supplement college development plans now being drawn up.

At Maryville College, Sister Lucille Walsh S.C.J., head of the community, expressing gratitude for the gift, said it would be co-ordinated with plans now being developed.

Startled and Happy.
President Franc L. McCluer of Lindenwood College at St. Charles said he was both startled and happy at the news.

"College presidents are the happiest group of people in the country this morning," he said. He added that he was especially pleased by the fact the grant underwrites the over-all liberal arts program rather than favoring just a few schools.

Sister Anne, administrator of St. Vincent's Hospital in Pagedale, said no decision on how the money would be spent would be made until further word is received from the foundation.

In any event, the drive for a building fund will continue, she said. One of the projects is construction of the Laboure Clinic in which 87 beds would be made available for short-term psychiatric care.

Sister Mary Alice D.C., administrator of DePaul Hospital, said the hospital had outgrown its X-ray laboratory, surgery and record department facilities and that they would have top priority in the allocation of the grant.

'Upside Down' Map.
NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Esso Standard Oil Co. has come up with a new "upside down" map for motorists traveling to Florida. Many drivers like to have their maps pointed in the direction they are going. When driving south, however, this makes the names upside down. The new map fixes this.

TURNCOAT P.O.W.
RETURNS FROM

now was going home for "personal reasons and not because of possible repercussions."

Tennessee insisted the departure of the three other American turncoats last July had "nothing to do" with his decision to come home. The other three are William A. Cowart of Dalton, Ga.; Otho G. Bell, Hillsboro, Miss.; and Olympia, Wash.; and Lewis W. Griggs, Jacksonville, Tex. One American turncoat died in China and the other 16 still are there.

Tennessee first said he "had not thought of the prospects of facing a military court-martial," that his only present plans are to spend Christmas with his mother, Mrs. Portia Howe.

Other Three Freed.
All 21 turncoats were given dishonorable discharges in January 1954 after their decision to go to China. When Cowart, Bell and Griggs reached the United States the Army arrested them on charges of betraying their government.

But the United States Supreme Court ruled last month that persons now civilians cannot be tried by courts-martial for offenses allegedly committed while in service. After the ruling the Army released the turncoat three. The Government has not indicated whether it will seek to try them in a civil court.

Tennessee probably will leave for home Thursday by plane, using a ticket arranged by his mother. He was admitted to Hong Kong as an illegal immigrant.

Mrs. Howe, at her farm near Alden, said she was "very thankful" her son had reached Hong Kong. She said she would meet him in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Howe flew to Tokyo late in 1953 in the hope of persuading her son to come home. The Army, however, would not let her go to Korea to see him.

Boston Corp., who worked as a part time consultant to the Bureau of the Budget on TV-A financing, and later on the Dixon-Yates deal. First Boston eventually helped arrange $120,000,000 in financing for the project as agent for Dixon-Yates.

The suit is expected to bring out additional details on how and why Wenzell came to be employed by the Budget Bureau, since the case turns on the conflict-of-interest charge.

Anderson's Comment.
Commenting on the suit, Senator Anderson (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, said Congress should employ a special attorney to develop the Government and to investigate possible violations of the conflict-of-interest statute.

"No milk toast defense will satisfy those of us who have had to battle this piece of inequity for the last 18 months," Anderson said. "Nothing but the most stubborn defense to the Dixon-Yates claims with no holds barred will ever give the American people justice."

He said the office of the Attorney General which would normally defend the Government "has been part of the negotiations looking toward paying Dixon-Yates money."

He added that "every possible shred of evidence should be introduced not only to show the Government's lack of liability but also to develop the basis for counterclaims and criminal prosecution if any are guilty of violation of the conflict of interest statute."

"This case must not be in charge of anyone who wishes to keep down evidence of wrongdoing."

that of his wife were fired from Young's 22-caliber pistol. Two fragments found were too small for a conclusive test.

St. Clair county authorities said, however, that they had found bullet holes in the Smith home which apparently were made by a heavier weapon. Smith did not own a pistol.

Questioning of a Carlyle merchant from whom Young purchased new clothes after disposing of the blood-stained garments he wore the night of the killing failed to add anything to the investigation. An associate who was with Young the day before the killing was released after questioning.

State's Attorney Richard T. Carter revealed yesterday that he and Flood had taken Young to the Smith home Saturday. Without staging a re-enactment, they discussed the crime with the prisoner, but little was added to what already was known, Carter said.

Young has asked to see an attorney and Carter was expected to request appointment of a public defender by a circuit judge today. Young also has indicated he may submit to a lie detector test. Previously he has refused to do this.

The disappearance of Smith, a carpenter, and his wife was discovered about a day after they were killed. The mystery was not cleared up until Young's arrest last Thursday night. Clinton county authorities became suspicious of him when a bloody towel, which belonged to the Smiths, was found near where Young's automobile became mired in mud the morning of Nov. 28.

HAVE TEA FOR
URUGUAY CHIEF

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (UP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower entertained at a formal social affair yesterday for the first time since the Chief Executive's illness.

They had tea for President Luis Batlle Berres of Uruguay and his wife.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and Mrs. Dulles greeted the Uruguayan on the ground floor of the White House in the old diplomatic reception room. Mr. Eisenhower was in excellent spirits and joked with his visitors as they posed for photographs.

As the photographers instructed the two Presidents for the third or fourth time to shake hands again, Mr. Eisenhower waved toward the cameramen and remarked to Batlle Berres, "The Dictators."

U.S. PLANE CRASHES IN MOROCCO, 8 DEAD

Air Force Transport Rams Mountain Peak—No Survivors.

TETUAN, Spanish Morocco, Dec. 13 (AP)—Spanish border guards today said all eight airmen aboard a United States military transport plane were killed when the craft hit a 5000-foot peak in the Rif mountains. The four-engine C-54 of the United States Air Force's 1700th Air Transport Group, based at Kelly Field, Tex., crashed Sunday night in the Gomora district, near the border between French and Spanish Morocco. Flying from Wheelus Field in Tripoli to Casablanca, it was believed to have been en route to the United States. Spanish authorities reported the accident to Air Force officials at Rabat, French Morocco, yesterday. The eight bodies were being sent to the Sidi Slimane air base near Rabat, French Morocco. The United States Seventeenth Air Force in French Morocco rushed air rescue helicopters to the crash scene. Legation officials in French Morocco accompanied the airmen to investigate the crash. Moroccan frontier guards at the nearby village of Kelama said they heard "a terrible explosion" just a few seconds after the plane had passed overhead. After hurrying to the scene, one guard made this report: "When we got there, the remains of the plane were still burning, and nothing could be done for the men, scattered about 50 yards from the wreckage." Spanish technicians who examined the wreckage said the plane's altimeter must have been out of order. Authorities at Sidi Slimane said the C-54's pilot had radioed about 15 minutes before the crash that he was flying at 10,000 feet near Gibraltar, 75 miles north of the frontier between French and Spanish Morocco.

ALGERIAN REBELS AMBUSH CONVOY, KILL 16 SOLDIERS

ALGIERS, Dec. 13 (UP)—French authorities announced today that a band of 60 rebels ambushed a French military convoy Monday afternoon, killing at least 16 soldiers. The convoy was halted by a truck and a bus, seized by the rebels earlier, which were used to block the road. The rebels attacked with grenades and automatic weapons fire. A French school teacher was strangled in Tunis and in Casablanca, two Moslems were found in a gutter with their throats cut.

STEVENSON DECRIES SECURITY EXCESSES

Many Innocent Citizens
Grievously Injured,
He Says.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP)—
Admiral E. Stevenson said yesterday that many innocent citizens have been "grievously injured" by the Government in its enforcement of security measures. "The excesses that we have endured," he said, "are not necessary in order to keep dangerous people out of Government, or because we have bold demagogues and timid servants within."

Speaking before the Chicago Women's division of the American Jewish Congress, the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination declared:

"An America, at the height of its power, influence and wealth, which is anxious and suspicious of a large segment of its citizens is a sorry sight. And for its Government to appear to be the persecutor rather than the defender of the innocent is revolting."

He predicted that "the pendulum of passion will swing back and it will be corrected, I have no doubt, but none too soon."

He said the "passionate differences of men and nations will harass us for the foreseeable future. But if the truths that will heal and bind us together are ever to emerge, there must be confidence in ourselves and in our faith in freedom, and there must be a free trade of ideas within the nation and among nations."

"That is why," he added, "the preservation of the guarantees of our bill of rights must have a high priority in the personal history of any true Democrat. If my labors have helped to make firm our liberties, I am grateful."

Stevenson received an award at the meeting for "furtherance of constitutional principles," and "for championing civil liberties and civil rights."

SOIL BANK PLAN URGED BY HEAD OF FARM BUREAU

Shuman Proposes Device as Part of Flexible Price Support Program for Growers.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP)—The head of the nation's largest farm organization today called for a soil bank plan that would be part of the flexible farm price support program.

Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, made the suggestion at the federation's annual meeting.

The soil bank idea has been proposed as a means to help solve the present problem of increasing surpluses and declining prices of farm products.

The "bank" device would take land out of production for the market and put it into soil building crops.

The "banked" acres — those taken out of cash crop production — would be rented by the Government. One feature considered at the meeting would be to make the rental payments in surplus commodities instead of cash.

Shuman, in a prepared speech, said the "soil bank" plan could make the surplus situation worse "if it merely proves to be a means of pumping more federal money into our agricultural plant." He added:

"Neither this nor any other acreage adjustment plan can be effective in shrinking our over-expanded agricultural plant unless it is accompanied by a gradual adjustment in price support from a price-fixing device to a price-supporting mechanism."

"The soil bank program should be a part of the flexible price support program rather than a substitute for it."

Delegates representing 1,823,222 farm families are expected to reaffirm the federation's endorsement of the flexible farm price support system. They also are expected to act on a "soil bank" proposal at a resolutions session Thursday.

The flexible price support program, backed by the Eisenhower Administration, went into effect with this year's crops. Under the Truman Administration support prices were at a fixed level of 90 per cent of parity.

Shuman said a return to high, rigid supports, "whether at 90 per cent of parity or some other level, would be a major disaster."

Proposes 7 Steps.
Shuman also proposed seven steps toward high farm income. They were:

- "1. Orderly shrinkage in the agricultural production plant to balance farm production with demand.
- "2. Elimination of price-fixing of agricultural products.
- "3. Elimination of Government-held surplus stocks of farm commodities by stopping the flow into the surplus stockpile and continuing present surplus disposal programs.
- "4. Continued efforts to expand sales of farm products in this country and abroad.
- "5. Increasing competition in the pricing of the products which farmers buy.

"6. Reducing the costs of marketing and distribution of farm products through improved efficiency and greater competition.
"7. A greatly increased program of research."

10-YEAR TEST INDICATES VALUE OF FLUORIDATION

58 Pct. Less Child Tooth Decay in Town That Used It—No Harmful Effects.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—A New York health official says a 10-year comparison test in two New York communities showed that fluoridation of drinking water helps reduce tooth decay and loss in children without causing any physical harm.

Results of the test were made public last night by Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, New York state health commissioner, who termed fluoridation "safe and effective."

Such fluoridation means adding one part of sodium fluoride to drinking water for every million parts of water. It has been a controversial subject in health and scientific circles.

The findings were based on the Newburgh-Kingston study. The town of Newburgh, N.Y., 10 years ago began adding sodium fluoride to its public water while nearby Kingston did not. The towns have a population of some 30,000 each.

A similar test conducted in the town of Brantford in Canada also showed that fluoridation of water appears harmless and beneficial. Report on the study was issued yesterday by Health Minister MacInnon Phillips, who said, however, that maximum concentration should not be higher than 1.5 parts of sodium fluoride to 1,000,000 parts of water.

At a conference of the New York Institute of Clinical Oral Pathology here last night, Hilleboe and other health experts gave the following highlights of the New York test:

Children in Newburgh 6 to 9 years old have 58 per cent less tooth decay and missing teeth than youngsters in the same age group in Kingston.

The 10 to 12 age group in Newburgh has 52 to 53 per cent less decay while children aged 13 to 14 show 48 per cent. Sixteen-year-olds in Newburgh, whose first permanent molars were coming in when fluoridation began, have 41 per cent less tooth decay than their Kingston counterparts.

HARRIMAN TALKS WITH SENATORS ON NEW YORK BILLS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (UP)—Gov. Averell Harriman of New York said today he discussed "legislative problems" with two Senate Democratic leaders here last night.

Harriman side-stepped a reporter's question whether his private talk with Senate leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas and Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming also touched on 1956 politics and Harriman's prospects as a presidential candidate.

"We had a general discussion," he said. "Primarily, we talked about next year's legislative program as it affects New York state."

Harriman, who left here today to return to Albany, N.Y., said he received "encouragement" from Johnson and O'Mahoney that Congress will schedule "early action" on two bills in which New York is particularly interested. These are a

ANOTHER JAPANESE MAJOR WAR CRIMINAL RELEASED

TOKYO, Dec. 13 (AP)—Naoaki Hoshino, convicted by an international military court as one of Japan's 25 major war criminals and sentenced to life imprisonment, was freed from Sugamo prison today after having served 10 years.

Hoshino was chief secretary of the wartime Tojo cabinet and general affairs chief of the former Manchukuo (Manchuria) puppet government.

Twenty-one other Class A war criminals have been paroled or died since the war.

Two more will be released Friday. They are the former Marquis Koichi Kido, wartime lord keeper of the privy seal, and Hiroshi Oshima, wartime ambassador to Nazi Germany.

CHANDLER PLEDGES REGIME WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 13 (AP)—Albert Benjamin (Happy) Chandler today promised Kentucky a state-government administration worthy of confidence and respect.

The former baseball commissioner, who staged a remarkable political comeback to win the governorship again—after a lapse of 20 years—called for co-operation and assistance in achieving his aim of good government.

His greatest possession, he said in his prepared inauguration address, is the "confidence reposed in me" by Kentuckians. He was elected Nov. 8 to the office he held in 1935-39 by the largest margin of any Kentucky Governor's election—128,976—over Republican Edwin R. Denney.

Pickpocket Killed on Job.
TOKYO, Dec. 13 (AP)—Ken Yashida, called the Japanese "king of the railway pickpocket," died on the job. Police spotted him on the Hiroshima Express and gave chase. He clambered to the roof of a car to escape. A low overhead bridge got him. His wallet contained about $50. He was 37 years old.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Dec. 13 (AP)—Olympia's fire department got a call from out of town yesterday saying a fire was en route to the station. A few minutes later the blaze—in a furniture-laden truck—arrived.

EDEN CALLS ARAB ISRAEL DISPUTE FULL OF DANGER

He Says Arms Are Coming Into Middle East From All Parts Of The World.

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Prime Minister Eden said last night the Arab-Israeli dispute was charged with "the utmost danger." He said the United States and Britain were agreed on the urgency of working for a settlement.

Eden spoke in a parliamentary debate on the Middle East. He diverted briefly to hit back at accusations hurled at Britain by Communist leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Bulganin during their Asian tour. He said the accusations were fantastic.

"While we are ready at all times for discussion (with the Russians)," Eden said, "abuse of our friends only strengthens our loyalties and abuse of ourselves only strengthens our determination."

Cheers rang through the House. Eden reaffirmed Britain's adherence to the 1950 pact with France and the United States aimed at keeping peace in the Middle East. He continued:

"We are ready to carry out jointly with our allies any action necessary to assist Israel if she were attacked, or assist an Arab country if attacked by Israel."

More Urgent Than Ever. Referring to the Arab-Israeli dispute, Eden said "I believe a settlement is essential and the need for a settlement more urgent than ever in the interests of both parties."

He defended a recent speech in which he advocated a compromise between Israel and Egypt as the only way to peace. Israelis have regarded the speech as meaning they should give up some territory won after the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

"What I was trying to do was make both sides of this dispute realize they could not go on as they are at this very hour, with danger of war increasing, and that they must turn their minds to peace," Eden said.

Arms From All Over World. Eden gave a new slant on the Middle East arms problem. He scorned any idea that arms went into the Middle East only from Britain, France, the United States and "perhaps Russia."

"That is not so," he said. "They are coming from all parts of the world to Israel and the Arab states and on a very large scale."

He said Britain has done its best to keep a balance of arms strength between the opposing groups.

The West has made a number of approaches to Russia, but the replies, "to put it mildly, have not been encouraging," he said.

UNION SAYS WESTINGHOUSE BOMBED OFFICIAL'S AUTO

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 13 (UP)—The International Union of Electrical Workers charged today that Westinghouse Electric Corp. was responsible for the dynamiting of a union official's automobile "which could have resulted in the murder of a carload" of company employees.

The explosion destroyed a car owned by Charles Clark, president of IUE Local 746, who was presiding at a union meeting yesterday when the incident occurred. The blast took place in the union's parking lot at Columbus. There were no injuries.

IUE Secretary-Treasurer Al Hartnett also accused the company of importing strike-breakers to start back-to-work movements.

John K. Hodnett, Westinghouse vice president and general manager, denied the charges. He said the firm has offered a $5000 reward for information leading to the arrest of those responsible for the bombing.

Westinghouse and union negotiators resumed talks here today in an effort to end the nine-week strike.

WOMAN WHO KILLED MATE IS FREED BY GRAND JURY

KINGSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Sunny Canales Worden was freed yesterday after a county grand jury refused to indict her on charges of murdering her husband on Padre Island in October.

The body of her husband, Don Worden, San Antonio real estate man, was found Oct. 29 in a shallow grave on Padre Island, just off the Texas coast near here. Mrs. Worden several days later told Texas Rangers she killed him and buried his body after he had made her dig a grave and said he was going to force her to kill her 5-year-old daughter and herself.

COPTER RESCUES MOTORIST

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Dec. 13 (AP)—An Army helicopter rescued a motorist injured in a desert accident yesterday.

Sgt. Carl Rhodes, piloting one of four craft en route to Stockton, Calif., saw a car driven by Rudy Tafalla, Cosmopolis, Wash., run off the highway and hit a rock. Rhodes landed at the scene near Palm Springs and took Tafalla to Banning airport. Tafalla suffered a leg fracture and facial cuts.

New Nicaraguan Port. MANAGUA, Dec. 13 (AP)—President Anastasio Somoza has inaugurated a new Pacific coast port named Port Somoza. It lies about 30 miles from Managua between the coastal towns of Corinto and San Juan del Sur.

CAA SEPARATION FROM WEEKS'S CONTROL STUDIED

Monroney May Propose
Shift—'Personal Malice' in Lee Ouster Denied.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Senator Mike Monroney (Dem., Oklahoma), said today he may ask Congress to take the Civil Aeronautics Administration from "the political control and ground-minded administration" of Commerce Department chiefs.

Monroney specifically mentioned in his statement Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks and Under Secretary Louis S. Rothschild. He accused them yesterday of forcing out Frederick B. Lee as CAA head in an effort to assume "czar-like powers" to control civil aviation.

The Commerce Department denied yesterday that either "political consideration" or "personal malice" was involved in Lee's ouster. The statement, issued by Rothschild, said a decision was "reluctantly reached that someone better suited in leadership talent and teamwork was required."

President Eisenhower accepted Lee's resignation Saturday and yesterday Charles J. Lowen Jr. was sworn in to replace him. Both Lee and Lowen are Republicans. The CAA administrator is paid $15,000 a year.

Monroney, who already has announced that the Senate Commerce Committee will inquire into the Lee matter next month, said in his new statement he is "considering the introduction of a bill" to strip the Commerce Department of all control over CAA.

"The vital progress of aviation cannot be tied to the old coal-burning locomotive days," Secretary Weeks seems to live in," Monroney said.

"We must not have political control of such things as aviation safety, approval of new type aircraft, regulation of our airways, improvements in instrument landing for bad weather, and the development of an adequate system of airports."

Monroney has said he believes Lee was fired because he supported a bill to authorize federal appropriation of $64,000,000 for each of the next four years to aid in airport construction. The Senator said Weeks opposed the bill.

Gray Hairs Found Under Murdered Woman's Nails

TITUSVILLE, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—Gray hairs have been found under the fingernails of Mrs. Patricia van Eeghen, who was killed with her daughter last week, Sheriff H. T. Williams reported last night.

He said the hairs and a blood-spotted pair of shoes which her husband wore when the bodies were found Friday, will be sent to a laboratory for testing.

The husband, Philip van Eeghen, 30 years old, has dark hair. Mrs. Van Eeghen had red hair. Van Eeghen formerly lived in St. Louis. Van Eeghen has been held in jail for questioning.

U.N. URGES DUTCH-INDONESIA ACCORD ON W. NEW GUINEA

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 13 (AP)—The United Nations Political Committee passed a resolution last night expressing hope that in current Dutch-Indonesian negotiations, the dispute over West New Guinea will be "peacefully resolved."

In another action, the committee decided against voting on a Soviet resolution titled "measures for the further relaxation of international tension."

It adopted 40 to 11 a British motion to this effect. There were six abstentions. The Soviet bloc, Egypt, India, Indonesia, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yugoslavia voted against the motion.

Training Ship Out of Service.
NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Navy and Marine Corps training ship Prairie States, a Manhattan landmark since 1924, is to be taken out of service on Dec. 31. The 54-year-old vessel once was a battleship that toured the world in President Theodore Roosevelt's "great white fleet" in 1907.

Flashes of Life
Christmas Spirit.
YOUNGSTOWN, O. (AP)—Municipal Judges Forrest J. Cavalier, Robert D. Nevin and Frank H. Franko made the following appeal to lawyers in an advertisement published in the Legal News:

"In keeping with the holiday spirit we know that you will want to co-operate with us and not seek to attach the Christmas pay of any defendant. Merry Christmas."

Conscientious.
GLASGOW, Ky. (AP)—An honest driver, determined to live with his conscience, overcame some tough obstacles. He rammed James Brooks' parked automobile, but a parade was in progress and he was unable to report the accident to police. He went to a nearby hatchery, explained he couldn't wait, and left his name: Hubert Bishop of Maud, Ky.

The damage to Brooks' car was estimated at $100.
The Need for Blood.
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—The Red Cross had a good selling point for its need for blood Monday. It said it had just sent 37 points of blood to one hospital in a vain attempt to save the life of a boy. On Saturday, it said, it provided 21 pints which helped save the life of another young man.

SEVENTH & WASHINGTON

An assistant said Green is redrafting his earlier proposal to set up a joint congressional committee to study the problem of keeping a functioning Chief Executive at the head of government. The proposal was approved by the Senate in 1949 but died in the House.

In another matter relating to the Presidency, Senator John F. Kennedy (Dem., Massachusetts), announced that his Government Operations subcommittee will hold hearings early next year on Hoover Commission recommendations for lightening the President's load. Kennedy said the group would recommend any changes in law which it found necessary.

The commission recommended a 50 per cent reduction in the number of agencies—now 64—which report directly to the President, plus other steps to lighten the burden of the Chief Executive.

Question Never Settled.

The question of taking over the duties of a living, but disabled, President has never been resolved. Thus when President Eisenhower was stricken by a heart attack Sept. 24, there was confusion and doubt as to whether Vice President Richard M. Nixon should—or could—take over presidential powers during the Chief Executive's illness.

The Constitution is vague on the subject. It says the Vice President moves up to the top spot in case of the removal, death, resignation of the President or his "inability to discharge the powers and duties" of the presidency. But the Constitution does not define "inability" and no law has spelled it out.

The Constitution provides also that the President shall resume his office when his "disability" is removed. But neither it nor the law gives any guide as to when this shall occur or who is to determine it.

Hoover's Suggestion. A spokesman said Green's proposal would deal with the disability problem. He said Green would consider also the suggestion of former President Hoover, made in a television broadcast Sunday, for an "executive Vice President" to take over some of the routine duties of the Chief Executive.

The law formerly provided for the Secretary of State to take over the White House if the President and Vice President were both unable to discharge their duties.

Congress in 1947, at President Truman's urging, changed the law to make the Speaker of the House next in line after the Vice President, and the president pro tem of the Senate next. Then came the Cabinet officers, beginning with Secretary of State and ending with Secretary of Labor.

Two previous Presidents were incapacitated for long periods but stayed in office. James A. Garfield was wounded by an assassin July 2, 1881, and lived until the following Sept. 19. Woodrow Wilson suffered a stroke Sept. 25, 1919, which made him an invalid.

MAKE IT EASIER FOR FRIENDS TO CALL YOU

It's quick and easy for people to find your telephone number if you have it listed in the directory under your own name. You can have such a listing even though the telephone where you live is not listed in your name. You can order an "EXTRA LISTING" in the telephone book:

Such a listing is economical, and it saves your friends calls to wrong numbers. It may often mean the difference between your getting or not getting an important call.

A new telephone directory will be printed soon. You'll want to order your "extra listing" right away, so it will be included.

Cost of a residential "extra listing" is just 25¢ per month

PRESIDENT OFFERS NEW $35,200,000,000 SECURITY PROGRAM

To counter similar Communist offers.

However, the statement did not say specifically whether a larger foreign aid appropriation would be sought in the new session of Congress. This year's foreign aid spending is estimated at $2,700,000,000.

The statement did say Mr. Eisenhower "stressed the necessity for expanding" the program of the United States Information Agency "to present America's proposals for peace to all the peoples of the world," indicating that an increased appropriation will be sought for the information agency.

Two-Day Review.

The meeting wound up a two-day review of the domestic, foreign, budgetary and defense recommendations Mr. Eisenhower will submit to the second session of the Eighty-Fourth Congress next month.

The President, who arrived here Saturday for a physical checkup, returned to his farm home near Gettysburg, Pa., by plane this afternoon.

He had originally planned to return by automobile, but his private plane makes the 80-mile trip in 30 minutes, compared with two hours by car.

Mr. Eisenhower apparently was anxious to get back to the farm as soon as possible and begin the period of more rest and less work recommended by his doctors.

In the two-day review of the legislative program, he spent almost 10 hours in conference.

Mrs. Eisenhower returned to the farm by automobile.

Thanks Congress Leaders.

After today's meeting, the President asked his press secretary, James C. Hagerity, to thank the congressional leaders of both parties for their bipartisan approach to foreign policy.

"I want to give my thanks and my very real gratitude to the leaders on both sides of the aisle in the Senate and the House of Representatives for the very great contributions they have made and are making to true bipartisanship," he said.

Bipartisanship apparently was emphasized in the meeting as the theme for the election-year session of Congress, when it comes to foreign affairs. However, the Democrats were expected to have their own domestic program, and fights were considered sure in this area, with votes as the prize.

Leading off today's conference, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles gave the Congressmen a briefing on "world conditions since the foreign ministers' meeting at Geneva," the White House statement said. It added:

"He said that his department placed special emphasis on the economic aspects of foreign policy, particularly in view of the stepped-up Soviet campaign in this field in Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

"He also urged approval by the Congress of American participation in the Organization for Trade Co-operation," which Mr. Eisenhower favors as a way of breaking down trade barriers.

Given Defense Review.

The statement, read by Hagerity after the meeting, said Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson then "reviewed with the leaders the program of the defense establishment of the United States and the force levels which must be maintained to protect the nation against attack and to assure the maintenance of peace in this atomic age."

However, the statement made no reference to the amount of money the Administration will request from Congress to maintain the nation's military and naval forces in the next fiscal year.

On the subject of aid to foreign nations, Director John B. Hollister of the International Co-operation Administration has said he would recommend a "substantial" program, but no specific figures were given.

The statement said only that Hollister "outlined the aspects of mutual security, including mutual military support and economic and technical assistance for our allies and friends."

Mr. Eisenhower and Abbott Washburn, deputy director of the USA, discussed the Information Agency's program at today's meeting, the statement said.

Stassen on Disarmament.

Harold E. Stassen, special Presidential adviser on disarmament, wound up the session with a detailed review of various proposals for disarmament. Hagerity reported.

He paid particular attention to Mr. Eisenhower's "open sky" proposal for mutual air inspection as a means of preventing arming for aggression, the statement said.

Today's bipartisan talks followed eight and a half hours of meetings yesterday on the domestic phase of the Administration's legislative program. Only Republican Congressional leaders were present yesterday.

They conferred with Mr. Eisenhower for more than five hours, and with Cabinet members at other times during the day, then announced they would give top priority to farm legislation in the new session.

A statement at the end of the afternoon session said the G. O. P. congressional leaders expect the Administration farm program to "win widespread support" from farmers and farm organizations.

Both the executive and legislative leaders agreed that enactment of the legislative proposals in the farm program will be of top priority in the next session," the statement said.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has proposed six new farm measures designed to supplement the existing farm program of flexible farm price supports. He said some of them will require congressional approval.

Other subjects discussed in the afternoon were civil rights, postal rates, labor legislation, slum clearance and housing and legislation affecting Government employees.

ATHLETIC PROGRAMS URGED FOR YOUTHS

Probation Officer Tells House Committee More Facilities Are Needed.

Curfew and traffic schools in the city have helped hold down juvenile crime here, but more athletic programs and facilities are needed in housing project areas, Miss Grace Gorman, chief probation officer of the juvenile court, said last night.

She testified before the Missouri House Committee investigating the St. Louis police department. The committee, headed by Representative Jennie S. Walsh (Dem.), St. Louis, also heard last night Lt. Adolph Jacobsmeier and Sgt. Joseph Phelan of the police juvenile division.

Miss Gorman emphasized the need for qualified persons to teach and work with juvenile delinquents who are not mentally normal. She said there are 80 such youths at the St. Louis State Training School with only seven teachers.

Lt. Jacobsmeier pointed out that while juvenile crime in the United States increased 13 per cent last year, it increased only 6 per cent in St. Louis. He attributed this to a lack of gangs and the low incidence of drug addiction here.

The chief crime committed here by juveniles is automobile theft, he told the committee. He predicted that about 4800 juveniles will be taken into custody by the police in 1955, an increase of about 300 over last year.

The Board of Police Commissioners plans to add more men to the juvenile division, which now has 24 officers, he said.

Sgt. Phelan, discussing athletic programs for juveniles, said that in slum areas one of the biggest obstacles to athletic programs, besides facilities, is getting adults in the area interested in supervising the programs.

Committee members who attended the hearing, besides Mrs. Walsh, were Representatives Joseph W. Marino and Robert M. Uxa, St. Louis Democrats, and Samuel B. Murphy (Rep.), of St. Louis county.

DECKHAND INJURED IN FALL

Charles Ryals, a deckhand, was injured seriously early today when he fell down an open hatch of a barge at the foot of Poplar street.

Police were told that Ryals fell 14 feet to the bottom of the hatch. At City Hospital he was pronounced suffering from a head injury. His home is in Baton Rouge, La.

Convicted of Killing Girl, CHICAGO, Dec. 13 (AP)—Clarence Baugh, 18-year-old son of deaf mutes, was convicted yesterday of raping and murdering 8-year-old Mary Manzo. Criminal Court Judge Daniel Roberts, who heard the case without a jury, set Dec. 28 for a hearing on a motion for a new trial or passing sentence. Baugh is Negro.

COMPLAINT AGAINST WIFE OF EMBEZZLER DISMISSED

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (UP)—United States Commissioner Edward E. Fay yesterday dismissed an embezzlement conspiracy complaint against the wife of a Staten Island bank employee who is serving an eight-year prison term for embezzlement of more than $65,000.

Fay dismissed the complaint against Mrs. Henrietta Siemer,

23 years old, at the request of Assistant United States Attorney Peter A. Passalacqua. She and her husband, John Calvin Siemer, were arrested in South Amherst, O., where they lived under the name of McTavish. Siemer was sentenced Oct. 6 by United States District Judge Matthew G. Abruzzo. He had admitted embezzling $65,000 at the Staten Island National Bank & Trust Co. which had reported a $95,780 shortage. Part of the money was recovered from the couple's former Staten Island apartment and at their South Amherst home. Mrs. Siemer, who has been free in $1000 bond, lives with her parents in Fairlawn, N.J. She recently gave birth to her fourth child.

HIGGINS

Americans Wonder How Much They Should Assist Russians In Achieving Top War Potential

Soviet Tours of U.S. of Much Greater Value Than Our Visits—'New Look' Called Simple Tactic 'to Make the Most of What They've Got.'

By MARGUERITE HIGGINS
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright, 1955

NEW YORK.
AS SEEN from inside Russia, a big question posed for the American people by Russia's "new look" is this: How much should the United States assist the Soviet Union toward its most intensively publicized (inside the U.S.S.R.) domestic aim which is to outstrip capitalist America in the development of heavy industry and to become the world's greatest industrial giant? (And thus, incidentally, the nation with the greatest war potential.)

But, scoffs the average American (who, it seems, is still astonished when reminded that the Russians managed to put intercontinental jets into operation before this was done by the United States) is such an achievement by the Russians even within the realm of possibility?

It is certain that the vast Communist empire contains sufficient natural resources to achieve its ambitions. Russia's main lacks, according to Soviet Premier Bulganin, are in technical know-how, a few kinds of modern machinery and the industrial application of science. It's also certain that the Soviet Union, already the world's second industrial power, is setting about with ferocious energy to make up these deficiencies and that the strategy of the "new look" is to place new emphasis on learning from foreigners—one of the instruments to this end.

Desire to Gain Time.
To close observers of the Russian scene in Moscow, the new look represents first and foremost a Soviet desire to gain time. Communist Party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev told a visiting French woman Communist at a Kremlin party last month, "Each year that we gain in security for the future." The Communist delegate had expressed concern over the decrease in Communist military.

Time and a mellowed international atmosphere will bring the Russians increased trade, increased access to Western technology. It will permit the Russians not only to improve their own economy but also to consolidate Communist expansion in Eastern Europe, China, Tibet, North Korea, northern Indochina. And the Soviets also hope that the passage of time will bring acceptance by the rest of the world of the expanded Communist status quo.

No Western diplomat in Moscow ever believed that the current thaw in the cold war was the result of some desperate internal crises, some sudden new economic difficulties or a "crisis" in agriculture. Economic conditions inside the Soviet Union remain considerably worse than the Russians claim, but considerably better than the outside world realizes. And in general, Western observers inside Russia would agree with Soviet leaders when they say that the economic situation is better than at any time since World War II.

Heavy Industry Expands.
Since my first visit to Russia last year there has certainly been no substantial increase in consumer goods in the stores. But there hasn't been any decrease, either. Prices on a few things such as TV sets and washing machines have come down a little. And heavy industry—the steel, coal and iron that are the sinews of a war economy—continue to expand at a faster rate than any other country in the world, including the United States. It is true that an enormous proportion of Russia's machine tools were purchased in the United States and elsewhere in the West and are now wearing out.

But as a British economist expressed it, "If worst comes to worst, the Russians can manufacture these machine tools themselves. But if they can obtain them from the West they can travel toward their goals just that much faster." In agriculture, the picture in the new year 1956 is this: Although drought affected much of Russia's recent harvest, there is no doubt that Russia's vast increase of acreage in Middle Asia and Siberia produced important increases in its wheat and corn harvest, as the visiting British agricultural delegation to Russia reported. The great gamble of bringing under cultivation the new lands now seems likely to pay off—by Russian standards.

However, had the Russians not undertaken these energetic agricultural measures, there is little doubt that there would have been a crisis due to the pressure of increasing population on cities.

What Aggression Brought.
Nor is it believed in Moscow (in contrast to some theories in Western capitals) that the present thaw the result of any Soviet estimate that the tough tactics of the past had boomeranged.

"After all," a British diplomat observed, "the aggressive tactics of 1945 to 1952 brought the Communist world what every Marxist considers the biggest prize of all—China and Tibet. The Communists were aggressive when aggressive tactics paid off—when they could get what they wanted without risking major war. Stalin had strong nerves and far more power than the present collective leadership. So he could come closer to risking war than the present leaders. But after Korea, even Stalin knew he couldn't risk going much farther.

Remember that Stalin was at the helm when Russia took the initiative in calling for the Korean truce talks. And even Stalin would have seen that at present the risk of further overt expansion is too great. No, the new look is no repudiation of the past. You'll never find a Communist who will repudiate the tactics that brought 800,000,000 new souls into the Communist fold. The new look is simply a new tactic tailored to a new phase. The time has come for the Russians to make the most of what they've got."

Hope to Avoid Alarm.
A key part of "making the most of what they've got" is Russia's current campaign to make Communism respectable (and thereby less likely to cause alarm). Already Communist party boss Khrushchev and others have indicated in private conversations that the popular front tactics of the '30s or some variation thereon will be resumed.

Communist parties in France, England, the United States, etc., are to stop acting like revolutionaries. Instead they are to behave like ordinary political parties.

Significantly, the earlier trend limiting Communist party membership to an elite corps is to be reversed. Steps in that direction were announced last week in various peripheral Communist states, such as Lithuania.

How does all this square with Russia's intransigence at Geneva? To observers inside Russia it was clear long before Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov flew off to Moscow that the Russians expected to gain nothing and to give nothing at Geneva.

For so long as the thaw in the cold war prevails (and the reason the Soviets minimized the failure at Geneva is that the thaw suits their purposes) it is far more advantageous for the Russians to deal directly with individuals in the West—individual American businessmen, individual French scholars, individual British scientists—all of whom are likely out of experience to be far more tractable than such a man as Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Russian Advantage.
And this is where the Russians know they have a great advantage. Whether or not agreement is reached at Geneva, they can go right ahead on this individual basis since most such groups in the West are at liberty to guide their own actions. But the reverse is not possible for the West. Since everything in Russia is controlled by the government, the West is always forced to deal through the Soviet leadership.

It was only this summer that the West suddenly realized how very unbalanced in Russia's favor were these so-called "free" exchanges. The light first began to dawn in Western Europe because it was there that most of the exchanges took place.

Specially trained delegations of Soviet experts—notebooks opened and pencils poised—toured French factories, Swedish factories and even a few American factories. They were sketching, asking detailed questions, asking for diagrams, etc. Occasionally they placed orders for machines, mostly one or two at a time and obviously to be used as models for copying.

Even in America, Russians have scored at least one victory in obtaining what they wanted, even though our Government had strong reasons for hesitating.

This involves the case of the 10 Soviet hybrid corn experts invited to the United States by Roswell Garst, Chicago businessman and himself a specialist in hybrid corn.

Five Visas Issued.
At the time the Russians applied for their visas the State Department was in the midst of trying to persuade the Russians to put a little more reciprocity into the whole exchange picture (bringing to Soviet attention, for instance, that whereas the Soviet agricultural delegation had been able to travel in this country virtually at will, the American delegation in Russia had been considerably hampered in seeing what it wanted). The State Department decided to hold up the visas pending some sign from the Russians that a somewhat fairer exchange could be worked out.

Then Garst intervened. His intervention is quite understandable. He is not responsible for a global viewpoint. Being typically American he

President's Staff Opens Drive To Convince Him to Run Again

'Operation Re-election' Designed to Show Eisenhower and Nation That He Is Indispensable.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.
PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S staff has cut Republican Senate Leader Knowland off at the pockets in the latest maneuver in a campaign to convince the Eisenhower and the country that the President is the indispensable man.

Last Thursday Knowland said that the President should disclose his 1956 intentions not later than January. If the President is not going to run, Knowland pointed out, other aspirants would be interested in the presidential preference primaries which open up about that time.

Within 48 hours reporters at the Gettysburg White House were summoned to a press conference with the President's personal physician, Maj. Gen. Snyder. Gen. Snyder told them that if he were in the President's shoes he would wait until mid-February before deciding whether he was physically able to run again.

A Political Opinion.
This obviously is not a medical opinion in the accepted sense. It is a political opinion volunteered to the press by a medical man. But who can argue with the doctor?

Also, this particular one is the President's own doctor, his long-time Army associate and friend. It follows that this is the advice the President is getting and it is probable that the Eisenhower will be influenced by the doctor's opinion. Throughout the whole Snyder press conference, political and medical opinion were interwoven. Dr. Snyder said that his patient's condition was "good" but that he showed evidence of fatigue. Political spokesmen Snyder described the presidential schedule as "heavy" and said it was expected to lighten after his congressional conferences this week.

Seen Only by Aids.
Snyder's contribution to the thesis that what the President has been doing is, or approaching, a normal presidential workload is clear. It has no doubt been a heavy schedule for a patient convalescing from a heart attack, but there is no firm evidence that it typifies the load a President at his White House desk must shoulder daily.

Kefauver Said

To Be Ready to Run Next Year

Announcement Expected Friday on Heels of Visit to California.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.
SENATOR ESTES KEFAUVER of Tennessee, encouraged by some political pulse-taking in this pivotal state, has decided to run for President again and plans to make a formal announcement Friday in Washington, it was learned today.

Kefauver also plans to announce, probably at a news conference here tomorrow, that he intends to enter the California preferential primary next June 5 in what many observers feel will be a knock-down, drag-out battle with Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

Three-cornered Race.
In tossing his coonskin cap into the ring, Kefauver will virtually assure a three-cornered convention scramble for the Democratic nomination, since Gov. Averell Harriman of New York also has indicated his willingness to be nominated. It is the hope of Kefauver and his advisers that before the convention he will be able to "catch" Stevenson in one of the early state primaries, such as New Hampshire in March, and administer a drubbing.

It was learned, however, that Kefauver has no intention of entering any preferential primary where the results are not binding on the delegates. In 1952 Kefauver entered the convention with a solid phalanx of delegates pledged to him as a result of a series of primary victories, but the delegates broke to Stevenson when the latter made known his availability.

Today Kefauver motored to Riverside and San Bernardino counties for a series of informal talks and meetings with local Democratic clubs. He was accompanied by Tom C. Carrell, automobile dealer and head of the Kefauver Clubs in California, and A. Bradley Eben, Chicago attorney and president of the national Kefauver-for-President joint sponsorship with other leading newspapers.

TOKYO, Dec. 13 (AP)—An American-produced "atoms-for-peace" exhibition drew 358,557 visitors during its 40-day showing in Tokyo.

The exhibition, demonstrating various peaceful uses of atomic energy to the only nation which has ever been atom-bombed, was sponsored by the United States Government and the newspaper Yomiuri. Sponsors said the turnout was a world record for a show of its kind.

The exhibition will tour other Japanese cities next spring under joint sponsorship with other leading newspapers.

St. Louis Union Trust Company is the Oldest Trust Company in Missouri

A CENTURY ago there were no trust companies in Missouri. None were then permitted by law. On October 9, 1889, shortly after a law was passed authorizing the establishing of trust companies in Missouri, our Company was chartered as the St. Louis Trust Company. Eight months later, on June 16, 1890, the Union Trust Company was chartered. These were the first two trust companies to be chartered in St. Louis. On March 1, 1902, the St. Louis Trust Company acquired all the assets of the Union Trust Company and one month later changed its name to the St. Louis Union Trust Company. It still operates under its original charter of October 9, 1889.

The St. Louis Union Trust Company is not only the oldest trust company in Missouri, but administers the largest volume of trust business. It is engaged in trust service exclusively.

Many years ago the Directors of the St. Louis Union Trust Company felt that it was desirable to divorce its banking business from its trust business and to operate a trust company whose top executives would be trust men. They, consequently, organized a wholly-owned bank, known as the St. Louis Union Bank, transferred its banking business to that institution and thereafter conducted only a trust business. The St. Louis Union Bank was one of three banks which merged in 1919 to form the present First National Bank, and the St. Louis Union Trust Company acquired its stock in the First National Bank in payment for its wholly-owned bank.

We believe you will find it advantageous to do business with a trust institution that is engaged exclusively in the trust business—a trust institution with the largest volume of trust business—a trust institution that is the oldest trust company in Missouri.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Teacher Talks Back

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For many months I have tried to maintain an objective and rational approach to the multitudinous amount of literature on what is "wrong" with our schools.

As a teacher and as a parent of five children, I read the sweeping indictments and glittering generalities based on isolated facts and mere whimsy of Mr. Moley in Newsweek, of Mr. Whitman in Collier's, of Mr. Fleisch in his book and all the rest when they say or imply that our teacher training institutions and teacher training are not only inadequate, but of no use.

I respectfully refer your readers to the June 1954 issue of Changing Times, which compares the scores of tests by today's youngsters in various communities with the scores obtained by the parents of a generation ago. The results I think effectively refute the above charge.

The following quote from the magazine is, I think, significant, "Except for spelling . . . today's grade school children score as high and generally higher than, yesterday's kids on comparative tests. And this despite the fact that in some cases the tests were specifically prepared for the earlier cases and that the students were specifically coached for the examinations."

Again, "Significantly, the College Entrance Examination Board finds no decline in the quality of the entering freshmen today when he is compared with the college freshmen of a century ago."

Do you want further proof? Spoken for by Colgate, Harvard and Yale when scoured out in the survey by Changing Times said that on the whole, boys from private schools show better initial preparation for college and usually get along better in their work for the first semester or two. But after that the public school boys tend to catch up and outstrip the private school boys.

People in education, in teaching, the ones I know including myself, will continue to go on, doing an honest job, teaching children, helping them to become better citizens. We will read this mass of literature, growing despondent at times, trying to determine why it should be "What's Wrong" when we know it should be "What's Right." But at times we must answer these charges to keep our self-respect and to let people know we are neither godless, incompetent nor callous.

As to a County Roadblock

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For many years there has existed an extreme traffic hazard at Clayton and Big Bend roads. I now note that the filling station that created the hazard has been torn down, and a worse one is planned.

I would like to know by what stretch of the imagination, the City Fathers of Clayton, and/or Richmond Heights can justify their action in perpetuating such a hazard to life, limb and property?

There may be circumstances that justify an action that upon the surface is stupid; if so, I would like to know what they are.

Two Halves of One Truth

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Walter Lippmann recently charged the Democrats with responsibility for the failure of the Eisenhower-Dulles foreign policy by saying it was a continuation of Truman-Acheson.

I had the temerity to challenge that statement in a letter to the editor by pointing out that military containment was only half of the Truman-Acheson policy. The other equally important part, which was enunciated by Eisenhower-Dulles, was economic aid through the Marshall Plan and the Point IV program. I stated moreover that the Russians have picked up the Truman-Acheson policy and are using it with as great success as we had.

The other night Walter Lippmann said: "What we are witnessing is a Soviet adaptation of our own Marshall Plan and Point IV program." This is typical of the method of the Eisenhower Administration and its apologists. First, smear, then follow up with a statement that is in effect a contradiction. If you're charged with either one, you can always point to the other.

Well meaning people excuse Mr. Eisenhower on the grounds of ignorance. Mr. Lippmann can hardly be given the benefit of that excuse.

Fed Up With H.S.T.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Truman's speeches and method of campaigning, his continuous knocking of everything Republican (which is actually sour grapes on Truman's part) is what defeated Stevenson so bad. If the Democrats let Truman continue on with his speeches and to campaign again they will certainly be soundly defeated again. Democrats and Republicans alike are certainly fed up and tired of his nasty remarks.

Cashing Charter Promises

Mayor Tucker's firmly expressed conviction that the aldermen soon will quit playing politics and pass his bill for election of charter freeholders seems somewhat surprising at first glance. After all, hasn't just about every trick in the book been employed in the Board to block the movement for charter reform?

Mr. Tucker probably would be the first to admit this. Even so, he continues to be optimistic because "I have confidence in the ultimate intellectual integrity of the Board of Aldermen."

If the Mayor's confidence is to be justified, each of the aldermen who at the height of last spring's campaign promised to support the movement for a new charter will have to keep his word and vote Yes when the chips are down.

At least seven of the aldermen who took the stump in the spring made unequivocal public promises that they would see to it the people of St. Louis got an opportunity to vote on a new city charter—not just revisions, but a whole new charter. This group includes:

DEMOCRATS

Archie Blaine, Sixth Ward.
James E. Geisler, Tenth Ward.
Joseph Kavanaugh, Fourteenth Ward.
Clinton Watson, Sixteenth Ward.
Wayman F. Smith Jr., Eighteenth Ward.

REPUBLICANS

Fred W. Haag, Twelfth Ward.
William A. Stolar, Twenty-eighth Ward.

Several others left their constituents with the idea they were not entirely cold to the need for charter reform. Democrat Leo J. McLaughlin, Second Ward, admitted that progress demanded revision of the charter in many respects. Democrat T. H. Mayberry, Fourth Ward, declared himself generally for the election of freeholders, although he said he wanted to explore the possibilities of modernization by amendment.

Even Anton Niemeyer, Eighth Ward, who as chairman of the aldermanic Legislation Committee has been a roadblock to the Mayor's bill, admitted the charter needed some changes. Magistrate Anton Sestric is the real power in Mr. Niemeyer's ward, and he was one of the original Tucker-for-Mayor supporters; perhaps Mr. Tucker can count on him.

And in addition to those aldermen who made charter promises in the campaign, there is a small group who have been voting for a new charter right along. These include Board President Donald Gunn and William K. Gardner, Twenty-fifth Ward, Democrats, and Republicans George J. Grellner, Thirteenth, and Carl Guel-schow, Twenty-third.

If the aldermen can be taken at their word, as Mr. Tucker seems to take them, this adds up to a surprisingly substantial grouping of opinion on the record for the election of freeholders. Undoubtedly there may even be a few Democratic aldermen from the odd-numbered wards who also would support Mr. Tucker in a showdown despite the fact they did not have to run last spring and thus did not make any promises.

Mr. Niemeyer's Legislation Committee intends to report Friday on its study of proposed charter amendments. This study would be valuable background for freeholders but not a substitute for them. The charter as it is now written is not susceptible to successful revision by piecemeal amendment.

Alderman Haag, a member of the committee, says that in any case he intends to recommend an election for freeholders, even if he must submit a minority report to do so. This could bring a showdown on not only the charter but the intellectual integrity of several members of the Board as well.

Outline for '56

President Eisenhower's 1956 domestic program is so far known to the public only in general outline, and to that extent should meet with general approval.

The President told Republican leaders that he would ask Congress in January for a start on highway and school construction. He also said he contemplated a balanced budget by next June. The nation has certainly learned that it cannot put off aid to schools and roads much longer, and who is against a balanced budget?

This is a good beginning on an election-year program, but too many details are missing to justify any hard and fast conclusions.

For example, the program appears sound enough to be kept above partisan politics, but this may not happen. In the last session the Democrats agreed with the President on the need for new roads, but there was plenty of room for disagreement on details of financing.

The White House does not now mention a tax cut, which both parties regard as a vote-getting issue. Schools and roads will require new expenditures, and if there has to be a choice between these constructive programs and lower taxes, politics ought to put taxes aside.

The record of 1955 shows that the domestic issues of 1956 will not be the need for highways and schools but specifically how to acquire them. It is the details of a legislative program which cause the fireworks.

'Raise the Flag for Old Chicago'

"Stagg Fears Purdue" is not likely to be a headline on 1957 sport pages, but they may well proclaim: "Norgren Gloomy About Lake Forest." Almost certainly there will be stories about the University of Chicago's Maroons taking to the gridiron again.

Return to intercollegiate football has been unanimously recommended by a faculty committee headed by Prof. Kermit Eby. This is not final, but it seems the grease is on the wheels. There need be no immediate worrying, however, about pushing somebody out of the Big Ten to admit Chicago to its old roost. Nor is there immediate cause for trembling in Urbana or Ann Arbor. If it does resume the game, Chicago will start on a non-conference basis, arranging schedules according to the indicated strength of its teams. Says the committee:

We believe that the University of Chicago should be able to play football on a truly amateur basis, without over-emphasis and its attendant problems. Football . . . should be supported from educational funds, and its continuance should not be dependent on gate receipts or spectator interest. The emphasis should be on enjoyment of the game by the players . . . so that athletic teams are genuinely representative of the student body rather than artificial creations of the athletic staff.

The flexibility of competition . . . would therefore be inconsistent with entry into an established conference with a distinct character and level of competition. It is not inconceivable that at some time in the future a suitable conference might either develop or be found among those already existing.

Whether so meant or not, there is a hint to the Big Ten in that last line. Why not get rid of professionalism? The Ivy League has done it, and a Harvard-Yale game is still an attraction even if not played by hired hands endowed with two-tone convertibles and a pay scale providing for cost-of-living increases. It would be wonderful if Chicago's old rivals decided to meet it on those terms.

What's Going on in CAA and CAB?

There is a crying need for the interest of good government and fair play to find out just why Frederick B. Lee has been forced out as head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration. Joining the CAA 10 years ago, he became administrator in March 1953 and nothing has been brought to light to indicate that he has not performed his duties ably.

The CAA, a unit of the Commerce Department, is a very important federal office charged mainly with building and operating air navigation aids, enforcing air safety regulations and promoting development of a national airport system. Senator Mike Monroney (Dem.) of Oklahoma charges that Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks ousted Lee as part of a campaign to obtain "czar-like powers" over civil aviation.

The appointment of Charles J. Lowen Jr. to succeed Lee is evidence of a plan to squeeze Lee out. For Lowen, who joined the CAA only last May, is reported to have been put in a job handpicked for him by Secretary Weeks and his Under Secretary, Lewis S. Rothschild. It was about this time that Lee testified in the Senate in favor of a bill authorizing a $250,000,000 federal outlay to aid in airport construction. Weeks and Rothschild, according to Monroney, fought this bill "bitterly."

It is a sardonic coincidence that the Lee ouster comes right when the Administration is launching a campaign to give recognition to career employees who have outstanding records. As Jerry Klutz, Washington Post columnist, commented: "If officials such as Lee who have worked themselves to the top are fired for no good reason the worthwhile campaign will be doomed as hollow and insincere."

In the opinion of Mr. Monroney, Secretary Weeks is also trying to get the CAB completely under his thumb. Someone blocked the reappointment of Josh Lee to the CAB. And Mr. Weeks, no doubt cognizant of the likelihood that Ross Ritzley will resign as head of the CAB soon to take an Oklahoma judgeship, would have an opportunity to get a chairman of his own selection appointed.

Senator Monroney's announcement that the Senate Commerce Committee will start digging into Commerce Department policies under Weeks and Rothschild is most timely. The committee should dig into them deeply enough to determine whether it might not be wise to take the CAA and the CAB away from the Department of Commerce and let them have their freedom.

Today's Blue Plate Special

The Christian Science Monitor states flatly that "Endive is a versatile vegetable." It adds recipes to prove it, and we do not doubt the Monitor, but so many vegetables have become so versatile that they now occupy the center of the table, where the roast used to be.

Take this versatile endive. It can be used as a salad, an entree—or even as a vegetable. It can be served hot or cold. It can be stuffed or braised or boiled. It can be gratinated, and we would not be surprised if it could be grated, or even broiled over charcoal.

The contemporary assumption that most vegetables are versatile suggests a spreading culinary insecurity among jaded cooks. Are well-fed Americans really dissatisfied with meat, potatoes and a vegetable on the side? This rock-ribbed stuff is being supplanted by stuffed endives; it is being decorated, festooned and draped with kohlrabi or casserole or zucchini with cheese. The vegetables even have to sound glamorous (pobody seems to write about a versatile turnip).

There is something wrong here, it seems to us—something like putting the cart before the beefsteak, or locking the barn door after the smoked ham is stolen, or letting the tenderloin burn while the endive is fiddled with. The vegetable has its place, and that is in a side dish four inches northeast of the spoons.

Steps to Mechanical Voting

The Election Board wants the City to adopt a more expeditious schedule for the purchase of voting machines under the civic bond issue program. Citizens undoubtedly will agree that they would like to see the devices in all the city's precincts earlier than 1960 as presently contemplated.

On the other hand, the Election Board first must restrict its precincts and reduce their number so as to cut the number of voting machines that will be needed. The $2,275,000 bond issue allocation is based on the premise that the machines will be economically employed.

But once the Board solves its precinct problem and has the question of where the machines are to be stored well in hand it certainly ought to press for funds to get the program into operation. Swift and accurate counting of ballots is an end not to be delayed.

Knowland Returns to the Attack

It was appropriate that Senator Knowland should resume his offensive against Administration foreign policy with a bitter criticism of American acquiescence in the "package deal" to admit 18 new members to the U.N. This put the Senator right in line with the leading opponent of the plan, Chiang Kai-shek. And that is the proper place for a man who has been called the Senator from Formosa.

Senator Knowland's views on this issue are no more well taken than were his opposition to a summit conference, his opposition to a truce in Indochina, and his opposition to a truce in Korea. He speaks of a "retreat from principle." But he neglects to say what the principle was that the American delegation retreated from when it abstained from voting on the Canadian proposal for ending the membership deadlock, which gained the support of 51 other U.N. members.

Had the American delegation adamantly resisted a membership plan so widely supported as this one, the only principle we could claim to be serving would have been that of unreasonable imposition of our own will on the U.N. The so-called "package deal" is in fact a proposal to admit the long list of membership applicants in the only way any member can be admitted—by general agreement. It is a proposal to live up to one of the cardinal principles of the U.N., that of universal membership. And it is a proposal based on the principle of honorable compromise and conciliation, which are essential to any diplomatic intercourse.

Thus in resuming the attack which he had held in leash during the President's convalescence, Senator Knowland is again displaying his consistent tendency to confuse conciliation with appeasement, fair compromise with retreat from principle, negotiation with "peace at any price." He chooses to regard this tendency of his as a manifestation of toughness and courage, but others will interpret it otherwise.

Football and Humiliation in Georgia

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Atlanta newspaper criticizes Gov. Griffin's effort to keep Georgia Tech from playing in Sugar Bowl because of race issue; says this was 'a grandstand play' which offended many Georgians; a reader says politicians would put the state 'behind the mule again.'

An Editorial and Letter to the Editor in The Atlanta Journal

The Editorial

The Board of Regents acted with good judgment. They voted that Georgia Tech should play in the Sugar Bowl. They voted that the athletic policies of Tech and the University of Georgia should continue virtually as they have been. For these reasonable and proper decisions, the people of Georgia owe them thanks.

Gov. Griffin and his advisors have received the setback they deserve. In an obvious grandstand play, in an effort to call attention to themselves and to further themselves politically, they were willing to break a solemn contract and sacrifice the athletic program at Tech and the University. They quickly found that, in overstepping the bounds of common sense, they had offended many of the people of Georgia.

The Regents, in their wisdom and independence, have restored the situation to normalcy. The Regents proved in this instance that they merit the confidence of the state, and the state looks to them to keep the University System inviolate, completely apart from the political ambitions and maneuverings of any individual or group.

This whole affair was ill-conceived and unfortunate in the extreme. Certainly Gov. Griffin gained nothing. Nor did the Tech students who disregarded the law in their attack on the capitol and disgraced themselves by hanging a governor of Georgia in effigy.

No one benefited; but the state of Georgia was harmed. Its standing in the nation has been somewhat lowered because of the strained and rather foolish sounding off by a shortsighted Governor.

The Letter

The Editors: I have lived all my life in the State of Georgia and the City of Atlanta, and up until recently, I have been justly proud of my heritage—a state that has just begun to attract industry, national ranking and recognition. All this in spite of narrow-minded, selfish, political moves to keep certain factions in power, making us a laughing stock of the nation.

I have never been so ashamed and humiliated as over this latest move, an effort not to allow our two great state universities to compete athletically with other fine schools.

Why not abolish the greatest of all sporting events—the Olympic games? Isn't that a meet of the different races? What our politicians in their private little world, can't realize is that athletes are not interested in who or what a person is. They play for the love of the game and the love for competition and fair play. There are no lobbies and parties on a gridiron or a baseball diamond.

To use, or should I say misuse, two such famous schools and their athletic programs to gain their own ends is enough to shame us all. Let them go ahead—kick us back into kerosene lamp days—put Georgia behind the mule again, but keep in mind that another generation of Georgians is on the way.

That is a generation of younger, smarter people who believe that politics isn't all that's worth living for. Then maybe we'll get rid of some officials who shoot state's rights and then refuse to honor other states, their beliefs and rights.

Atlanta. EDWARD S. COOLEY.

Khrushchev: The Smiling Liar

From The Milwaukee Journal

One thing about which Soviet Russia is consistent is its continuous rewriting of history. Communist party chairman Khrushchev indicated in Bombay that day that he's picking up where Stalin left off. The seemingly affable Soviet leader, one of the world's most powerful men, now becomes its greatest liar.

Khrushchev's newest contribution to "history" is a statement that the United States and Britain "started the Second World War; they sent new troops against our country and these were the troops of Hitlerite Germany." Yes, better read it again, to make sure you get what Khrushchev said.

Everybody has been exposed for a long time to the Soviet contention that it was Russian troops, virtually alone, that won World War II—in Europe and Asia alike. They certainly carried a terrific load in Europe, and, if they choose to distort this picture, it doesn't do too much harm. But this thesis that the United States and Britain were on the side of Hitler sets a new Soviet high for falsehood. (Let's see how the American Communists—groveling before the Kremlin line—try to explain this one.)

It isn't likely that anyone outside Russia will forget how the world was aligned when Hitler turned on Russia. Russia and Hitler Germany were bound by their 1939 treaty, signed at time when the free world was lining up against tyranny. Russia and Hitler divided Poland. Russia supplied some materials to Hitler's armies.

When Norway and France fell, Russia sent Hitler warmest congratulations! Britain, aided by the former dominions and the rest of the empire and by growing assistance from the United States, stood otherwise almost alone.

Then Hitler, in his frenzied drive to rule the world, turned on his Russian ally and invaded the U.S.S.R. It was British and American help—on the battlefield and on the production line—that went a long way toward saving Russia from being swallowed up. The Russian people know this and will have a hard time forgetting it, however much Khrushchev cracks the whip or wields his pen over the history books.

Certainly Khrushchev doesn't expect any other peoples to swallow such bunk. Once again, however, this incident emphasizes the fateful question: How do you deal with a government—smiles or no smiles—that uses calculated falsehood, year in and year out, as one of its chief weapons?

Redheads and Crusaders

SILVER LEOPARD, by F. van Wyck Mason. (Doubleday, 335 pp., $3.75.)

The Normans, originally in a general sense Danes, were a counterpart of, though superior to, the eastern nomads (Mongols) and like them moved southward conquering new domains. Written accounts always picture them as redheads, which probably was not true of more than a minority of them, but since their women stood poorly the rigors of the march and they picked up replacements as they went on, it is likely that redheads, a common product of mingling of diverse northern European types, cropped up frequently among them.

The Norman knight of the eleventh century was a one-man armored division, requiring virtually a Percheron to carry his hauberk, shield, casque, axe, mace, javelin and a broadsword. With the sword he was especially adept and if we are to believe the chroniclers, when he dismounted he was the easy task of decapitating opponents and with one stroke would cut a man in halves. Diamond.

F. van Wyck Mason, who in combat, he wielded his sword like a baseball bat, and severed heads and arms would fly around like chips of wood. You don't get such kicks dropping A-bombs.

It is not surprising, then, that ever since Walter Scott the Normans and their cousins, the Franks, have been a favorite subject of historical novelists. Mr. F. van Wyck Mason, an old hand at the game, has chosen the First Crusade, a comparatively untraveled fictional road, as the theme of his sixteenth major work. His redheaded Norman is Sir Edmund de Montgomerie, who has been forced to leave England by reason of the dishonorable attentions of William II, son of the Conqueror, toward Edmund's twin sister, Lady Rosamund.

Shipwrecked off the coast of Sicily, the twins meet fellow Normans in that area. The Normans got around in those days and had a chunk of Italy, too. The First Crusade is being organized and the twins are transported to Byzantium as the first step of Edmund's journey to Jerusalem. At the head of his own division under the gonfalon blazoning his family's emblem, the silver leopard, Mr. Mason is of the old school, but he compensates for a florid, Victorian style and some stilted dialogue with a realistic picture of the First Crusade as painstaking scholarship can present of this poorly documented period.

THE BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES AND NOVELS OF 1955, edited by T. E. Dikty. (Frederick Fell, 344 pp., $4.50.)

Since 1949, Mr. Dikty has been collecting the "best" science fiction stories and novels of the previous year. Though no two readers will probably ever agree on which is the best story, a high level of editorial choice has been maintained throughout the series. The latest collection, the first to combine short stories and novels between the same covers, certainly includes several of the better stories that appeared last year. One of the advantages in such a collection is that the stories can be drawn from magazines ranging from The Saturday Evening Post to slightly-known pulp, providing considerably broader coverage than that attained by any but the most devoted science fiction fan.

In addition to the stories, Mr. Dikty reviews science fiction during 1954, covering the publications (140 magazine issues and 268 books), movies, authors, fan meetings, the more important books and the major scientific announcements. Finally Mr. Dikty provides a complete index of all books of science fiction published in English during 1954.

The Distress of Our Small Farmers.

CHANGE IN OUR SOCIETY, which has been going on for some time, is beginning to have an impact on our politics and will be heard from in the coming session of Congress—and very likely in next year's presidential election.

This is the squeezing out of so many small farmers of the "family farm" type so long considered one of the backbones of our American society and the increase of "king-size" or "factory farms" which, itself, is no new trend but has accelerated in the last few years. Why this is happening is found out in a special report on problems of low income farmers submitted to President Eisenhower in April by Secretary of Agriculture Benson, which was prepared by Agriculture Department experts.

Benson.

It showed that, as of 1950, more than a fourth of our 3,790,000 farm-operator families—1,513,000—had incomes of less than $1000 a year, while 2,849,000 families were receiving under $2000.

Senators Seek a Formula.

Since then the plight of the small farmer has grown worse, being accentuated by the generally lower level of farm income which currently is stirring up so much political unrest. Evidence presented to the Senate Agriculture Committee in its recent tour all over the country showed continued disparity of small farmers to big operators.

Especially in the Southwest is there concentration of farm ownership in fewer hands. What the committee learned led its Chairman, Senator Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), to list among objectives of farm legislation at the coming session: "Some formula that will tend to keep small farm units in business."

Secretary Benson again recognized the importance of the small farm dilemma by including in the farm program he discussed last week with President Eisenhower at Gettysburg this item: "Expansion of the rural development program for low income farmers."

Victims of Price Pattern.

How much of a political issue the low income farmer is apt to become, as a facet of the over-all farm problem, was indicated in a statement earlier last week by Representative Patman (Dem., Texas), who gave it a political twist, thus: "Since last April when Secretary Benson submitted his report to President Eisenhower on the low-income farmer in America, Mr. Benson's and the Administration's policies have caused the problems of these farmers to multiply."

JUJITSU-TRAINED CITY PASTORS URGED

They Should Know How to Deal With Hoodlums, Report Says.

BUCK HILL FALLS, Pa., Dec. 13 (AP)—Training of a new kind of Protestant pastor, skilled in jujitsu and "ready to go into bars" to minister to parishioners in blighted central areas of big cities was recommended in a report presented here last night to 250 representatives of the National Council of Churches.

"To deal with hoodlums, gangsters, youth gangs and the like, this new kind of city pastor... should know police court procedures and host of other matters not now taught in the seminaries," the report said.

Protestant churches are disappearing from slum areas at "an alarming rate," leaving millions of persons without spiritual care, the report commented.

"It is especially disconcerting that there seems to be practically no sense in Protestant circles that these conditions represent a crisis," the Rev. Dr. I. George Nace, New York, executive secretary of the council's division of home missions, told the audience.

The couple declined to discuss honeymoon plans. Justice Warren and Mrs. Warren and other members of the family plan to attend the wedding.

Miss Warren, 24 years old, and Dr. Clemente, 27, a professor in the department of anatomy at the medical center of the University of California at Los Angeles, met six months ago in the U.C.L.A. library, where Miss Warren is employed.

Miss Warren's younger sister, Nina (Honeybear), eloped to Las Vegas last Nov. 1 and married Dr. Stuart Brien, Beverly Hills obstetrician.

Art Directors Open 2nd Annual Exhibition at the City Museum

Commercial Illustrators' Debt to 'Ivory Tower' Work Is Lightheartedly Acknowledged in Shadow-Box Tableau.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Commercial art's constant borrowing of fine art's innovations is a major theme of the second annual City Art Museum exhibition of the Art Director's Club of St. Louis. The display opened last night with a reception in galleries C and D.

Comprising work of 45 club members, the show reflects the city's increasing importance as a center of the printing and advertising art industries.

Included are 35 diversified illustrations, layouts, annual reports of corporations, easel paintings in water colors and oils, drawings and one light-hearted tableau designed to emphasize artistic links between billboard and ivory tower.

This scene is presented in a three-dimensional shadow-box construction based on the museum's own Sculpture Hall. Here Carl Miller's equestrian figure of Folke Filbyter looks down, startled, at smiling viewers of vitrines, or lighted display cases, that hold advertising exhibits ranging from semi-nudes to semi-abstracts.

Other deliberate allusions to experimental easel painting are made by James Cummings, who has looked at Ben Shahn; Robert Watkins, who echoes Siegfried Reinhardt; Otto Keisker, whose deft suggestion of light effects on wet streets at night recalls the impressionists; and Aline Cunningham, who refers to Reinhardt and many other modern artists in her textual studies of fish-her scales, shapes and iridescent hues.

REV. JOSEPH CARROLL DIES; MARQUETTE SEISMOLOGIST

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 13 (AP)—The Rev. Joseph Carroll, retired director of the Marquette University physics department and a widely known seismologist, died yesterday. He was 63 years old.

Major Works of Modern Sculpture on View.

The show will run through Jan. 3. City Art Museum's famous shadow-box tableau, "The Debt to Ivory Tower," is a cringing figure of a man in a suit, looking at a group of modern artists' works.

show pieces in Sculpture Hall have been rearranged to accommodate a temporary exhibition of major monumental bronzes now on extended loan by anonymous collectors. Sculptures being exhibited here for the first time are by Pierre Auguste Renoir, Auguste Rodin, Jacques Lipchitz and others.

Renoir, best known as the painter of dozens of vibrant young nudes, is represented among the work not shown publicly here before by "Large Bather," a cringing figure of a man in a suit, looking at a group of modern artists' works.

These joyous celebrations of young womanhood now face one another across Sculpture Hall, permitting interesting comparisons. "Large Bather" is rougher, more impressionistic in finish, creating a rich interplay of highlight, half-light and shadow. This textured modeling and the gigantic scale contribute to a grandeur altogether in keeping with the magnificent setting itself.

Other works on anonymous loan, not all having their first St. Louis showing, are Rodin's "The Shadow," more dynamic, more expressive of motion than the monumentally restful Renoir; Lipchitz's angular "Bather," concerned with the cubists' "simultaneity of vision" (the suggestion that the figure is seen from several angles at once); Hans Arp's surrealist "Dream Sculpture"; and Aristide Maillol's idealized, Hellenic "Monument to Debussy."

Buckeyes Ahead.
BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 13

ROBIN FREEMAN and an Ohio State team that is expected to be an improved, though occasionally inconsistent outfit, is next for the St. Louis University Billikens. They meet at Kiel Auditorium Saturday night.

The jump-shooting Freeman's scoring feats include a 37-point effort against the Bills last season at Columbus before illness cut short his junior year on the hardwood, and he again will be the man to watch.

St. Louis attempted to fall off and double-team the chirpy 5-11 Robin a year ago, but it didn't work too well and the over-all defensive effort suffered as the Bills lost by 91-86.

This time it could be that the Bills will not concentrate their defense so intensely on the Buckeye star. They may give him his 30 or more points, say, and try to keep down the production of other Ohio players. Freeman will hit with his famed wrist-action shot anyway. He has bagged 147 points in Ohio's four games for an average of 36.8 points per game.

Ohio has other features this season, however, some that it did not have a year ago when it finished with a 10-12 record, which was 7-6 before Freeman dropped out of action. The Buckeyes have a 6-8 reserve center of promise, Mike Allen, and 4-5 sophomore forwards as starters—Ken Sidle and Frank Howard.

Don Kelley, the senior 6-3 center, and Charley Ellis, 5-10 senior guard, rounded out the early-season starting lineup as the Buckeyes won twice away from home (over Butler and Chicago Loyola) and lost to Vanderbilt before beating Oklahoma at Columbus.

"For the first time in my five years at the school, we have a strong bench," says Buckeye Coach Floyd Stahl. (N.B.—St. Louis has lost three years in a row to Ohio State.)

Approaching the Tiger Lair.
BRANCH McCracken, Indiana's veteran coach, will be the next to stalk the growling Tiger of Missouri U. in its lair at Columbia, Mo. Illinois was bitten last week.

"Missouri sure must have something because Illinois really has the horses," said McCracken, now in his eighteenth season at the Hoosier helm and hopeful of a new year that will make him forget the sad campaign of 1954-55.

McCracken was sorry he didn't have a scout on that 74-73 Missouri victory over Illinois. Indiana already had scouted Missouri in its loss at Purdue and probably didn't get as much information as it might have in the later game.

The Missouri-Indiana contest had been considered for the national college television show next Saturday, Indiana Publicist Tom Miller said, but when arrangements couldn't be made, the telecast assignment went to Washington U. of St. Louis vs. Illinois at Champaign Saturday. The Bears, meanwhile, play Canisius at home tomorrow.

Speaking of the network college games, Miller said the Big Ten office claims that surveys show the collegians have an audience four times that captured by the professional games.

"The excitement of the college crowds adds to the show, I suppose," Miller suggested.

Pro and Con.
THE viewpoint changes on pro versus college basketball, depending upon where you happen to be.

In New York, there isn't any doubt that the professional games have stolen the show from the colleges at Madison Square Garden. The Knickerbockers, for instance, will average about 900 spectators per game. The colleges have dropped off considerably and the crowd for the St. Louis U.-St. John's game in a doubleheader the other night was announced at 7245.

New York's entertainment-seeking transients obviously now go for the playing excellence of the professional game, and it isn't noticeable if the colleges are doing much to try to regain that particular spot in the sports sun.

In fact, there was another move away from college basketball in Madison Square Garden the other day when the Atlantic Coast conference voted to restrict its member teams (including high-ranked North Carolina State) to regular-season competition and N.C.A.A. tournament play.

This was a slap at the New York college-operated National Invitation Tournament.

Haddix, Here, Agrees Pavilion Screen Will Aid Cards' Pitchers
Harvey Haddix agrees with Frank Lane, the Cardinals' new general manager, that reinstalling the pavilion screen at Busch Stadium will be a psychological boost for Redbird pitchers, "particularly right-handers."

Explaining that left-handed hitters have more difficulty pulling southpaw pitchers ordinarily, The Kitten said, personally, he hadn't been bothered by the screenless home-run target this year.

Haddix, 30, married just last Saturday to the former Marcia Williamson of Springfield, O., which is close to his family's farm at South Vienna, O.; came here for a checkup by Dr. I. C. Middleman, Cardinal team physician. At times in the past season Haddix complained of breathing difficulty, though he had undergone an operation last winter for removal of a nasal obstruction.

Billikens Dash, Drive Brilliantly Inside Indiana Defense

Historic 86-to-75 Victory in Big Ten

By Robert Morrison
OF THE POST-DISPATCH STAFF.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Dec. 13—A glue-fingered, ball-hawking, driving and cutting band of Billikens met the enemy in Big Ten country and the enemy finally was theirs.

"I can't remember the last time any St. Louis University team won on a Big Ten court," said veteran Trainer Bob Bauman after the Bills' masterful 86-75 victory over Indiana here last night.

The years have been long in Blue and White since for Bauman, even if he doesn't look it, and his time at St. Louis U. goes back to the 20s, long before Coach Eddie Hickey came on the scene.

But this was a Hickey victory as well as a Billiken triumph—carefully planned and brilliantly maneuvered when the going got tough.

St. Louis, though young with sophomores, was rated a 50 per cent better team than it was a year ago and it was busting to prove that it had a possible Big Ten contender before a shrill, pounding crowd of about 10,000 in the Hoosier field house.

At the finish, however, the Bills had repulsed a second-half Hoosier drive, Indiana had suffered its first setback after two convincing victories, and St. Louis rolled on with a 4-0 unbeaten record.

"We had an excellent scout report for one thing," said Hickey, praising his new assistant, D.C. Wilcutt, one of Hickey's first Billiken athletes eight years ago, "and we were prepared for Indiana's aggressive type of ball."

High Praise From Hickey.
"We knew if we could hold the ball well enough against that type of play, we might break it down and I think our boys got inside against Indiana better than any St. Louis team has against any opponent in the last three or four years."

That was the story so far as the mechanics were concerned as darting Harold Alcorn, with 22 points, Grady Smith with 20 and fast-moving sophomore Jack Milmitt with 19 showed the way.

What Hickey didn't bring up, however, was that it was a ball game in which fouls against his top men developed an emergency in the Indiana second-half flashback and that was only overcome by the coach's conservation of his best manpower.

Joe Utek, reserve center who had played little this season, and Milmitt started the second half, and many precious minutes passed before Hickey was forced to return Capt. Jim McLaughlin and Al Serkin to action.

Mack had three first-half fouls. So did Serkin, who made Archie Dees show his sophomore greenness on occasions.

Hoosiers Took 67-66 Lead.
Dees, who scored 21 points in each of two previous games, got only 14 this time. The top man for the Hoosiers turned out to be veteran Wally Choice, who was a terribly slow starter but almost retrieved the game for Branch McCracken's boys.

Choice finished with 19 points, 18 of them in the second half when Indiana came up for a 43-55 deficit at the intermission to take a brief lead at 67-66 with 7:24 left in the game.

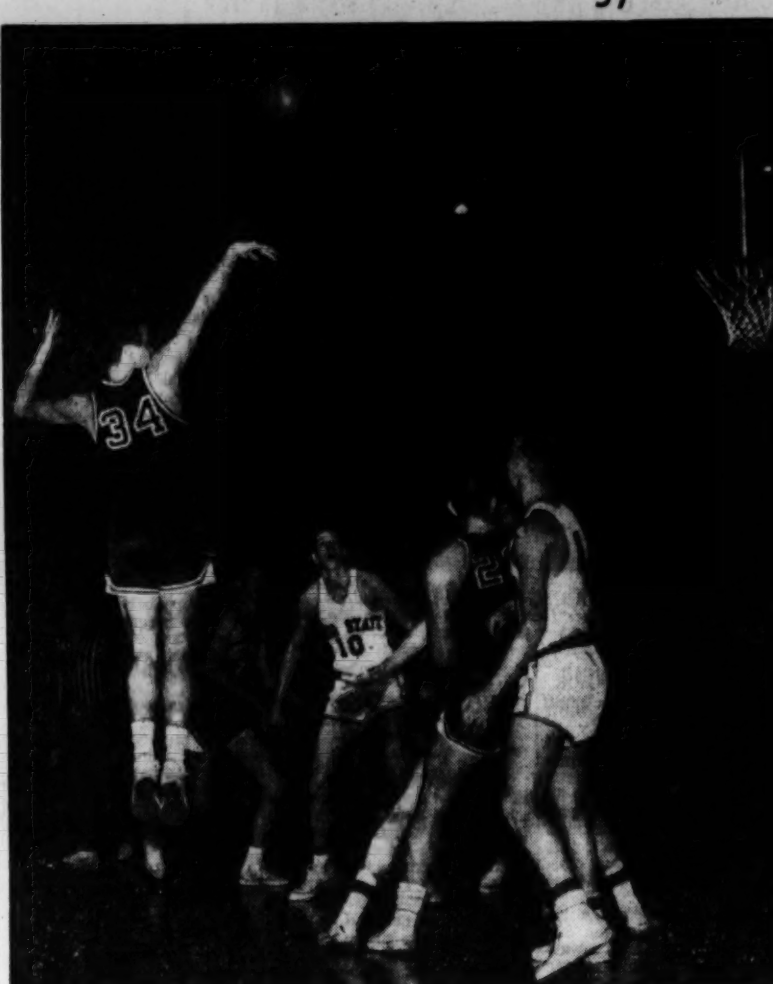

It looked like an old story. St. Louis had the cleverness, and shooting power and excellent control, but it didn't seem likely that it had the depth to stand up under the home team's assault. Serkin had four fouls called on him.

The deterioration during this phase of the game had one semi-comic incident when the Bills' Grady Smith, caught with his reflexes in gear, batted in a rebound into the Hoosier net for two points for the enemy.

The basket was credited to the nearest player, who happened to be Choice.

"I could've kicked myself," Smith said later. The wrong-way tally tied the score at 50-50, but due to Smith's renewed scoring drive the Hoosiers didn't go ahead till later.

When Indiana got that 67-66 edge, Alcorn broke out in a rash of points. Twice he drove JIMMY PECK (No. 34), Oklahoma's hustling 5-9 guard, scored early against Ohio State in their inter-league basketball game at Columbus, but the Buckeyes went on to win the game, 89-58, as fabulous Robin Freeman scored 40 points for Ohio State. BILL PINKERTON (35) and LEROY RACHER (23) are other identifiable Sooners, while Ohio State players include KENNETH SIDLE (10) and CHARLEY ELLIS (4). The Buckeyes play the Billikens Saturday at Kiel Auditorium.

THE BOX SCORE

ST. LOUIS U. (86)	INDIANA (75)
McLaughlin — 19	Chase — 14
Todd — 12	Thompson — 4
Milmitt — 11	Brown — 20
Serkin — 7	Dees — 20
Utek — 4	Brant — 16
Smith — 18	Utek — 5
Totals — 77	Totals — 75

In for baskets that counted and each time he was fouled, once Dees and once by Halie Bryant. Result was Alcorn got six consecutive points and the Bills were ahead again, 72-67. They didn't weaken much thereafter. Milmitt made seven of the remaining 14 points scored by the Bills. Alcorn and McLaughlin, operating brilliantly on board and floor, got the other two.

Once Smith paused with the ball and was called on the five-second rule when the Bills went into a stall. Because there was no previous signal by Referee Stan Machock, the Bills were surprised. In the Missouri Valley the custom is to start a count in the enforcement of that new rule. But the Big Ten doesn't do it.

Bow Hunters Kill 270 Deer in 2 Days
In Wisconsin Marsh
HORICON, Wis., Dec. 13 (AP)—Some 4000 bow hunters in a special hunt limited to their weapons, killed 270 deer during the weekend in the famous wildlife management area of Horicon Marsh.

Bulk of the kill came on Saturday, when about 2500 bow hunters moved into the 10,000-acre state hunting area, where a deer herd that was non-existent 25 years ago has mushroomed to a crowded herd of 500 animals. First-day hunters took 182 animals. Sunday, 1500 hunters accounted for 88.

The bow hunt is part of the multiple-use plan followed in the joint state-federal development of Horicon, which is better known nationally as a waterfowl hunting spot. The only human casualty of the concentrated hunt was Larry Gutchow of Sheboygan, Wis., who cut himself with a hunting knife while dispatching a wounded deer.

Palermo's Case Is Continued by Board
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13 (UP)—A hearing to determine whether fight manager Frank "Blinky" Palermo should have his license suspended because of alleged association with gamblers was continued yesterday by the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission.

Commission Chairman James H. Crowley granted the continuance after Palermo's attorney, Morton Witkin, claimed the charges were vague, indefinite and too general. Witkin said he needed more time to prepare his case.

Crowley said a new citation would be drawn against Palermo, manager of former welterweight champ Johnny Saxton, with more specific charges. The new citation was expected to be issued this month, with a new hearing some time in January.

Attorney Lewis To See Frick, Then Players

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—J. Norman Lewis, attorney for baseball players in their dealings with major league owners, is scheduled to confer today with Commissioner Ford Frick.

Club owners rejected the main demands of the players at the major league meetings in Chicago a week ago. Frick will brief Lewis on the owners' reasons for rejecting the demands.

The 16 big league player representatives are to meet with Lewis tomorrow to consider possible action.

"I am only the players' advisor," said Lewis, who refused to discuss the matter. "They make the decisions. It would be foolish for me to say they are pleased at the owners' decisions, but nobody is bitter about them."

"On the contrary, I think things are working out very well. I think the owners understand that things have to be discussed. You can't sit down and make one-sided decisions and expect both sides to be happy about it."

Five major points are at issue between the players and owners. Players want representation on the group which meets next summer to negotiate a new World Series television and radio contract. At present the TV-radio revenue is $1,000,000, of which 60 per cent goes into the players' pension fund. The new contract may run as high as $5,000,000.

Players also requested a boost in minimum salary from $6000 to $7200; sought exclusion of bonus players from the 25-player limit to make room for veterans; permission to make their own deals for participation in winter ball in Latin America; and a new tax status on players' end of the TV money which currently is subject to tax.

$80,000 Award Against State of New York in Death of Boxer Flores

ALBANY, N.Y., Dec. 13 (UP)—The New York State Court of Claims, attacking "the entire system of medical examinations" for prize fighters, today awarded $80,000 to the estate of George Flores, a Brooklyn boxer who died in 1951, five days after he was knocked out in Madison Square Garden.

The court, in an opinion written by Judge Fred A. Young, ruled that the state was negligent in permitting the fight to go on because Flores had lost two bouts by technical knockouts during the summer preceding his fight with Roger Donoghue on Aug. 29, 1951. The second of these fights was an eight-rounder at White Plains with Donoghue.

The court said medical testimony showed that the brain injury that caused Flores' death had taken place prior to the Madison Square Garden rematch with Donoghue.

Judge Young pointed out that from the date of the first fight with Johnny Cerk at Brooklyn on July 24, 1951, to the time of the Donoghue rematch, each doctor who examined him "had the power to suspend Flores or to recommend his suspension to the (State Athletic) Commission."

"The fact that this was not done is an indictment of each of the doctors and a more serious indictment of the entire system of medical examinations," the decision added.

Judge Young said "a ludicrous system of professional courtesy" had built up among commission doctors.

Canisius, Next For Bears, Has 86.6 Average

The Canisius College Golden Griffins, an N.C.A.A. tournament team, play at Bradley against the Missouri Valley Conference Braves tonight before meeting Washington University's Bears tomorrow night at the Field House at 8:15.

Coach Joe Curran's team, which bowed to Louisville University last Saturday night after previously beating Gannon and Syracuse, have scored fast and furiously with 260 points in three games and, as a result, will pose a tough test for Blair Gullion's defense. The Buffalo team's average is 86.6 points.

Canisius has back four lettermen from the team that won 18 of 25 games, including two in N.C.A.A. tournament play before bowing to national runner-up LaSalle. The Griffin veterans are Center Joseph Leone, 6-5, Guards Bob Kelly and John McCarthy, six feet, and Forward Henry Nowak, 6-3. McCarthy averaged 18.7 points in the 1954-55 season and Nowak 16.7.

For the Bears, beaten at the final gun Saturday by a Texas Western team that nosed out Creighton last night, 58 to 57, Jim Paul will be one new starter at center, Coach Gullion said.

Snow is falling over much of the Upper Mississippi Valley, the Dakotas and adjacent Canada today. Depths range from 2 to 24 inches in Minnesota, from 2 to 11 inches in the Dakotas, and from one inch in southern Alberta to 25 inches in southern Manitoba.

Much colder weather is indicated for the Upper Mississippi Valley and Manitoba tonight, with temperatures tomorrow morning ranging from zero to 10 below in Montana, and from zero in North Dakota to 10 to 15 in South Dakota. The change to colder will be accompanied by strong north to northwest winds.

Ken Boyer Is Tenth Bird to Sign Contract

Ken Boyer, whom General Manager Frank Lane predicted would "become the best all-around third basemen" now active, today was announced as having signed his 1956 contract with the Cardinals.

Boyer's signing, in addition to Walker Cooper's previous acceptance of terms and the fact that bonus rookie Lyndall St. Louis was contractually over from 1955, meant that 10 of 40 winter-roster Redbirds were reported salary-satisfied.

Boyer was understood to have received a "substantial" pay increase, to perhaps around $10,000, after a freshman season in which, though he batted only .264, he showed extra-base power. The strong-armed, far-ranging and fleet 24-year-old Alba (Mo.) athlete, who stole 22 bases, had 27 doubles, two triples and 18 homers.

Lane, praising Boyer as mentioned, disclosed that recently he had had an offer from the Cubs who offered Ransom Jackson, since traded to Brooklyn, in a proposed deal for Boyer.

Maisel, Now 65, to Scout for Orioles
BALTIMORE, Dec. 13 (AP)—Fritz Maisel was announced today as a 1956 scout for the Baltimore Orioles, marking the forty-sixth straight year he has been connected with the club.

The former great infielder, now 65, started with the Orioles as a player in 1910. He became a stockholder a short time later and retained his stock even through a six-year stretch as a player for the New York Yankees and St. Louis Browns, neither of which the Orioles played.

He rejoined Baltimore in 1918 as a player and remained part-owner until the club was admitted to the American League two years ago. He scouted for the major league Orioles last year.

Bluth, With 4973, Second to Lubanski in U.S. Match-Game Bowling

Falters Again in 'Stretch'

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—"I guess they'll just have to cut the blocks from six to four games," Ray Bluth said after he finished his 24-game qualifying start in the semi-finals of the National all-star bowling tournament here today.

With 64 of the 160 men finished with their 24 games, Bluth ranked second to Ed Lubanski of Detroit. Lubanski fired 1241 yesterday for a total of 5103 while Bluth had 1230 for 4973—a better than 207 average.

The St. Louisian pointed out that in each of the four blocks rolled to date, he has made a terrific start in his first four games and then faltered in the final two.

Tuesday, he rolled 235, 216, 244, 169, 182 and 184 as his last three games caused him trouble.

Only other St. Louis bowler on the early squads today was Billy Welu, who rolled 1172 on games of 177, 189, 200, 202, 223 and 181.

Tournament officials estimated it would take 4730-35 to make the semi-finals Wednesday and Welu appears out of it.

Lubanski, the 1954-55 runner-up to Nagy, trailed Bluth by 39 pins going into yesterday's bowling. However, he proceeded to post the high series of the tournament, 1343, while Ray slipped to 1183.

Encouraging notes from the St. Louis angle were the moving up of Dick Weber, Indianapolis-transplant member of the Buds, and Mrs. Laverne Carter.

Weber in Seventh Place. Dick jumped from fourteenth to seventh on the strength of a 1252 series, while Mrs. Carter moved from eighteenth to eighth as she rolled a 788 series.

Carter, who captured the all-star bauble in 1952-53 and repeated in 1953-54, hurled his first 1200 series of the tournament, but still lost to Nagy, 1236-1211.

Don now trails the Detroit bowler by 173 pins, 3713-3540. Carter shot 178, 197, 224, 267, 232 and 193 while Nagy rolled 190, 235, 185, 204, 202 and 220.

Marge Skelton, Indianapolis, turned in yesterday's women's high series of 849 on games of 203-258-193-193. Ninth-place Olga Glick of Chicago meanwhile set a new high for the women by qualifying preliminaries with a 278—one point better than the old record.

Marion Ladewig, Grand Rapids, Mich., held a comfortable lead in the third block of special match play by Sylvia Wenzel of Philadelphia. Ladewig led two blocks to one with pin totals of 2410 to 2323.

109 Game for Fazio. Basil (Buzz) Fazio of Detroit, registered in the lowest games in the history of the tournament when he shot a 109 game. The 109 came in the second game of a six-game block after Buzz had opened with a 233 effort.

The captain of the Strohs team started the second game with a spare in the first frame and a strike in the second. Then the roof fell in. He ran into a split in the third frame. He missed in the fourth and then had splits in the fifth and sixth.

A miss in the seventh preceded three straight splits in the eighth, ninth and tenth frames. The highest 14 scorers on 36-game totals in the men's divisions, plus Nagy and Carter, will gain match-game finals. The two 14 women scorers on 24-game totals, plus Wenzel and Ladewig, will gain the match-game finals in their division.

St. Louis scores included: Billy Welu 190-191-170-185-200-192-1172-2531; Dick Weber 245-222-168-211-173-189-1172-2531; Ray Bluth 216-190-185-255-183-197-1183-2743; Pat Patterson 213-192-194-210-201-197-1197-2500; Howard Fitter 145-177-197-200-212-183-1174-2389; Eugene Allison 197-175-192-228-188-199-1151-2412; Laverne Carter 224-189-178-228-227-171-169-675-2103; Pauline Smith 171-169-675-2103.

Rosi Lands a Lulu on Perez

Italy's PAOLO ROSI clouts LULU PEREZ of Brooklyn, N.Y., with a long right in the sixth round of their 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena in Brooklyn. Rosi gave Perez a solid beating to gain a unanimous decision.

Hickey Accuses Phog Allen Of 'Hypocrisy' Recruiting Non-Asthmatic Prep Star

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (UP)—Will (The Still) Chamberlain, the 7-foot, 2-inch Philadelphia high school star who went to Kansas University, is the central figure today in still another basketball controversy.

Coach Ed Hickey of St. Louis University started it when he accused Coach Phog Allen of Kansas of "hypocrisy" in recruiting Chamberlain. Allen retorted at Lawrence, Kan., that he "would not care to dignify Coach Hickey's remarks—people here are fully acquainted with his tactics."

Chamberlain, Jayhawk freshman who weighed more than 100 officers before going to Kansas, was the subject of a controversy in the National Basketball Association only a couple of weeks ago when it became known that the Philadelphia Warriors already had secured draft rights to him.

Hickey, in a tape-recorded interview made for the Armed Forces Radio Service and played back to yesterday's meeting of the New York Basketball Writers Association, was especially incensed because St. Louis currently is under N.C.A.A. probation for its method of recruiting "a boy from across the state in Missouri."

"I don't know what would have happened if we'd had a boy who travelled as far as Philadelphia to Lawrence, Kan., and I'm sure Chamberlain doesn't have asthma," Hickey said.

Clyde Lovellette, currently starring with the Minneapolis Lakers of the N.B.A., allegedly went from Terre Haute, Ind., to Kansas to help combat asthma.

Hickey also recalled that Chamberlain played basketball at Catskill mountain resorts during the summer—a practice Allen once denounced as the root of the college's scandals.

"I can recall the coach for whom Chamberlain now intends to play having gone on record publicly and nationally in magazines criticizing basketball play in the Catskill mountains," Hickey said.

"It seems now there's come home to roost one of the boys from the Catskills he plans to capitalize on."

"It's hard for us to understand these situations," Hickey continued.

Allen said. "It seems now there's come home to roost one of the boys from the Catskills he plans to capitalize on."

"The league is investigating, and so is each team," said Podoloff. "We are checking through the police and through the telephone company. It is rather difficult, though, if not impossible to check these calls."

So far coaches of three teams have reported receiving such calls—Charley Eckman of Fort Wayne, Al Cervi of Syracuse, and Bobby Wanzer of Rochester.

In each case, the caller asked that the score of a game be "fixed," not to go above a certain margin. Each coach reported the call to police and the players were given extra protection at the games.

Sumner High Crushes Du Bourg, 81-43, For Third Victory in Row

Claude Blackmore scored 22 points and Alfred Abram contributed another 20 as Sumner romped to an 81-43 victory over Du Bourg High's basketball team at Du Bourg's gym last night.

Tom Weathersby added another 14 to the Sumner cause as the Bulldogs registered their third straight victory of the young season. Don Gunther was high for Du Bourg with 22 points.

Across the river Aviston High lost to Mater Dei at Breese, Ill. 53 to 52.

Rosi Wins From Perez; May Get Bout With Ryff

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (UP)—Lightweight Paolo Rosi of Italy beat Lulu Perez and the New York Boxing Commission last night, and was being offered again today as an opponent for fourth-ranking Frankie Ryff.

Baldish, hawk-faced Rosi—who was rejected by the commission as an opponent for Ryff—won a lop-sided, upset decision over the nearly knocked out Perez of Brooklyn in their TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas arena.

Today Promoter Tex Sullivan said, "I'll try to match Rosi and Ryff at St. Nick's on Jan. 23."

Rosi, 27, was originally matched to fight Ryff of New York at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 23; but the commission disapproved the match on grounds that Rosi was "an unfit opponent" for Ryff. Accordingly, the rangy Italian accepted last night's bout with Perez.

Rosi, weighing 134½ pounds to Perez's 135, had Lulu on the verge of a knockout in the fifth round, and Dr. Alexander Schiff examined the battered Brooklynite in his corner but permitted him to continue.

Perez, former top featherweight contender, was favored at 6½ to 5; but he was staggered by the hard-hitting Italian in the first, second, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth. He bled from the mouth and from a gashed left brow.

Lulu suffered such a beating that he decided today to take a layoff for "six weeks or so" and go back to brick-laying to harden up.

Rosi, who bled slightly from the nose in the first round and suffered a nick on his left brow in the seventh, won the rounds votes of the three officials: 8-2, 7-3, 7-3.

Official league statistics showed that the former Louisiana State University star has tallied 415 points in 17 games for a 29-point per game average.

Lovellette of the Minneapolis Lakers, Lovellette has tallied 386 points in 18 games—one more than Pettit has played.

Center Neil Johnston of the Philadelphia Warriors, the N.B.A.'s leading scorer the last three years, ranked third with 379 points while teammate Paul Arizin was fourth with 376.

The figures also disclosed that teams are averaging 98.1 points a game this year and that one team has hit the 100 mark in 44 of the 69 games played so far. The teams scored 2812 points in 14 games last week for an average of 100.4 per team each contest.

Adolph Schayes of the Syracuse Nationals leads in free throwing shooting with 117 130 attempts for a .900 percentage while Arizin's .486 field goal percentage was tops in that department.

Pettit also leads in rebounds with 279 while Andy Phillip of the Fort Wayne Pistons is tops in assists with 143.

Callers Being Investigated. NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (UP)—The National Basketball Association is pressing an investigation of telephone calls to team coaches by persons attempting to "fix" the scores of games, but league president Maurice Podoloff believes the calls are simply the work of "crackpots."

"The league is investigating, and so is each team," said Podoloff. "We are checking through the police and through the telephone company. It is rather difficult, though, if not impossible to check these calls."

So far coaches of three teams have reported receiving such calls—Charley Eckman of Fort Wayne, Al Cervi of Syracuse, and Bobby Wanzer of Rochester.

'Chances Are Good I'll Play Next Season'—Williams

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP). ED WILLIAMS says the chances are good he will play baseball for the Boston Red Sox again next season.

Williams said during an interview yesterday that "if I were traded, I'd quit baseball immediately."

Regarding playing next season, Williams told reporters: "I can't say definitely yet, but I'd say the chances are good. I feel good and I can't see any reason why I don't play right now."

Both Bob Porterfield and Mickey Vernon, whom the Red Sox obtained from Washington recently, will help Boston but the club needs "one more good infielder," Williams said.

"I don't think we're improved enough yet," the slugging outfielder added.

Champion Saddler Gains TKO Victory Over Dave Gallardo

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13 (INS)—World featherweight champion Sandy Saddler scored a technical knockout over Dave Gallardo of Los Angeles in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round non-title fight at San Francisco civic auditorium last night.

Gallardo's handlers refused to let him come out for the seventh round after he took a bad beating in the sixth. The fight was therefore scored as a TKO in the sixth.

In the first two rounds the little Los Angeles battler was very aggressive and made the champion miss consistently. But in the third, Saddler decked his foe for a nine-count with a left hook to the jaw.

In the sixth, Saddler plastered Gallardo with lefts and rights to the face, opening a cut under his right eye but Referee Jack Downey would not stop the bout.

Win in Hoc-Soc Meet. The Fifth District team defeated the Nats, 4 to 3, in overtime and eliminated the losers from the double elimination hoc-soc tournament at the Neighborhood Association. John Hixson scored the winning goal. The Bennetts won from the Moores, 3 to 2, in the other game.

Colorado U. Knocks Iowa From Undefeated Ranks

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—What's happened to the Big 10 basketball teams?

The conference has only one undefeated school left in the pack today, a mere 13 days after the start of the college season. And that unscarred team is Michigan State, which hasn't even played yet. The Spartans get under way tonight against Southern Illinois.

Ohio State, alone, did its share for the Big 10 reputation last night, knocking off Oklahoma 89-68. The Buckeyes are 3-1 on the year.

The rest was chaos. Iowa, the nation's fourth-ranked team, and highly touted Indiana dropped from the unbeaten ranks and Wisconsin lost its third game in four starts.

The Hawkeyes, the defending league champs, were tripped up by Colorado 60-57. Indiana was set back by St. Louis 86-75 while Wisconsin bowed to strong Southern Methodist 75-62.

All this was in non-conference competition. The loop action doesn't start until Jan. 2.

In other games, Kentucky started the long road back by edging DePaul 71-69. Rice, a Southwest Conference titan, rode to its sixth straight victory, 85-60 over Louisiana State. Wake Forest whipped Virginia 82-69 in an Atlantic Coast Conference get-together. Wichita trampled Nebraska 71-46. Drake beat Kansas State 70-64. Texas A.M., under former LaSalle Coach Ken Loeffler, drubbed Tulane 85-66 and Oklahoma A.M. defeated Baylor 59-48.

Colorado, leaders of the Big 10, were also in action. The Buffaloes led by 10 points midway in the second half, but needed three points in the final 15 seconds to sew it up. They got them from Bill Peterson and George Hannan.

S.M.U.'s Mustangs, who edged Minnesota 82-81 Saturday night, had little trouble with Wisconsin after halftime. They outscored the Badgers 42-27 in the final 20 minutes with Jim Krebs doing most of the damage.

Robin Freeman, as usual, ran off with the scoring honors in Ohio State's one-sided victory over Oklahoma. The all-America guard hit for 40 points to bring his four-game average for the season to 36.8 points.

Kentucky, which normally doesn't have to come from behind to gain high national recognition or to win a game, needed Jerry Bird's basket in the final 31 seconds to nip DePaul. The Wildcats, rated only twelfth in the Associated Press poll after their defeat by Temple Saturday, were trailing by seven points with four minutes remaining.

Prolific scoring also was the order of the night in Gainesville, Fla., where Florida's Gators established a game-scoring record for the school by wallowing Tampa 110-62.

Bobo to Clear Problems Before Fighting Again

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 13 (AP)—Ex-Middleweight Champion Carl (Bobo) Olson declared flatly today he would not box again until he had "everything cleared up."

"Everything has got to be cleared up before I'll fight again, both this marriage business and the other suit," Olson was quoted as saying by Walt Daley of the San Francisco Call-Bulletin.

The other suit to which Olson referred is a half-million dollar breach of contract suit filed by Herbert Campos of Honolulu and up for trial today in Federal court here.

Daley, who wrote that he had contacted Olson by telephone "after which Olson went back into seclusion," said the former champion who was knocked out by Sugar Ray Robinson at Chicago Friday night blamed a potential divorce action for his knockout.

"I just ask one more chance, with my own personal problems cleared away, so I can think properly in there, (the ring)," Daley quoted Olson as saying.

"All this publicity. It's no good, not for me, not for Dolores (his wife). We've got lots to talk about but nothing is certain."

"When I got knocked out by Robinson I felt like a batter standing there letting a third strike go by. Really I did. My mind was thousands of miles away. He threw punches and I just looked at them."

Olson visited his wife and four children at their suburban Hillsborough home yesterday. After the visit, Mrs. Olson, who filed divorce action last month asking $2000 monthly support money and division of $200,000 in property, said she and the ex-titlist were "going to see what we can do about our own case."

Shaw to Referee.
DALLAS, Dec. 13 (AP)—Cliff Shaw, Little Rock, Ark., was named referee for the Cotton Bowl football game Jan. 2 between Texas Christian and Mississippi. The other officials will be Cliff Norvell, Memphis, Tenn., umpire; Jack Freeman, Wichita Falls, Tex., head linesman; Paul Sprayberry, Shreveport, La., field judge, and Don Rossi, Dallas, back judge.

League Needs Team.
There is an opening in the Sherman Center boys' intermediate basketball league, 18 years and under, that will play on Thursday nights. Those interested are asked to call Broszki, Forest 1-9468.

TREASURY BILLS RATE HIGHEST SINCE 1933

Yield of 2.591 for 91-Day
Paper Reminder of 'Bank-Holiday' Period.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Industrial issues clung to the minus side to tilt the bond market lower in late trading today.

U. S. Treasury securities declined in the over-the-counter market. Losses, which had been limited to 1-32 earlier, extended out to 3-32 in both long range and intermediate bonds near the close.

Standard Oil (Indiana) 3/4s lost 3/4 at 116 1/2 while Standard Oil (New Jersey) 2 3/4s dropped 1 at 90. Sinclair 3 1/4s declined 2 1/2 at 128 1/2.

Rails generally were mixed. The Treasury's short-term borrowing costs rose for the fifth consecutive week and now are the highest since the "bank holiday" period of 1933. The latest issue of 91-day Treasury bills sold at a price equivalent to an average yield of 2.591 per cent. Last week a similar issue drew 2.471 per cent.

Dealers in bankers' acceptances hiked their rates by 1/4 percentage point yesterday for the second time this month and the tenth time this year. The new bid and asked rates are 2 1/2-2 3/4 per cent for 30-to-90 day paper; 2 3/4-2 1/2 per cent for 120-day paper; and 2 3/4-2 3/4 per cent for 180-day paper.

ODD LOT TRANSACTIONS. NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd lot transactions by principal dealers on the exchange for Dec. 12: Purchases of 239,906 shares, sales of 226,174 shares including 1462 shares sold short.

NEEDED TAX SOURCES HARD TO FIND

By Sam Dawson

TAX HUNTING will keep state and local governments busier than ever next year just trying to catch up with their own growth.

It's getting harder to find a new tax source or to squeeze more out of an old one, while the way the legislatures and city fathers spend the money they collect or borrow, and the purposes they favor, are likely to set off more debates than ever.

Much of the taxes they do collect will have been earmarked in an earlier era for some specific purpose important then. This will leave the fathers next year wondering where to find the money to provide the new services demanded by their mushrooming populations.

The state and local governments are falling farther behind, and therefore borrowing more to make up the deficit—in financing through taxes the new schools, highways, water and sewer facilities that the rush to the suburbs and the mechanization of America has made their people desire and expect.

IN SEEKING NEW TAX SOURCES THE STATES and local governments must compete with the Federal Government. The United States Census Bureau reporting on 1954, its latest figures, gives federal tax collections as $62,500,000,000 and state and local taxes as 11 billion each. The states are spending money much faster than that, and their debts are mounting. The Census Bureau reports that in mid-1953 state and local debt totaled 34 billion dollars. By mid-1955 this had soared to more than 43 billion. The Federal Government, curious about the trend, asked the state and local units about their building plans for the next 10 years and found that those already visualized came to almost 28 billion.

CITIES AND THEIR SUBURBS, WHERE THE demand for services is the loudest, are having the most trouble keeping even. The United States Chamber of Commerce, studying the tax problems of 481 cities with population of 25,000 or more, reports that in 1954 they spent almost six billion dollars while taking in less than six billion (only four billion of which was directly from their own tax collections), and borrowing two billion to make up the deficit. Half of total state tax collections in the nation are already earmarked, the Tax Foundation (a non-profit organization in New York which acts as a private watchdog) reports today. In 24 states, the legislatures had "a voice in the expenditure of less than 50 per cent of fiscal 1954 tax collections."

THE FOUNDATION HOLDS THAT "the fact that legislatures exert control over only 50 cents of each dollar imparts an unhealthy rigidity to state budgets." Delaware was the only state that didn't earmark some part of collections. In Rhode Island only 6 per cent was dedicated to some purpose, but this ranged up to 89 per cent in Alabama. More than 75 per cent of tax revenues were earmarked in Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Texas. Highway user taxes—gas tax, vehicle registration, drivers license—are earmarked for highways at least in part in all states except Delaware and Rhode Island. In 32 states the entire proceeds go to the highways.

KEFAUVER SAID TO BE READY TO RUN NEXT YEAR

dent organization. More talks and meetings are on the agenda in Los Angeles tomorrow before Kefauver flies back to Washington tomorrow evening.

Picks Campaign Manager. The lanky Tennesseean, who thought long and hard before deciding to make the race again, has picked as his campaign manager F. Joseph (Jiggs) Donohue, former District of Columbia commissioner.

Just what part Kefauver's pretty wife, Nancy, will play in the campaign has not yet been determined. Mrs. Kefauver is said to have been one of the influences against making a second try at the White House, but when the pressure mounted from various parts of the country, Kefauver clubs have been organized, for example, in every county of California, even though most of the party leaders have announced their support of Stevenson. Kefauver hit at these politicians at a news conference shortly after his arrival here. As the campaign gets under way he will seek to exploit further his lack of "organization." One assistant put it this way: "We're going to say that nobody is for him except the people."

That it will be a "gloves off" campaign for Kefauver was made evident by his actions here so far. Not only did he attack local party leaders for attempting to freeze him out of the state preferential primary, as he saw it, but he also went after Sherman Adams, the President's White House assistant, in a talk in San Francisco yesterday before the state Commonwealth Club.

Adams on Water Control. In a talk to the National Watershed Congress, he said that the concentration of the control of water in the Federal Government would mean control ultimately of the land and consequently the whole economy.

Kefauver said Adams is wrong, that only the Federal Government with its great resources can find adequate new sources of water to meet growing needs. He proposed, as he has before, that sums of money be spent on research to purify the waters of the sea for domestic and agricultural purposes.

He also assailed the stand of the present Administration on public power, including the Hell's canyon controversy. The Government is not the partner of the people, as contended by the present regime; it is their servant, he said.

On his return by plane from San Francisco, Kefauver had cocktails with Edwin W. Pauley at the Pauley home, and then was the guest of honor at a dinner of the Associated Plumbing Contractors Association.

Kefauver made the trip to San Francisco and return in Pauley's private airplane after he was forced to cancel reservations with a commercial airline company because of a strike. He and Pauley, wealthy oil man and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, were on opposite sides of the fence in Washington on the Pauley-supported tideland reclamation bill. But Pauley, nevertheless, appears to favor the Kefauver candidacy far more than Stevenson's. Stevenson also opposed the tideland bill, which cost him considerable support in the South.

Rumors persist that both Pauley and former President Truman will bolt Stevenson for either Kefauver or Harriman. In his talk to the plumbing contractors, Kefauver said that huge defense outlays will not always be available to bolster the tide of prosperity. Were it not for these defense expenditures, he said, the economy already would have reacted adversely to the plight of the farmers. He urged standby programs of public construction "which could take up where the defense program lets up, if and when that does occur."

Attack on Mergers. He also expressed sharp criticism of the growing number of mergers in this country, saying that if business and industry are to operate effectively, competition must be kept vigorous. "The fact is that an excessive concentration of wealth and industrial capacity serves to destroy competition," he declared. "Any industrial combine which has outgrown the influence of competition possesses a power which may in time be exercised in such a selfish way as to grievously harm our nation's economy."

WOLFSON MEN GET U.S. EASES HOME SCULLIN STEEL POSTS MORTGAGE CREDIT

Two Associates Named to Board of Directors Replacing St. Louisans.

Two associates of Louis E. Wolfson, Florida financier who recently bought a substantial interest in Scullin Steel Co., were named to the company's board of directors yesterday, replacing two St. Louisans who withdrew.

The new directors are Alexander Rittmaster, New York financial consultant, and Elkin B. Gerbert of Jacksonville, Fla. They succeed W. B. McMillan, president of Hussman Refrigerator Co., and Howard I. Young, president of American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co.

It was Rittmaster who announced in New York last month that he, Wolfson and Wolfson's brother, Cecil, an insurance executive, had purchased more than 60,000 of Scullin's 169,213 outstanding shares of stock.

A full 11-member board of directors for the St. Louis steel concern, which is at 6691 Manchester avenue, will be elected at the company's annual stockholders' meeting April 9.

Directors serving now, in addition to Rittmaster and Gerbert, are E. F. Judge, Thomas W. Pettus, W. J. Monahan, J. E. Nolan, W. H. Bisby, Emmet T. Carter and Joseph H. Grand, all of St. Louis, and William A. Titus of New York. The board has one vacancy.

Judge is president of Scullin Steel Co. and chairman of the board. Pettus is executive vice president. Monahan and Nolan are vice presidents.

At a meeting yesterday, the directors declared a fourth quarter dividend of 30 cents a share and a year-end extra dividend of 60 cents. The action increased the 1955 dividend to $1.80 a share, compared with $1.80 in 1954.

CONVERSION OF A.T.&T. ISSUE PROVES ESPECIALLY HEAVY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. reported today that about $250,000,000 of its latest convertible debentures—close to 40 per cent of the total issue—has been received for exchange into common stock.

Tuesday was the first day the issue of $637,165,000 of 3 1/2 per cent convertible debentures was eligible for conversion.

The first-day total included $168,000,000 of debentures left with the company for conversion on the earliest possible date. The 40 per cent conversion rate substantially exceeded any other first-day total for any of the company's preceding issues, a spokesman said.

The "hold for conversion" feature was formally introduced by A.T.&T. in 1953 issue of convertible debentures. At that time, 118,000 individual subscribers used it. For this issue, however, there were 295,000—more than half the total subscribers—who chose to use it.

U.S. WONDERING HOW MUCH AID TO GIVE RUSSIANS

looked at this as a simple business proposition. And even though the State Department knows well enough that in dealing with the Russians nothing is a simple business proposition, they gave in to the extent of issuing five of the 10 visas, even though there was no sign that the kind of agreement wanted was forthcoming from the Russians.

Just before I left Moscow, a Pravda editor assured me that this was definitely a forerunner of things to come. And this, of course, is the crucial point.

"You Americans," the Pravda editor said, "don't like to be accused of having an Iron Curtain. In that case, just how long can your government be negatively with visas for Soviet citizens who want to visit your country? If Americans themselves invite us, how long can your government prevent our engineers from visiting your factories, our scientists from seeing your laboratories? How long could your business men remain indifferent if we offer them good deals?"

Trips Carefully Planned.

The other side of the coin was also visible in Moscow. As an American official put it: "We ought to be very clear on one point: for the West, trips to Moscow satisfy the curiosity. The great majority of our visits will be by private tourists. For the Russians, on the contrary, the trips to the West are carefully planned and designed to fit an important Soviet economic need.

"For the truth is that it is we who have the scientific and industrial know-how to offer. The few interests in Russia that might interest us (such as how they can get so much thrust out of their jet engines) are scarcely things they are likely to show us or that we would ask to see. Certainly there are benefits in exchange, but let's not fool ourselves as to who is getting the best of the deal. We believe in ourselves and in competition with the Russians.

"I believe in it even though I realize they are a far tougher—and far different kind of competitor than the American people suspect. But there is also such a thing as fair competition. What I want to know is this: Is the West in general and America in particular going to permit the Soviet Union to pick our technological brains without getting something of comparable value in return?"

September, when the board shut down on loans which would have expanded housing credit. The latter restraint was eased a trifle later in the fall.

McAllister said today's action was the result of continuous study and discussion with the financial community since the credit-tightening measures were taken.

The member institutions have had considerable success in reducing their loan commitments. McAllister said. In September they had construction commitments totaling $2,400,000,000. By the end of this month these old commitments will have been reduced to about $600,000,000. In the meantime new commitments totaling about one billion dollars will have been made.

"Therefore, the total commitments outstanding on Jan. 1 will be about $1,600,000,000 approximately the same volume as at the end of last year," he said.

"Savings and loan associations have thus financed most of the $1,600,000,000 reduction in prior commitments out of their own resources."

Moroccans Ready to Divide Foreigners' Household Goods

They Are Picking Out What They Want in Anticipation of Day Outsiders Will Be Forced Out.

By ERNIE HILL

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio Copyright, 1955.

TANGIER, Dec. 13—The Moroccan natives are busy among themselves dividing up the worldly possessions of the Americans, French and British who live here.

At this point, they are only picking out what they want. They have been informed by their political leaders that when Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef gets around to it he is going to kick all foreigners out of French Morocco, Spanish Morocco and even the International Zone at Tangier.

The young servant girl of an American family here came to the lady of the house and asked for a "chit" on the electric refrigerator.

"What do you mean?" said the American. "What kind of a chit on the refrigerator?" "Well," said the girl, "when you are forced to leave hurriedly one night, I would like to have a note from you saying that the refrigerator is mine. If I don't have the chit somebody else will get it."

Believe French Will Go. Most of the Moroccans are convinced that most of the French will be gone and they will take over running the government in 60 days—about Feb. 1.

Extremist leaders of Istiglal, the Independence party, are encouraging this belief.

Two young taxicab drivers here in Tangier told me that they were going to Rabat around Feb. 1 to get government jobs to replace the French administration.

"Our new government," one said, "will need young people who can speak two or three languages. Many of us are going to Rabat."

The French administrators are talking about relinquishing authority gradually over a period of 10 to 15 years.

Rumor Veils Will Be Discarded. The women of Morocco are excited. The rumor is out that they will be allowed to discard the face veil in two months.

Princess Lala Aicha, daughter of the Sultan, has long ago thrown hers away and is encouraging Moroccan women to do the same.

Religious leaders and some of the less modern menfolk are opposed to such radical social changes. They fear it will lead to other sorts of Western emancipation and will alter the whole fabric of life in North Africa.

But secretly the women are happy with the prospect. Those who work in the homes of Europeans never wear veils indoors, only when they go out.

It may be many years before they do away with the flowing jellabah (hooded full-length cloak) which is in many ways suited to the climate, but the veils are destined to go with the new spirit of independence in Morocco.

What infuriates young Moroccans is the lack of educational opportunities afforded them by the French.

Education is available until they are 11 or 12 years old. Only those from influential families who are co-operative with the French can go on.

"I saved Mother a long trip with a 70¢ Long Distance call"

"Mother was coming for a visit when I found out that Jim had to leave unexpectedly on business and wanted me to go with him. Well, in a matter of minutes I was telling Mother about it on Long Distance and we were arranging another time for her visit. When I hung up, I thought to myself, 'One inexpensive telephone call surely saved us all a lot of trouble and confusion.'"

YOU'LL SAVE MONEY by making station-to-station calls. You simply tell the operator you'll talk with anyone who answers. The call will then be charged at the lower station-to-station rate. Why not arrange regular dates for Long Distance visits with out-of-town friends and relatives? That way, you can call station-to-station and be sure of reaching them at a substantial saving.

When you can give the operator the number you're calling, service is twice as fast. An up-to-date list of out-of-town numbers is the key to placing calls by number. Ask the telephone business office for a free Blue Book... handiest place to keep your list of out-of-town numbers.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH WITNESSES HEARD

They Testify Against FTC
Charge of Beer Price
'Squeeze' in 1954.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13—A Federal Trade Commission examiner heard testimony today and yesterday intended to refute an FTC complaint that Anheuser-Busch Inc. engaged in discriminatory price cutting on its beer and that the alleged practice tended to create a monopoly or destroy competition within the meaning of the Clayton act.

Eleven tavern or package store owners and several officers of the St. Louis brewing firm have testified or will testify in Anheuser-Busch's behalf. The weight of their testimony is against the FTC allegation that, in twice lowering the price of its so-called "premium" beer in the St. Louis area in 1954 to match the price of "local" beer, the St. Louis firm was trying to "put the squeeze" on products of other St. Louis breweries.

The complaint said that Anheuser-Busch engaged in the price-cutting in the St. Louis area only, while maintaining its regular premium price in other areas of the country, thus discriminating against dealers outside St. Louis.

Tavern owners and package store owners testifying yesterday and today were from towns in Illinois and Missouri who had not been given the Anheuser-Busch price cut. Nevertheless, they testified, during 1954 sales of Griesedieck Brothers beer fell off.

The FTC attorneys had charged that a fall-off of G. B. sales in the St. Louis area was the result of the Busch price cut. The testimony of the witnesses was intended to show that G. B. sales fell off during 1954 in areas where there was no Anheuser-Busch price cut, and to establish other reasons for the drop.

Testifying or scheduled to testify were Robert Beaman, Decatur, Ill.; John L. Henry, Jefferson City, Mo.; John M. Womach, Peoria, Ill.; H. F. Thompson, Carthage, Mo.; Kenneth Blair, Peoria; Ray Wilkes, Joplin, Mo.; Richard E. Curran Jr., Springfield, Ill.; Paul Diemer, Jefferson City; Paul Morgan and Ralph Filinsky, Decatur, and Junio Florini, Sullivan, Ill.

Attorneys for Anheuser-Busch, who failed on a motion for dismissal of the complaint last Oct. 4, have contended that the price reduction, coupled with more aggressive sales methods, was intended only to bring the firm a greater share of the market, and not create a monopoly. The result of the Anheuser-Busch moves has been solely to make St. Louis a more competitive beer market, they said.

U.S. AND CHIANG STAND TOGETHER, BRUCKER ASSERTS

TAIPEI, Dec. 13 (UPI)—United States Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker said today the United States and Nationalist China would stand together "to face the Communist conspiracy."

In an interview before departing for Hong Kong, he praised Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as "a man of great patriotism and personal integrity" who was "keen and alert to problems up to now and master of the situation." He said Mme. Chiang was "intelligent beyond words" and "a great helpmate to the Generalissimo."

"The two typify the continued resistance to Communism," he added. Brucker spent two days touring Nationalist defensive installations, including Quemoy island. He said he talked with Generalissimo Chiang for about 45 minutes in "the greatest intimacy."

He said, "We pledged mutual endeavors to work out our mutual problems. Together we stand to face the Communist conspiracy."

FHA HERE HAS NO PROBLEM WITH SUBDIVISION LIENS

The Federal Housing Administration office here has not "at this time" been advised by its Washington headquarters of any problem in approving loans on homes because of conflict with trust provisions in some subdivisions, an FHA spokesman said today.

He said his agency apparently is not in the position of the Veterans Administration, whose regional office here has held up final approval of about 60 applications for GI loans for prospective home-buyers in St. Louis county because of such a conflict.

The VA's action came after the agency learned that some subdividers had stipulated that special assessments constituted a first claim against property, with higher priority than mortgage payments. The FHA official said mortgages insured by his agency must have first claim status when signed, but added he did not know whether any subsequent claims might take precedence.

KING SAID OFF FOR HOME AFTER 17-DAY TOUR OF INDIA

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 13 (AP)—King Saud of Saudi Arabia took off for home today after a 17-day tour of India.

He was cheered along the 12-mile route to the airport and artillery units fired a 21-gun salute.

During his visit, King Saud is believed to have sought Indian support in his Bahraini dispute with Britain.

SUIT AGAINST HER HUSBAND BEFORE MARRIAGE UPHELD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13—The Missouri Supreme Court yesterday ruled that a wife may sue her husband for damages for personal injuries suffered before their marriage. It was the first time the court had been called on to rule in such a case.

The opinion, written by Supreme Court Commissioner Cullen Coll and concurred in by the judges of division No. 1, was handed down in a case appealed from Circuit Judge

James W. Davis's court in Livingston county, who had dismissed the damage suit filed by Miss Joann Hamilton against Frank Fulkerson two days before they were married.

Miss Hamilton filed suit against Fulkerson Aug. 10, 1954, for personal injuries allegedly suffered while she was a passenger in Fulkerson's automobile. On Aug. 21, 1954, she and Fulkerson were married. Fulkerson's motion to dismiss the damage suit was sustained, and Mrs. Fulkerson appealed.

The supreme court concluded that Missouri law should be construed as authorizing a wife to maintain a legal action against her husband for a personal injury by him prior to their marriage.

KILLS WIFE, 3 BABIES AND IS SHOT TO DEATH

Estranged Husband Cornered in Drug Store at Dallas, Tex.

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 13 (AP)—An estranged husband killed his wife and three small children early today and was wounded fatally himself four hours later when police closed in.

Whether Buford V. Calhoun, 32 years old, was killed by a police bullet or died from a single shot he fired himself was not determined immediately.

Police Sgt. C. E. John said Calhoun was cornered in a telephone booth at a drug store and fell with a bullet in temple. Calhoun later died in a hospital.

About 50 customers in the big store screamed and ran. John said he fired at least four times. Killed were Mrs. Mary Calhoun, 33; and her son, Bobby Lynn, 19 months, and her twin daughters, about 6 months old. All had been shot through the head.

Critically wounded was John Warren, 19, Mrs. Calhoun's son-in-law by a previous marriage. He was unable to tell officers what happened.

Calhoun was shot in a telephone booth as he was talking to the home of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Raymond Laprade. He told her he had killed his wife and children with a pistol and a saber. Officers were waiting at Mrs. Laprade's home in hopes he would appear there and Police Lt. G. M. Dowdy asked to talk to Calhoun.

While Dowdy kept Calhoun engaged in conversation for about 20 minutes the call was traced to the suburban drug store and officers rushed there. They found Calhoun still in the phone booth.

"A boy-like knife" was found in the front seat of Calhoun's automobile, parked near the drug store.

Relatives said Mrs. Calhoun left her husband about a month before the twins were born. "He had threatened the entire family and everybody was keeping guard against him," one said.

They said he also had custody of three other children by a previous marriage and that threats had been made against these also.

590 DETECTIVES ARE SUBPENAED IN WIRETAP INQUIRY

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13—Subpenas were issued yesterday for 590 licensed private detectives in New York state to produce all their records dealing with wiretaps or eavesdropping they may have performed since Jan. 1, 1953.

Tapping a phone without permission of the subscriber is illegal and is punishable on conviction by a sentence of up to two years.

The subpenas were issued by New York Secretary of State Carmine G. DeSapio, whose office licenses private detectives, the bulk of them being in the metropolitan area.

DeSapio announced a crack-down on illegal methods used by detectives following the conviction last Thursday of John G. (Steve) Broady, for wiretapping and conspiracy.

"By the time we are finished with this investigation," DeSapio said yesterday, "We hope to know everything there is to know about the operations and practices of private detective agencies, and we will thereby be able to recommend legislation to assure maximum protection for the public."

ST. LOUIS REVENUE OFFICIAL TO GET SPECIAL TRAINING

Martin L. Webb, assistant chief of the Intelligence Section, Internal Revenue Service here, has been chosen for special training in Washington for a key position in the service, Ernest M. Flinn, local director of Internal Revenue, announced today.

Webb, who served in Military Intelligence in World War II, is one of 12 Internal Revenue employees selected for special training in the new "executive development program." The examination was taken by 75 candidates and final selection followed personal interviews.

The 12 men chosen will receive a six-months' course at Internal Revenue Service headquarters. Those completing the training successfully will be promoted to assistant district director or some other key post, it was said. Webb departs for Washington Jan. 9. He is 39 years old and lives with his wife and two daughters at 1807 Eton lane.

WISCONSIN BANK ROBBED OF $3000 BY HOLDUP MEN
MERTON, Wis., Dec. 13 (AP)—Two men held up the Merton branch of the Pewaukee State Bank today and escaped with about $3000, but a bank official says he thinks he hit one of the fleeing robbers with a rifle shot.
Assistant cashier Fred Staus said he fired three shots from a deer rifle at the red and cream Pontiac getaway car, and that the vehicle swerved violently after one shot.
The holdup was the second within a week for southern Wisconsin. Six days ago a man held up the First National Bank of Lake Geneva and fled with $74,293.

DULLES LEAVES FOR PARIS NATO MEETING
Hopes West Can Reach Agreement on Soviet Policy 'Zigzags.'
WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, leaving for North Atlantic Treaty talks in Paris, said today he hopes the Western allies can reach agreement on the significance of "zigzags" of Soviet policy in recent months.
Dulles and a group of his chief advisers left by plane from Washington airport.
Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury George W. Humphrey, who also will attend the council meetings, left for Paris in another plane shortly after Dulles took off.
Dulles is reported ready to urge new moves in pooling economic and cultural resources as well as more military co-operation by the 15 Atlantic pact members.
Principal purpose of the meeting is to provide an annual review of progress the Allies have made in building land, sea and air defenses against any surprise Soviet attack.
During his stay in Paris Dulles also plans to meet privately with British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan to review Middle Eastern problems. He also plans to obtain specific information about the problems British Prime Minister Eden wants to discuss with President Eisenhower during their White House conference starting Jan. 30.
The East-West deadlock at Geneva, Dulles believes, will serve as new impetus for the 15 allies to stick together, reversing what he saw as a growing trend toward disunity prior to the Geneva conference with the Russians.
One of the problems Dulles was reported anxious to review was the pace of West German rearmament. He is somewhat dissatisfied with this, believing Chancellor Adenauer's government could and should move more quickly to build up the 250,000-man army which is counted upon to bolster European defense.

Council of Europe Leaders Call for Unity.
PARIS, Dec. 13 (UPI)—Foreign ministers of the 14-nation Council of Europe met today and adopted a resolution calling for a unified Europe and charging that Russia's plans for ending the cold war were "insufficient" and "dangerous."
The ministers unanimously endorsed the western position taken at the unsuccessful Geneva conference last month. Neutral Ireland and Sweden were among the nations approving the resolution.

KENTUCKY COUNTY NEGROES ASK FOR SEGREGATED SCHOOL
HENDERSON, Ky., Dec. 13 (AP)—Henderson county Negroes have expressed a preference for a school of their own over integration of the races.
A petition which Negro leaders said represented 95 per cent of the county's Negro school patrons was presented to the Board of Education last night. It said:
"We are not sure that integration is the answer to our educational problems in Henderson county. We are a minority race and would have little control over the education of our own children."
"Therefore, we petition the Henderson County Board of Education to build and maintain one consolidated school for the colored students of Henderson county with adequate classrooms, cafeteria and gymnasium for the first nine grades."
"Give us a first class school with adequate teachers of our own race and we will send our children to it."

50-YEAR JURISDICTION ROW BETWEEN 2 UNIONS SETTLED
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch, Copyright 1955.
CHICAGO, Dec. 13 — A dispute raging more than 50 years, over which union is to have jurisdiction over meat department employees in retail stores, ended today.
A five-year agreement was signed by officials of the Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen and Retail Clerks International Association, both former AFL affiliates, but now AFL-CIO affiliates.
George Meany, AFL-CIO president, was named arbitrator in the agreement with sole power to decide disputes.
The agreement gives the Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen exclusive jurisdiction over all employees working in meat departments of retail stores.
The retail clerks have jurisdiction over all employees who handle and sell other merchandise or do other work incidental to sales. That includes cashiers and checkers.
BUS RIDE FINE FOR STUDENTS BUT HARD ON THEIR PARENTS
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 13 (AP)—Bus Driver Harold Quire got the Christmas spirit yesterday to the delight of 43 Valley High School students—and the chagrin of their parents.
He not only bowed to pleas of his passengers to stop for refreshments, but said he would foot the bill. When he was delayed, he invited the students to call home and relieve their parents. Some did and some didn't.
When the delay was extended, Quire, due to pick up some grade school students, had to take the high schoolers with him. More delay. Frantic parents called police. An investigation finally disclosed all students delivered.
School and police decided against disciplinary action. The cost to Quire was $17.34 for sandwiches and soft drinks.

That's a question that prospective homebuyers are asking more and more frequently in these days of 25-year and 30-year mortgages.
But it's a question that needn't concern you for a moment. You can be sure that your home will be sound, livable and attractive years and years after your mortgage has been paid-off and forgotten—if it is built of unit masonry.*
And through the years you'll have a home that affords all-weather protection and requires minimum maintenance—a home you can be proud of.
Naturally, unit masonry homes have greater resale value than those built of less durable, substitute materials.

GERMAN SAYS U.S. OFFICER DIED IN SOVIET CAPTIVITY

BERLIN, Dec. 13 (UP)—A German repatriated from a Soviet prison camp said today that an American army officer arrested by the Russians in East Berlin died in captivity. He identified the officer as Lt. Henry Robinson, son of a United States Army colonel. American authorities said no officer named Robinson was on their list of missing men.

However, Heinz Bornschein, the former prisoner, said the officer died in a hospital at Orska, in White Russia, of tuberculosis contracted through a starvation diet and mistreatment. He said the American had been lured to East Berlin by a Bulgarian double agent who provided Robinson with intelligence information and who also secretly worked for the Soviets.

'NEUTRAL SEX' SAID TO GROW AMONG OLD

Doctor Tells of Experiments With Aging Persons — Describes Treatment.

A third sex — the neutral gender comprising men and women whose sex glands fail to secrete adequate hormones during the aging process — is increasing in numbers, Dr. William H. Masters said in Chicago today at the fourth annual clinical meeting of the American Academy of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Dr. Masters, of the Washington University School of Medicine faculty, said he is more convinced than ever of the existence of the neutral gender. He and his associates have been experimenting with aging people for more than 10 years.

Although there is a marked variation among individuals, he told about 1200 specialists at the meeting, some women reach the neutral gender stage at the age of 50 and some men not until they are 70. The average is about 60. Persons in this stage have passed the reproductive age and suffer from senile physical and mental symptoms.

Among the symptoms, he said, are lack of interest in their appearance and in their own cleanliness and a distinct lack of the usual characteristics of their sex.

The injection of a combination of male and female hormones, testosterone and estrogen—a 20 to one ratio of the former over the latter—brought significant improvement in 75 per cent of the persons treated by Dr. Masters and his associates, he said.

Laboratory experimentation, he said, has demonstrated that in the human endocrine system's battle against the aging process only the sex glands lose their potential. The pituitary, thyroid and adrenal glands and the pancreas have a reserve function in elderly persons.

Aging persons treated with the testosterone and estrogen combination he said, generally reach a plateau of improvement, but evidence of mental and physical senility returns when treatment is stopped.

Dr. Masters' experiments will take another 10 years, he said, before accurate clinical evaluation can be given.

He stressed that hormone treatment would not increase the life span by a single day, but aging persons so treated have "demonstrated conclusively that they are better adjusted and equipped to face the exigencies of the physiological aging process" and "are infinitely better psychologically oriented."

HOMICIDE VERDICT IN AUTO DEATH

Driver Hit When Making
U-Turn in One-Way
Lane Is Named.

A verdict of homicide naming Henry C. Warner in the death of Charles G. Lake, killed Saturday in an automobile collision on U.S. Highway 40 beneath the Spode road overpass, was returned by a St. Louis county coroner's jury today.

The jury recommended that Warner, who lives at 3205 Woodson road, Breckenridge Hills, be held for prosecution. Warner refused to testify at the inquest on advice of counsel. He was released on a $2500 appearance bond.

Lake's eastbound machine collided with Warner's car, which was making a U-turn in the one-way portion of the highway, divided by a grassy strip at that point.

Police said Warner would have been going the wrong way in the eastbound lane if he had completed his turn, unless he drove across the divider.

Lake, a service station attendant who lived at 2604 Indiana avenue, suffered head injuries and was dead on arrival at County Hospital. He was 26 years old.

DOG RETURNS 93 MILES TO MASTER'S OLD HOME

KAMAISHI, Japan, Dec. 13 (AP)—A mongrel dog named Chiri-san walked 93 miles to his master's old home and had to be shipped back here today.

Chiri-san was sent here to his master's new home, along with the household goods, from Morioka, 93 miles away. The master took a later train, but Chiri-san was not there when he arrived.

Twelve days later the dog showed up in Morioka at his old home and had to be shipped again to the new one.

REDS FREE FIRST GERMAN P.O.W.S IN TWO MONTHS

CAMP FRIEDLAND, Germany, Dec. 13 (AP)—Seven hundred and two German war prisoners arrived here from Russia today—the first to return to West Germany since the Russians ended their two-month freeze on prisoner repatriation.

They said they were on a Germany-bound train last October when the Soviets stopped them east of Moscow, telling them Chancellor Adenauer "had failed to meet his obligations."

Up to then, the Russians had released 3863 prisoners and 1973 civilians of the 9626 they had promised to send home in return for a West German promise to establish diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

The prisoners' reports tended to confirm speculation that the return of prisoners was halted because the Russians wanted Adenauer first to follow through on his agreement. Repatriation was resumed two weeks ago after the Bonn government approved Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin as Soviet ambassador to West Germany.

COURT RULES ORDINARY MAIL CAN BE SENT BY AIR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13 (AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals says the Post Office Department is within its legal rights in sending some ordinary first class mail by air.

Some western railroads had challenged the department's experimental program, under which it sends ordinary mail by air between major cities when the airlines have space for it.

The airlines are paid a much lower rate for such mail than for air mail.

The court, in a unanimous opinion yesterday, said the program "is within the statutory authority of the Postmaster General and is authorized by law." A lower court had ruled the Postmaster General has the right to experiment, but would exceed his authority if the experiment were prolonged.

PREDICTS COURSES IN HOW TO LISTEN

Communications Society
Secretary Addresses Hospital Meeting.

Executives in future years will undergo specific training in "the skills of listening" so they can understand what their employees are complaining about, it was predicted today at a luncheon meeting at Hotel Jefferson attended by representatives of Missouri hospitals.

Donald E. Bird, executive secretary of the National Society for the Study of Communications, said listening was "the neglected link in the chain of human communications."

He said most training programs stress the art of speaking but neglect the need to improve listening habits. "Without listening," he said, "there is no communication. There may be obedience and compliance, but these attitudes will not be based upon understanding and mutual respect."

He spoke at a joint meeting of the Missouri Hospital Association of Medical Record Librarians, and the women's auxiliaries of the hospital association, which are holding their annual conventions here this week.

Bird, who is professor of speech at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., said hospital executives should listen attentively, sympathetically and critically to their colleagues, employees and patients.

This is essential, he said, in order to complete "the cycle of communication" which is necessary for the effective performance of duty.

He said executives should judge their listening habits by asking themselves questions about their attitudes toward employee complaints.

Such questions, he said, would include: "Do you encourage employees to make suggestions and complaints? Do you listen even if you do not like employees who make complaints? Do you listen even if you do not like the employee?"

H. H. Heather of Fidelity Is Victim—Woman Hurt in Vandalia Collision Dies.

Henry H. Heather, of Fidelity, Ill., was killed last night when his automobile struck a bridge on a country road near Jerseyville, Illinois State Police reported.

Heather, 51 years old, was dead on arrival at Jerseyville Hospital. Fidelity is about 18 miles north of Alton.

Mrs. Denver Hutton, of Columbia, Ill., died yesterday in a hospital at Vandalia of injuries suffered Sunday in a collision on U.S. Highway 40 near Vandalia.

Mrs. Hutton, 43, was a passenger in a car driven by her husband. The automobile skidded into a tractor trailer driven by Clarence R. Deardeuf, Oklahoma City, Okla., Illinois state police said. The husband suffered minor injuries.

Lester E. Kullmar, 6249 Elchberger street, a Globe-Democrat printer, was seriously injured last night when two automobiles collided at Grand boulevard and Shenandoah avenue.

He suffered a broken right arm and head injury. Kullmar's car collided with an automobile driven by Edmond Stegall, 3249 Minnesota avenue, police reported. Stegall suffered minor injuries.

George W. Lang, a retired roofer, 9 Shurite road, Kullmar's car collided with an automobile driven by Edmond Stegall, 3249 Minnesota avenue, police reported. Stegall suffered minor injuries.

Police said the driver of the car was Mrs. Norma J. Staaken, 9833 Meadow View drive, Meadow Brook division. She told police she lost control of the automobile when turning a corner.

Plate glass was shattered in the front window of the car. The car was damaged at 2601 Woodson road. Lang suffered a compound leg fracture and multiple cuts.

MAN WHO HIRED KILLER GETS 20 YEARS TO LIFE

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Martin Yamin, former Baltimore police magistrate, got a sentence of 20 years to life today for a Brooklyn murder in which he hired the killer.

It was the minimum which could be assessed. Although the sentencing judge said he deserved no mercy, Yamin apparently got the lowest term because he entered a plea of guilty to a second degree murder charge.

Yamin was permitted to enter the plea after his trial on a first degree murder charge had proceeded briefly.

Kings County Judge George Joyce set the penalty for Yamin in the Feb. 13 killing of Joseph Aronowitz. The state claimed that Yamin had engineered an attempted policy bank holdup in Baltimore by Aronowitz and two other men, and then, fearful that Aronowitz would testify against him, had Aronowitz killed.

The actual killer was August Robles, who was shot to death by New York police a few days later.

The contract for construction of the building was awarded to the John Kaciak Building & Construction Co., 4487 Hunt avenue, on a low bid of $507,916. Other awards were made to Natkin & Co., 5555 Manchester avenue, $47,392, for plumbing and drainage; Chapleau Electric Co., 4905 Parker avenue, $23,495, for electrical work; and Windson Heating & Air-Conditioning Co., 4185 Manchester, $61,950, for heating and ventilating.

Funds for the new structure, to be located on Wells drive west of the present reptile house, will come from the 1944 bond issue. The present elephant house will be used for the zoo's big cats and the old elephant house will be remodeled for an addition to the bird house.

FORMOSA PLANES DESTROY 5 RED CHINESE GUNBOATS

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 13 (AP)—Nationalist Chinese fighter-bombers destroyed five Red Chinese gunboats in an attack on a concentration of craft presumably bent on attacking Nationalist-held Matsu island. Air Force headquarters said.

The Air Force said patrol planes discovered the Red concentration in Luyuan bay and two formations of fighter-bombers were sent to the scene. The planes met intense anti-aircraft fire, the air force said. An informed source said the gunboats were between 500 and 600 tons each.

District Judge Grant L. Bowen granted the decree behind locked doors with only Haymes's Miss Hayworth's lawyers present.

She sent a deposition by air-mail from Paris, France, where she has been staying with her children for several months. Haymes is filling a singing engagement in Las Vegas.

In the deposition, she charged Haymes with extreme mental cruelty, adding that it was "entirely mental in character."

Her divorce decree will be mailed to her.

ARBITRATION IS RULED OUT IN 5TH AMENDMENT FIRING

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—A State Supreme Court justice has ruled against efforts by the New York Newspaper Guild to arbitrate the dismissal of a New York Times copyreader who pleaded the Fifth Amendment before a Senate committee.

In granting a Times motion to stay arbitration, Justice Felix C. Benvenista pointed out that the Times unit of the Guild local had voted "in no uncertain terms" against arbitrating the dismissal of Melvin L. Barnett.

Benvenista said the Guild local could not invoke arbitration over the Times unit vote of 337 to 285 against it. If it did, the Guild would be acting not as agent for the Times employees, but in spite of them.

The Guild said the decision would be appealed.

Barnett was dismissed by the Times last July after invoking the Fifth Amendment in refusing to tell the Senate Internal Security Committee whether he had been a Communist in the 1930s.

DETROIT NEWSPAPERS FACE DEMANDS BY MORE UNIONS

DETROIT, Dec. 13 (AP)—Detroit's newspaper strike was in its thirteenth day today amid growing indications that none of the six printing craft unions would return to work without new contracts.

Contracts between the six and the Detroit Newspaper Publishers Association have expired, but only the AFL-CIO stereotypers officially are on strike.

When stereotypers walked out Dec. 1, following expiration of their contract, other craft unions respected their picket lines and the morning Free Press and the afternoon Times and the News closed down. Combined the three dailies have 4500 employees and a daily circulation of around 1,400,000. Presidents of the six craft unions declared after a joint meeting yesterday "we are in agreement in our feelings concerning the strike."

GALES DRIVE 2 BRITISH SHIPS ON SANDBANKS OFF ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 13 (UP)—Wintry gales drove two British ships onto treacherous sandbanks off the coast of England today but both ships later were refloated. They were the coaster Tichborne and the 200-ton trawler Thracian which ran aground off Dover and great Yarmouth.

Earlier United States Air Force planes had bucked heavy winds and rains over the English Channel in a pre-dawn search for the Tichborne.

Strong winds lashed the sea approaches to the British Isles for the second day. Winds and snowstorms harassed transportation and communications ashore. Forty-three counties were affected by the blizzard which swept down from the north over the weekend. Several villages in the highlands of Scotland and northern Yorkshire were isolated.

Mrs. Rosie Lee Lewis, Negro, 1000 block of North Leffingwell avenue, whose automobile struck a parked machine Oct. 21 in the 2200 block of Franklin, was fined $100.

NEW OPINION TAKES ISSUE WITH DALTON

Says Only Courts Can Decide Legality of Assembly's Interim Committees.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13—The question of the Missouri Legislature's authority to form interim study committees to function between formal sessions of the General Assembly will remain undetermined until such time as the courts rule on it, the Legislative Research Committee was told yesterday in a legal opinion.

The opinion, written by former State Senators R. Jasper Smith of Springfield and A. L. McCawley of Carthage, took issue with an opinion handed down last summer by Attorney General John M. Dalton, which held that six of 21 interim committees created in the legislative session last spring were illegally constituted and raised a question as to the legality of others. Smith and McCawley said Dalton's opinion was in error.

Members of the Legislative Research Committee took no action at yesterday's meeting, members expressing the opinion that they had no authority to institute legal action to obtain a court ruling.

Dalton's opinion held that a single house of the Legislature might take by resolution create interim committees and that the Governor's approval must be obtained on joint, or concurrent, resolutions creating such committees.

"Without a court interpretation, the Attorney General's opinion stands as a rule and guide for the administrative officers of the state government," Smith and McCawley said. Thus, committees held improperly constituted by Dalton would be unable to obtain any expense funds.

Among suggestions made by Smith and McCawley as to courses of action the Legislature might take was that a general statute be enacted authorizing interim work by legislative committees, providing for their selection, setting out their method of reimbursement for their expenses and spelling out their authority.

However, they said the basic objection to this is that "there is no final determination of the problem and the integrity of the General Assembly as a co-ordinate branch of the government still is subject to question."

Production of steel joists will be resumed at the plant tomorrow, the company said. None of the 150 employees in the plant when the fire started was injured.

WAGNER DEFENDS COMMISSIONER IN PRISON INQUIRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—Mayor Robert F. Wagner said yesterday "there has never been any question of wrongdoing" by Commissioner Anna M. Kross in the handling of the correction department's $500,000 commissary fund.

A city-wide prison investigation was started after eight guards at Tombs prison recently were accused of peddling whisky, food and special privileges to prisoners for high fees. The investigation was extended to include all funds handled by the department, including the commissary fund. The investigation disclosed that four of Mrs. Kross's relatives were on city payrolls, three of them in her department.

Wagner said in a press conference "so far we know of no violation of any law in the use of commissary funds. If there was any violation it was done in the spirit of trying to help the situation."

He said he intended to discuss with Commissioner Kross her reasons for placing relatives on the department payroll. He said he had heard the relatives in question were doing "good jobs."

CARONDELET AREA DEVELOPMENT URGED

City Plan Head Advocates Industrial, Residential Rehabilitation.

Redevelopment of the Carondelet area east of Broadway for industrial purposes and rehabilitation of the residential sections of Carondelet west of Broadway were advocated last night by William Colbion, director of the City Plan Commission.

Colbion told residents and business men in the area that industrial redevelopment along the riverfront could be undertaken with assistance of the Land Clearance for Urban Redevelopment Authority and that the city agencies and funds would be available for assistance in neighborhood rehabilitation.

A mixture of industrial, residential and commercial properties occurred in the Carondelet area because many of these were developed before zoning regulations became effective in the city, he said.

Because the area is an aging one, he said, a general community improvement effort should be undertaken by the citizens who can call upon city and federal agencies for help.

Some of the problems of the area were illustrated with slides. Slides showing the improvements made in the Hyde Park and Cherokee areas were also displayed.

Colbion spoke before the monthly meeting of the Carondelet Improvement Association at the Carondelet Branch Library.

WILLIAMS WANTS NEXT PRESIDENT TO STUMP INDIA

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP)—G. Mennen Williams, Democratic Governor of Michigan, proposed yesterday that the next president of the United States "stump India in support of democracy."

He told the Palestine Economic Corporation in a speech: "The Russians today are stumping India, exporting Communism."

"The next President of the United States should make it his business to stump India in support of democracy, shouting out not only to the whole of that great country, but to the whole world, our willingness, yes, our eagerness, to participate against the Russians or anyone else in a great and glad contest for living hearts rather than the mangled bodies of men."

"India is one of the great, as yet undecided battlegrounds between Communism of the East and democracy of the West. Much of Asia and the East looks to see whether India and democracy, or China and totalitarianism is the best answer to their problems."

A Rebuttal Case for Dandelion, Against the Rose

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Dec. 13 (AP). WHEN I nominated the dandelion as America's national flower about a year ago, there was some ruckus. The proposal seemed to step on a lot of green thumbs. It was almost as if I'd done something indecent, such as suggesting selling kindergarten children into slavery.

HAL BOYLE

Gardeners all over the land wrote in to denounce me as an idiot and the dandelion as a pest. Most of them agreed that if America picked a national flower it ought to be the rose. Well, that seemed like a copy cat idea if I'd ever heard of one. Too many countries already have the rose. But I shut up on the subject, since what I don't know about flowers would fill a mighty big vase.

TODAY, HOWEVER, I'd like to present a rebuttal to all the thorny rose lovers in the form of a letter written by Win Haynes of Greenville, Pa. Here is what Reader Haynes wrote:

"I have been in the nursery business for a number of years and for the life of me, I can't see why anyone would have anything to do with a rose. If you get near a rosebush it goes at you like a wildcat. If you approach it wearing rawhide gloves, thereby avoiding bloodshed, not to say poisoning, it will do its best to give you rose fever or shake off some of its loving insects on you.

"In spite of all the praises sung for it, it is evident that the rose has no use for man. It even refuses to grow for him except on its own terms.

"YOU CAN'T just stick it in the ground and forget it. It has to be planted just so. Let it get 'wet feet' and it curls up and dies. If you want it to bloom, you have to feed it like a horse, and it is finicky about its food.

"It has almost as many diseases and enemies as the human race. If you are fortunate enough to start with a rosebush that doesn't already have black spot, you can bet it will rust right out and get some kind of fungus.

"If, through constant dusting and spraying with the whole catalog of fungicides, contact sprays and poison sprays you get your plant to live long enough to produce a bud, let three drops of rain fall and the next day there is a cluster of aphids (green plant lice) all over the bud.

"Again, let it survive that hazard and the thrip may prevent the bud from opening. Once a bud opens into a flower, a myriad of rose chaffers, Japanese beetles and other bugs stand poised like vultures to devour it. Roses? Pfah and prut!

"BUT TAKE the dandelion. Brother, there is a flower! You not only don't have to plant them, you have to be a genius not to have them if you possess a square foot of soil. They will be with you pronto even if they have to make the journey by air.

"The dandelion has but one enemy—man. It is thought they furnished the first green food that Adam ate after being banished from Eden. Man has been eating them ever since, but they have continued to multiply and cover the earth.

"There is no race suicide in the dandelion family. Hardy? Man, there just ain't no harder form of life. Poison 'em. Dig 'em out and burn 'em. Do anything you like if you don't like 'em. But next spring when the snow melts, look out your window and it's dollars to doughnuts a friendly little dandelion blossom will be right there smiling at you.

"Besides brightening your soul with its sunny bloom, the dandelion furnishes a virtual pharmacopoeia all by itself. The old family doctor book says it is used for liver complaint, constipation, jaundice, dyspepsia, cholera, a moment while I go get me a dandelion, please, drops and blood purifier.

"If you had told your audience half of that, the dandelion would have been named the national flower by acclamation."

Well, now I have told you. The defense rests.

The Bossy Wife

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MANY a mother, after having bossed her children around for years, finds herself out of a job when they leave home. If her temperament is such that she has to boss someone in order to be happy, she'll start in on her husband.

Mr. Q. is in this position: "Since the last of our three children married and moved away," he reports, "my wife spends most of her time trying to boss me. Of course, she tells me it's all for my own good, and so forth—the same line that she handed to the kids when they were in kindergarten. I don't know how to escape!"

THERE'S A STORY, Mr. Q., about a man whose wife died and who later asked another woman to be his wife.

"I'd marry you," the letter said, "but I understand that your wife, before she died, ordered you never to remarry. Is that true?"

"Absolutely," said the widower, as he banged his fist down on the table, "and I'm showing her right now who's boss around here!"

I don't want to suggest this as your only hope, Mr. Q., but a man in your position should act "gently but firmly" to protect his rights. Sometimes a wife goes to such extremes as—well, I remember a case in which the wife had a lock put on the telephone, so her husband couldn't make an outgoing call unless he asked her for the key and gave a full explanation. You think he might make his calls by going to the pay phone at the corner drug store? Don't fool yourself. He couldn't get out of the house unless he took her along.

MY GUESS is that you'll need a neutral third party, a marriage counselor, to help you work out a program, Mr. Q. You should make a list of various responsibilities, agree on how they are to be divided, and agree that each will mind his own business and let the other manage the activities assigned to him. This ought to be done in any home, in fact; division of labor and recognition of "spheres of influence" prevents a great deal of bickering.

"Sir," said the father, "come down here my child die."

"Go thy way," said Jesus, "thy son liveth."

Something in the tone of the words must have made the officer, who had come to the prophet as a last recourse, suddenly believe, for he mounted his horse and rode away. Night had fallen, the new day had commenced (for among the Jews the day began at night-fall) when, at some distance along the road, the officer was met by his servants who had come out to bring him the news. The boy lived.

He asked them at what time he began to get better. "Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him," they said. It was the hour when Jesus had spoken.

The authority which His hearers had recognized in the teaching of Jesus was thus displayed in acts far exceeding the capacity of ordinary mortals. He had power to cure the physical ills of the human body—power also over those stronger ills which seize and enthrall the mind and soul. In that same Sabbath day at Capernaum, Jesus encountered once more, in a terrifying scene, the adversary whom he had defeated in the solitude of Djebel Quarantal.

He went to the synagogue, to comment on the scriptures, and an expectant silence held the assembled hearers. Suddenly there was an uproar, the meeting was riven by shrieks and cries and a man flung himself forward.

The incident as recorded by the evangelists has the unmistakable air of veracity. We do not exactly know what the phenomenon was, but it was a duel between the force which possessed the wretched man and spoke with his voice and the Messiah, majestically calm, who held His ground and conquered.

"Let us alone, what have we to do with thee," howled Satan through the mouth of his victim. "Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God."

The last words were designed to cause scandal and confusion; the ineffable name of God might never be pronounced and the pious Jews present would rend their tunics in horror. But Jesus restored order with a few words. "Hast thou peace and comest out of him?" With scream and an appalling cry, the possessed man collapsed. It was all over; the unclean spirit had to submit.

But when on the following day the crowd began to gather again front of the house where He was staying, they sought Him in vain. Before dawn, while it was still dark, He had risen, and gone away into a solitary place. We can gather, from St. Mark's account, the discomfited surprise of Simon Peter and his associates at finding the Master gone.

They ran to look for Him. In a lonely valley by the lake—calm and a clear, pale gray in the early hours of the morning—Jesus was praying.

"All men seek for thee," cried Peter and he would have asked Him why He went away.

BUT Jesus would not go back. For the time being, Capernaum had received enough. He had to go further afield. He had to extend the field of His mission, to give to all men the essentials of His truth.

The second act of His public life was about to begin. As soon as the task which He had undertaken was due to expand, it was necessary for Jesus to have helpers. Even the events of the first few weeks, rapidly as they had developed, had required a definite appeal to His companions.

The men whom He had called on the banks of the Jordan had become His friends; they had to be consecrated as His disciples, by His will and by their own acceptance. Later on they were to be raised to the apostolate; they would be invested by Jesus with supernatural powers and the Church would be born.

St. Luke places the appeal for disciples at this juncture, which seems logical because by His teachings in the synagogues and by the miraculous manifestations, Jesus had shown those who were to follow Him the nature of the work to which they were to be called. God does not seek to take men by surprise and the Church has always

'Jesus and His Times'

Christ Starts His Teaching

He Speaks in Synagogues on Return to Galilee; Miracle at Cana

By Daniel-Rops

Third installment condensed from the book, "Jesus and His Times." It describes how Jesus began to teach and to heal, and how He gathered His disciples about Him.

JESUS began his teaching immediately on his return to Galilee. He was to find his largest and most fervent audiences among these good, simple peasants and fishermen, robust morally and physically.

Unlike their neighbors, the Samaritans, the Galileans had remained faithful to the Law since the Maccabean conquest of their country. They were less sophisticated than the people of Judea and capable of greater enthusiasm. They did not refine endlessly on theology and observance; they had a simple love of God.

Jesus at first taught in the synagogues. The fact is worthy of note. We are accustomed to think of Him, as so often represented in art, preaching always in the open air, on the slopes of the fair hills above the Lake of Galilee, or in the bow of a boat addressing crowds assembled by the lakeside. St. Luke, who especially recounts this period in detail shows us clearly the method first adopted: to a Jew of that time wishing to promulgate a religious doctrine, the synagogue was the natural place.

Indeed no better place could be found than this venerated spot, at once a house of prayer and a school of disputation, where faithful Jews from all the country round resorted every Sabbath.

St. John tells us that He preached at Cana, where the first miracle was performed. St. Luke gives us a vivid sketch of His preaching at Nazareth. He rose, mounted the dais, unfolded the long roll of parchment upon which the text was inscribed, then choosing certain verses as if by chance, handed the scroll back to the hassan. Then He began His commentary "and the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened upon Him."

The audience was unaware of the immediate relevance of the text that He had chosen.

"The spirit of the Lord God is upon me; because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord."

They did not suspect, these rough peasants from the Galilean hills, that He, who dressed them was that Emmanuel whom Isaiah had foretold and that He brought a message of peace more profound than that of any Sabbatical Year, when, once in 50 years, the fields were untiled, the vine received their liberty, and lands taken for debt reverted to their original owners.

Then He "came down" into Capernaum. The Gospel term is exactly descriptive.

WE can follow the road today; it is about 10 hours' journey from Nazareth to the shore of the lake, traveling along the level plateau still we see framed in the black basalt of the gorge of Arbel, the perfect lake below, its intense blue set off against the copper-colored shore. Once we have crossed the pass the landscape changes, the road skirts the lake closely and it is dominated by steep heights. But the lapping of the clear water, the gentle motion of the sails and the clusters of lemon trees and flowering oleanders make up a less forbidding picture.

Capernaum was not a Hellenistic city like Tiberias or Julia, the neighboring towns. It was essentially Jewish although it was open to trade with foreigners from the rich lands of Hauran or from Phoenicia. Its narrow streets exuded a strong odor of fish scales, thrown out on the ground, curiously mixed with the smell of roses and orange blossom. The houses were built of dark basalt except the synagogue, which rose up among them in gleaming white limestone.

St. Mark gives a summary of his words: "The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye and believe the Gospel."

Repentance and faith were indeed the bases of His message but He must have said many other things, for we read in the same account that they were astonished at His doctrine for He taught them as one that had authority, and not as the scribes.

There were other things being done at the same time which displayed the power of the new prophet in a way which was singularly disturbing.

The story of the miracle at Cana two months earlier had been banded around the countryside. One of Antipas's officers, whose son lay mortally ill in Capernaum, appealed to Jesus to cure him.

At the time Jesus was at Cana, perhaps on His way to the lake shore. The officer set out to meet Him; he must have started early, risking the heat, and he must have been on horseback, since it was about the "seventh hour" that he reached the little hillside town. He besought Jesus "to come down and heal his son" as if it were necessary for Him to come down when the divine power could so easily manifest itself over seven leagues.

A man of greater faith would have said, "Only say the word," and Jesus realized it. "Except ye see signs and wonders ye will not believe."

"Sir," said the father, "come down here my child die."

"Go thy way," said Jesus, "thy son liveth."

Something in the tone of the words must have made the officer, who had come to the prophet as a last recourse, suddenly believe, for he mounted his horse and rode away. Night had fallen, the new day had commenced (for among the Jews the day began at night-fall) when, at some distance along the road, the officer was met by his servants who had come out to bring him the news. BUT Jesus would not go back. For the time being, Capernaum had received enough. He had to go further afield. He had to extend the field of His mission, to give to all men the essentials of His truth.

The second act of His public life was about to begin. As soon as the task which He had undertaken was due to expand, it was necessary for Jesus to have helpers. Even the events of the first few weeks, rapidly as they had developed, had required a definite appeal to His companions.

The men whom He had called on the banks of the Jordan had become His friends; they had to be consecrated as His disciples, by His will and by their own acceptance. Later on they were to be raised to the apostolate; they would be invested by Jesus with supernatural powers and the Church would be born.

St. Luke places the appeal for disciples at this juncture, which seems logical because by His teachings in the synagogues and by the miraculous manifestations, Jesus had shown those who were to follow Him the nature of the work to which they were to be called. God does not seek to take men by surprise and the Church has always frowned on sudden vocations dictated solely by emotions. It is only to the soul fortified by preparation and knowing its way and its strength that the spirit gives the supreme impulse.

The Gospel shows us this supreme impulse at work when it tells us how Simon, Andrew, John and James were claimed by Jesus with sovereign and imperious authority, how they obeyed and followed him, leaving everything. Three of these four already knew Him well, since the days at Bethsaida and the return to Jerusalem. The fourth, James, probably met Jesus when he made his first journey to the shores of the lake and he had certainly heard his brother John speak of Him.

But none of them had so far decided to renounce everything; to set out upon that other-worldly adventure where He who saves His life must lose it. This is shown by the fact that they had left the enthusiastic crowd importuning the Master and had gone back to their work, mindful of their material interests. They would be mending their nets, perhaps, with the mesh pegged out on the ground just as we can see men doing by the shore of the lake today, and at night they would go out fishing. All this had not yet been renounced for God.

There are plenty of places today along the Basque coast, around Sicily, even still on the Lake of Galilee, where nets, boats and fishing tackle are shared by a group of associates like Zebedee, his sons and their friends.

EVEN their method, which produced the miracle, is still followed: the chabak or castnet, the circular net which is rolled round the left arm while the right arm launches it with a deft motion which drops down the weighted end. We can still see the fishing smacks slowly leaving the shore with the mahattan, vertical nets weighted at the bottom and pegged out with floats at the top, to entrap the shoals of fish which will come in during the night. The lake then as now, abounded in fish.

Many of the species of fish were very much like our own, perch, carp and a variety of pike; others were most exotic, like the coracinus which carries its young in its mouth, and which is still called "St. Peter's fish" or "the weeping fish" because it is supposed to bring ill-luck. There is also that curious fish which is supposed to come from the Nile by subterranean or submarine channels. In the bay between Ain-Taghah and Magdala, the junction of the ice-cold waters brought down by the Jordan when the snows of Mt. Hermon melt and the hot springs of Capernaum discharged by seven estuaries produces conditions analogous to those in Newfoundland, a great accumulation of plankton and hence an abundance of fish.

We can imagine the scene. It will be early morning, for by the end of May midday is too hot for work. Beneath the white mist, which has barely lifted, the lake is pale gray and the wash of the fishing boats a silver shimmer. The mountains are a cobalt blue which reflects the oncoming of the sun.

The weary fishermen return in bad humor. They have fished all night but since there was no moon and they could not observe the passage of the shoals, they had tapped on wood in order to frighten the fish into the nets. The result, however, had been disappointing.

Simon, who had just brought back his equipment on one of the larger vessels which could carry 15 people sighted Jesus from the shore of the lake. The Master, to escape the press of the crowd clamoring for Him to speak and to work miracles, had got into a small boat from which He could address those assembled on the shore. Perhaps he noticed the depressed state of his friend, worn out by a night of fruitless labor.

He called out to him, "Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught."

As an experienced fisherman Simon felt that this was useless: "Master, we have toiled all night," he said, "and have taken nothing." But such was his confidence in the speaker that he added: "Nevertheless at Thy word I will let down the net. When the net was let down, such a vast quantity of fish was enclosed in it that the mesh broke, and they had to signal to the other boats to come and help them.

The figure of Simon Peter is highlighted throughout this episode. Peter is the owner of the ship; he receives and carries out the orders of Jesus. From the very beginning, when the Church is symbolized, he is the leader, the one who directs and conducts. Yet for all that, faced with the miracle which was to determine his acceptance or rejection for ever, he was troubled and staggered out: "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord."

His companions were in the same case. We can sense their awareness of the pressure of great events, of the surrounding of the hour of decision. There is no doubt that they knew, by and large, what the Master expected of them; they had had plenty of time to reflect on what they had seen and heard. It was not true, as was subsequently advanced by the pagan philosopher Porphyry and the Emperor Julian the Apostate, that they were driven blindly to their resolve. But it was a difficult hazard and the stakes were high.

"Fear not," said Jesus to Simon, "from henceforth thou shalt catch men." And when they had brought their ships to land they forsook all and followed Him.

Once more the force which Jesus gave out had accomplished something which seems contrary to nature; the sudden transmutation of these humble fishermen was as miraculous as the catch of fish which swarmed at the bottom of the boat. For these men were henceforth to be invested with a colossal task and they were not to be found wanting.

Upon them, simple and unlettered as they were, was to rest the newborn Church. These were not men like any others. They were, in a word, the first of the saints.

TOMORROW: The Sermon on the Mount.

(From the book "Jesus and His Times" by Daniel-Rops. Copyright 1955 by E. P. Dutton & Co.)

words must have made the officer, who had come to the prophet as a last recourse, suddenly believe, for he mounted his horse and rode away. Night had fallen, the new day had commenced (for among the Jews the day began at night-fall) when, at some distance along the road, the officer was met by his servants who had come out to bring him the news. The boy lived.

He asked them at what time he began to get better. "Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him," they said. It was the hour when Jesus had spoken.

The authority which His hearers had recognized in the teaching of Jesus was thus displayed in acts far exceeding the capacity of ordinary mortals. He had power to cure the physical ills of the human body—power also over those stronger ills which seize and enthrall the mind and soul. In that same Sabbath day at Capernaum, Jesus encountered once more, in a terrifying scene, the adversary whom he had defeated in the solitude of Djebel Quarantal.

He went to the synagogue, to comment on the scriptures, and an expectant silence held the assembled hearers. Suddenly there was an uproar, the meeting was riven by shrieks and cries and a man flung himself forward.

The incident as recorded by the evangelists has the unmistakable air of veracity. We do not exactly know what the phenomenon was, but it was a duel between the force which possessed the wretched man and spoke with his voice and the Messiah, majestically calm, who held His ground and conquered.

"Let us alone, what have we to do with thee," howled Satan through the mouth of his victim. "Art thou come to destroy us? I know thee who thou art, the Holy One of God."

The last words were designed to cause scandal and confusion; the ineffable name of God might never be pronounced and the pious Jews present would rend their tunics in horror. But Jesus restored order with a few words. "Hast thou peace and comest out of him?" With scream and an appalling cry, the possessed man collapsed. It was all over; the unclean spirit had to submit.

But when on the following day the crowd began to gather again front of the house where He was staying, they sought Him in vain. Before dawn, while it was still dark, He had risen, and gone away into a solitary place. We can gather, from St. Mark's account, the discomfited surprise of Simon Peter and his associates at finding the Master gone.

They ran to look for Him. In a lonely valley by the lake—calm and a clear, pale gray in the early hours of the morning—Jesus was praying.

"All men seek for thee," cried Peter and he would have asked Him why He went away.

BUT Jesus would not go back. For the time being, Capernaum had received enough. He had to go further afield. He had to extend the field of His mission, to give to all men the essentials of His truth.

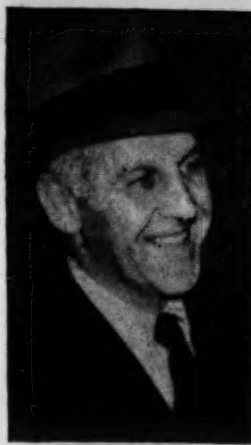

The second act of His public life was about to begin. As soon as the task which He had undertaken was due to expand, it was necessary for Jesus to have helpers. Even the events of the first few weeks, rapidly as they had developed, had required a definite appeal to His companions.

The men whom He had called on the banks of the Jordan had become His friends; they had to be consecrated as His disciples, by His will and by their own acceptance. Later on they were to be raised to the apostolate; they would be invested by Jesus with supernatural powers and the Church would be born.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

STARS generally reflect an inner light which represents a glowing dedication to their art. This shimmer, frequently illustrated by Paul Muni, reached another glittering peak when he resumed in "Inherit the Wind" after losing an eye. This was high personal drama in the great trouping tradition. . . . Muni's devotion to the theater has always been intense. Following the marriage ceremony, Paul congratulated his bride with a hearty handshake and dashed away to the theater. He didn't see her for two weeks. Their honeymoon began when she joined him on a tour in the show. Curiously, Muni's talent has given more pleasure than he has gained. He once confided: "I haven't had quite the boot that others get from success. I'll never want to be a star. I'm still happier in the audience than on stage."

WALTER WINCHELL

THE STAGE-STUCK are enchanted by the fiery fragments of stardom. Not many aspirants are aware that stardom is never a permanent triumph. It's a victory you must constantly fight to retain. The wisest people never stop learning. . . . Ruth Gordon, who enchanted reviewers in "The Matchmaker" hit, informed an interviewer: "I like to listen to the audience that sits out there in the dark. I like to feel it out. I want to learn how to bend it to the purposes of the play. If there happens to be a lot of coughers, I know I won't be able to rely on my usual timing. I'll have to wait for a quiet moment, and then sneak in the punch line."

A RECURRING Broadway story—from the shadows to the lights—may seem hackneyed and mawkish. Nevertheless, it is constantly engrossing for the same reason Cinderella has endured. . . . Our Heroine is an actress who was among the countless hopefuls a half-dozen years ago. She had minor roles in eight straight flops. The future seemed shaped in the image of her despair. Then the great bleakness was supplanted by the Big Break. Today, Julie Harris is one of the theater's golden girls.

Several mag biographers have been stunned by the fact that Julie leads a placid, normal existence. She is a happy wife and mother who skips the simple lunacies frequently associated with glamour. . . . John Van Druten, the dramatist, has observed: "On stage she is a flame, but as she leaves it turns into a wisp of smoke."

IT HAS BEEN SAID that the mediocre are always at their best. The titans of artistry—whose creative efforts are often measured by the pinnacles of mountains—occasionally stumble. . . . Most reviewers were disappointed by Rodgers-Hammerstein's latest: "Pipe Dream." Hammerstein, we are certain, will absorb the blow without much damage. He is no stranger to disappointment. Before the "Oklahoma!" bonanza, Hammerstein turned out eight straight flops. He later observed: "I learned that there is no limit to the number of people who will stay away from a bad show."

IT IS NEWS, FOLKS, when an actress indulges in self-criticism. . . . Although "High Noon" was showered with Oscars, it was a disappointment for the leading lady. . . . "It was a wonderful picture," she said. "I enjoyed every minute of it, except when I was on the screen. I just wasn't in the same class with the rest. They told me I had done a good job, but I knew better. I left Hollywood as fast as I could, and I told myself I wouldn't go back until I could carry my own weight in a picture."

P.S.: Grace Kelly came back.

Book on Adoption

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gessell Institute of Child Development.

FOR ONE GOOD reason or another you may have decided that you would like to adopt a baby. Are you more or less alone in this decision? Children's Bureau figures indicate that you are not. Nearly 75,000 children in the United States alone are adopted each year.

According to figures given in one of the few, and most recent, books on this subject, "Adoption, and After" by Louise Raymond, nearly one half of these children are taken by relatives, one fourth are privately adopted, and the remaining fourth are placed in adoption homes by state licensed agencies.

For those who merely add a relative-child to their own family of children in order to give him a home, problems of adjustment are of course less acute. But for those who are adopting a child to take the place of those which cannot have, there are a great many problems to be solved—emotional as well as practical.

THESE PROBLEMS, as many of you know to your sorrow, do not involve simply how to treat such an adopted child, how to tell him that he is adopted, how to answer his questions about his natural parents, how to protect him against questions and jokes from unthinking playmates.

They involve, also, the finding of a child in the first place, and the matter of filling not only the law's requirements but also those of the supervising social agency. Many perfectly nice couples who feel themselves not only financially and practically but also emotionally ready to provide a good home are turned down, time after time, in their efforts to obtain a child.

IT IS FOR THOSE PARENTS who are going to try to obtain a child through an accredited agency that this book may be especially helpful. It describes the agency's attitude toward prospective parents, and thus may help to prepare prospective parents—especially fathers who sometimes take this rather hard—for the extent to which the social worker will probe into your emotional readiness to be good parents. She will evaluate the adequacy, or inadequacy, of your own personal adjustment to the fact that you cannot have children of your own. She will question you in ways which "to the thoughtless may seem a ruthless and unreasonable invasion of your privacy," and will make her own decision as to your fitness or non-fitness.

We have never seen this aspect of adoption discussed quite as frankly. You may as well know about it in advance, because the agency has the final say.

Your own feelings, before and after the adoption, are probably as important as your actual actions. These, too, are discussed in detail.

Some of you parents may prefer to fly it blind, particularly once the adoption is completed, and trust to luck and your own common sense. But for those of you who are looking for a book on adoption, this is as detailed and thorough a book as we know of to date.

Your Gifts Can Brighten Unhappy Lives

A Growing Plant Would Bring Christmas Joy to Crippled Widow; Others Need Clothes, Food

By Mary Kimbrough

FOR the rest of her life, she must be confined to a wheelchair, her days clouded with memories of the accident which claimed the lives of her husband and two daughters and left her crippled and lonely.

What can Christmas mean to her? She lives alone, keeps house as well as she can with her severe handicap. Only one touch of brightness comes into her life, the collection of flowers and plants which she watches and tends with affection. But last week the biggest plant died and she has no money to replace it.

For this woman, already heartbroken and with so little to live for, the simple gift of a new plant to add to her collection would bring joy on Christmas day. A contribution of $5 would make this possible.

She is listed as Case 21 among the community's 100 neediest cases, taken from the files of agencies of the Social Planning Council. Their stories are being told during the Christmas season by the Post-Dispatch, co-sponsor of the Council of its fifth annual Christmas fund. Contributions to the fund will help make life a little less harsh for this woman and for others in the community who are facing an unhappy Christmas unless someone will share with them.

CASE 22

Miss S. is a lone, young woman who cannot find employment because she is deaf and partially blind. She attends lip-reading classes but she is in need of funds for tablets and pencils. She also is in need of clothing such as sweaters and skirts. A gift of $15 would do much toward making this a happy Christmas for this woman who may ultimately lose all her sight as well as her hearing.

CASE 23

Tommy, 6 years old, blond and smiling, is happy now because at last he can go to school. He was born without legs but with the help of a sympathetic doctor and the Society for Crippled Children has now been fitted with artificial legs. But his life has been made doubly tragic by the death of his mother, so Tommy and his dad and a teen-age sister have done the best they could. Tommy and his sister both need clothes. A gift of $20 would bring joy into this household on Christmas morning.

CASE 24

Since her husband deserted her and their five youngsters, Mrs. W. has tried hard to keep the family together. But there have been debts to pay, and sometimes they honestly haven't known where their next meal was coming from. A gift of $30 wouldn't solve all Mrs. W.'s problems, of course, but it would allow her to pay a few bills and still have a little left to brighten her children's Christmas.

CASE 25

No one will be dropping by this drab, dreary old house on Christmas Eve with brightly-wrapped gifts and a hearty "Merry Christmas" wish. Mrs. T., 76, lives all alone and there are no relatives or close friends to help her. Besides missing the gifts and the Christmas, she is not even able to afford the comfort of a warm room. She hasn't enough money for coal so she must wrap up in bedraggled clothes just to keep warm. A gift of $25 would provide a warm sweater and a supply of coal to keep her a little more comfortable in the winter months ahead.

CASE 26

Mr. D. has tried to be both mother and father to his children and also care for his aged mother since his wife died recently. But despite his own steady work record, he has had a hard time on his salary as laborer, and unless someone is willing to share Christmas with him, he will have to pass up the gift of a new coat for his youngest son. The boys are 14 and 15; the girl is 12. All need new clothing, and a cash gift of $30 would help the father buy a few articles for them.

CASE 27

Just a gay scarf or a frilly blouse to dress up in would

UNLESS SOMEONE IS KIND ENOUGH TO SHARE, THEY FACE A DRAB AND CHEERLESS CHRISTMAS.

CASE 29

Mrs. R. lives alone in a sparsely-furnished, drab two-room flat. Her son and his family used to live with her and care for her. But they have moved now, leaving her alone, and without enough furniture to make any kind of a home for herself. She is very ill and when she is not confined to her bed must walk with a crutch. She does not have sufficient bedding and needs warm blankets. She would also welcome a little refrigerator so that she could have a cool drink of water in the hot months of summer. A gift of $40 would brighten the days for this woman who has been forgotten by her family.

Mrs. S. is 84; her husband is 90. They must live on old age assistance. The wife is a cardiac patient which means that her husband, even though he is frail, must care for her as well as trying to keep the little house neat. My Day

Reading All Of Dickens' Famous Tale

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. It was fun to drive up last Friday afternoon to Hyde Park and find the evergreens powdered with snow. They were so pretty.

And it was even more delightful to come into the Social Room at Bard College at 6 p.m. and find the fires burning on the hearth, with only candlelight in the room except for the one lamp by the chair in which I was going to read Dickens' "Christmas Carol" for such students and members of the Bard faculty as wished to attend.

This was the beginning of the Christmas season for me and a very nice way to begin it! It is rare to have the opportunity to read the whole of "Christmas Carol," but they gave me an hour and a half before dinner. Then I went over to dine with Mr. and Mrs. James H. Case Jr. and a few members of the faculty, and we returned to the Social Room and read again for an hour and a half.

I WAS DELIGHTED to have one of the young men come up to me at the end of the evening and say that he had never before heard "Christmas Carol" in its entirety and that the depth of its meaning had never before been so evident.

I had been some time since I had read the whole of it, and now I am very busy trying to think how best to cut it when I read it for the staff at the United Nations, for my time will be limited.

I find it difficult in a few words to create the background and atmosphere of this story and then read only certain striking parts in it.

I STARTED MY DAY on Saturday with a visit by a high-school girl from Wappingers Falls who wanted me to tell her everything about UNESCO. Of course, I could have told her a great deal, but I thought it would be better for me to get her information direct from UNESCO representatives at the U.N.

Two of the Nottingham scholars, who come every year from Nottingham, England, spent the day with us in Hyde Park Saturday. They visited the library, walked around the place with my son and the children taking photographs, and had lunch and tea with me. It was a great pleasure to see them and I am happy that they will be here until Friday and so can visit the U.N. and lunch with me again before their departure.

Martha Carr's

OPINION

Dear Martha:

I HAVE a married son and daughter; each has two children. I am very fond of my daughter-in-law and son-in-law, and we all get along with each other. I have always had my family home for Christmas for the evening meal. My son and daughter have had Christmas dinner with their respective in-laws at noon, and except for a couple of years we were all together at my daughter's for a buffet supper. My problem now is that my daughter-in-law has invited my husband and me to her home for a buffet supper this Christmas, but to date has not included my daughter and family, but she has invited her sister and brother with the family, and also her mother, which I think is the right thing to do. What I am hurt about is that if she can invite her sister and brother, she could invite her husband's only sister, especially as this sister had had them in her home several times. I would like to have your opinion on this, Martha. Do you think I ought to talk to my son about this, or just not go. Because if I go, I won't see my daughter and family. I love them all and want to be with them part of the day.

WORRIED MOTHER.

You might ask your son if he thinks his wife is planning to invite his sister. If not, I believe you would be justified in telling him that, as much as you appreciate his invitation, you want to continue your own custom of entertaining the family. Your daughter shouldn't be deprived of this, and you shouldn't lose out on the fun of seeing all your grandchildren because an in-law has decided to ignore part of her husband's family.

Dear Martha:

I AM WRITING to a boy in the Marines. Although I have never met him personally, I have grown to think a lot of him. Would it be proper for me to send him a Christmas present? We are planning to see each other when he gets home although he won't be here for Christmas.

CAROL.

Since you don't actually know him, I think it would be better to skip the gift and send him just a friendly Christmas greeting. Wait until he comes home and you have a chance to get acquainted before exchanging presents.

Dear Martha:

THE NEWLY FORMED YOUNG ADULT CLUB of the County Branch Y.W.C.A., known as the Co-ed Club, will sponsor a Christmas party and dance at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 17. The party will be at the County "Y," 115 North Meramec street, Clayton. Each boy is asked to bring a gift for another boy and each girl is asked to bring a gift for another girl. Cost should not exceed 50 cents.

A Cry for Help

By Ruth Millett

MY cookbooks have let me down. I can't find in any one I own any recipe for cooking bear meat.

As the wife of one enthusiastic hunter and the mother of another I am used to cooking whatever is brought home. "Don't shoot anything you can't eat" was the first lesson our son was taught after he was taught to handle a gun.

I confess most of what the hunters have brought home from the hill has made good eating. There were pheasants, duck, venison, wild turkey, elk, rabbits and squirrels. Through the years I've cooked them all and usually gladly.

But that bear meat has me bothered. I made the mistake of asking several friends whose husbands are hunters how they cook bear meat.

After groans and sighs of resignation all I have been able to find out from them is that no matter how it was cooked, it always tasted like shoe leather, or, let's face it, like aged bear.

THIS, THEN, is an appeal for help. If any wife of a hunter knows how to make bear meat taste like something else, will she share her secret formula?

That bear's been shot and the darn thing has to be eaten, even though a hunting companion and not a member of the family pulled the trigger.

It is taking up space in the freezer and has to be cooked.

This is a cry for help from a woman whose menfolk believe that no animal should be killed that can't be eaten but has no intention of putting a roast on the table that tastes like either old bear or an old hunting boot.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

MY HAIR is gray, dry and wispy. How can I make it look human?—Elsie.

You can do much to improve the looks of your hair by improving the health of your scalp. Apply a cosmetic oil directly on the scalp. Massage with your fingertips, working particularly at the center of the scalp. Brush your hair up and out twice a day. Shampoo every week and be sure to get all the soap out by rinsing and re-rinsing. A permanent wave will give body to your hair and you should have it cut and waved by a professional.

"I PLAN TO SPEND the winter in a warm climate. I am 55. Do you think that socks and casual shoes are suitable for me to wear with casual dresses around the neighborhood?—Mrs. L."

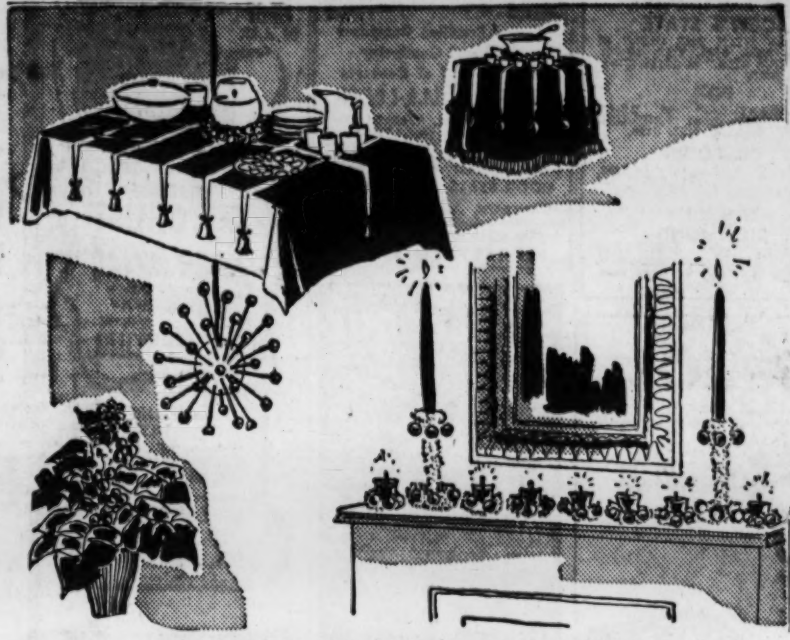

Socks may be comfortable but they are hideous on mature women. If you have just one drop of feminine vanity you won't be guilty of wearing socks. Bare legs would be preferable to socks but "after forty" "nature in the raw is seldom kind," so wear stockings!

"I AM ALWAYS so exhausted when I get home from my office that I find myself in a terrible mood when preparing dinner for my family of four. How could I pep up before dinner?—Forty-niner."

First I suggest that you make a plan for the others to do a little work. No work, no dinner! As soon as you get in just take 10 minutes to lie down with your feet higher than your head. Have a fruit juice cocktail. Change your shoes and stockings and put on a fresh housecoat. The 10 minutes will save you 30.

Designing Woman Ideas for Christmas Decorations

By Elizabeth Hillyer

SOME QUICK AND EASY SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOLIDAYS.

EVERY look around the house this week should bring Christmas smiles—the more holiday sparkle the better. Still short of ideas, to say nothing of time? Here are a few designs that turn out effectively in no time.

For the Christmas table, tie bells on the ends of ribbons and lay the ribbons across the table, like this. Alternating red and green ribbons on a white cloth are gala enough, but this might be the year when you buy a red tablecloth and use all green or gold ribbons. The red cloth really isn't such an extravagance—it can be used for a stunning table any time with white dishes and flowers; and it's just the thing for Valentine's day, Lincoln's and Washington's birthday, and the Fourth of July.

ANOTHER VERSION of the ribbon trim for the table might use ball ornaments instead of bells and a round table as well as a long one is strikingly decorated this way. Make it plenty of shiny ribbons for the punch-bowl table.

For a sparkling hanging ornament, dip lengths of heavy wire in the right adhesive, then roll them in glitter dust. Tip each wire with a small ball tree ornament and stick it into a styrofoam snowball.

The green plants around the house that take such a decorative place the rest of the year, may look out of season now, but they will become very much a part of the Christmas decorating picture if they suddenly bloom with clusters of shiny ball ornaments, and this can be accomplished with the help of wire in jingle bell time.

FOR THE MANTEL, decoration must be important, but it needn't be difficult to work out. Ordinary candlesticks will do for even the proudest of Christmas candles if they're wound from base to top with tinsel. Glue circles of the tinsel around the base with household cement, which can be removed later with nail polish remover. Wire circles of little ball ornaments around the candlesticks near the top and another around the bases. Repeat the same tinsel and ball treatment at the base of the low candles in glass cups and march them across the width of the mantel.

Get off to a good start on spring decorating. Send for Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?" and check up room faults so you'll know how to correct them. The booklet, which discusses 16 home furnishing and decorating subjects, is yours for 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope enclosed with your request to Miss Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

Ever serve sliced bananas and diced oranges with a soft custard? Flavor the custard with just a suspicion of nutmeg or mace.

The Little Woman Frustrating the Child

By Clarissa Start

COMES now a father reader who announces he wishes to take exception to our ideas on child rearing. We can't quite make out just which idea he is taking exception to; our child takes exception to a good many of them. But we feel his ideas are, to say the least, thought provoking and should be passed on to other readers.

Says this father, the big trouble with most children today is that they're under-frustrated. How in the world, he asks, can you expect an unfrustrated child to grow up into a normal, frustrated adult. He continues:

"Everybody's frustrated today. The garbage disposal gets jammed, lights go out, another car won't let you through first at the intersection, someone forgets the last line of a good joke."

"Well, the answer is to begin to frustrate children as soon as possible."

"FOR EXAMPLE, I have found it is effective to snatch the bottle or plate away just when the child starts to enjoy his meal. Cruel? Not at all. Haven't you ever been frustrated by a waiter in a restaurant stealthily removing your plate before you're finished? Why not learn early to be frustrated gracefully?"

"Don't let a child sleep peacefully through the night. Wake him up. When he's grown, he'll be frustrated by the phone ringing at 3 a.m. and someone saying, 'Sorry, wrong number.'"

This father goes on to say he has found other ways to frustrate a child.

FOR INSTANCE, the bedtime story. "No 'Little Boy Blue Go Blow' for me," he writes. "I tell my son the story of the two-toed tree toad who came from a long line of three-toed tree toads and felt very unhappy, frustrated, that is, at being the only two-toed tree toad among so many three-toed tree toads."

"Well, to shorten the story, the two-toed tree toad gets his three-toed tree toad mother to take him to the shoe store (the one near the saloon in Calyton) to get him another toe for each of his little two-toed tree toad feet, and the story ends happily. "But do you realize what happens to the child? He's completely frustrated in trying to remember, much less say, two-toed tree toad or even three-toed tree toad. The frustrated child is quiet for days, going around in a bewildered haze."

"The frustrated adult under the same circumstances would have immediately gone into the saloon next to the shoe store and the result, a bewildered haze, would have been precisely the same. See what I mean about frustration?"

WE DO INDEED, Father Reader, and to coin a fine cliché, we think you have something. Children anyway. We can't snatch food away or wake our child up as he usually beats us to both maneuvers. But we intend trying that bedtime story some night next week.

Neckline Can Be a Hexline

By Josephine Lowman

A WOMAN should take the length of her neck into consideration when buying clothes or when planning her hair style.

Of course you cannot choose the way you fix your hair entirely by the length of your neck because the shape of your face is even more important. However, there is usually a combination arrangement which will be becoming to both your neck and your face.

If you have an unusually short neck wear your hair short in the back. Do not wear high collars. Many women who have short necks have their suit and dress collars lowered in the back. If you have a short neck and wear a high collar you may find that your neck simply disappears, back view.

If you have a long neck the stunning high collars and fairly long hair will become you. The neckline can be a hexline. Round necklines are not flattering to the one with a short neck. A v shape is attractive on her. On the other hand a long neck and a round collar go well together.

Fortunately these rules coincide with the most becoming hairdo and neckline for the shape of the face. It is unusual to see a long, thin face on top of a short neck or vice versa. Little details can make such a great difference in the appearance of a woman! For instance, the cut of a dress can give her a good bustline or it can make an adequate bust look small. If she has a flat bust, shirring or fullness over the bust will make it look larger.

If you have honeycombed upper arms you can even find attractive evening gowns with short sleeves. If you are bowlegged wear seamless stockings. Remember, that the lighter shades in hosiery make the legs look larger while darker shades make the underpinnings look slimmer. Small women should not wear bulky jewelry or large hats, while tall girls can wear all three with distinction.

Frozen Foods Someone has figured out that it takes about 48 hours for the food inside a fully loaded home food freezer to thaw after the power is off. Naturally, if the freezer door is opened a lot it's going to speed up the thawing time.

Fix It Yourself By Hubbard Cobb

A FEW years ago some genius figured that you could save a lot of space in a bathroom if you designed a tub that would fit right up against the wall and he was right. Today most bathtubs in the home are of this recessed type. Now one of the minor problems involved with this installation is that unless the joint between tub and plaster wall is made waterproof, water will get to the plaster and eventually the plaster will start to fall.

The first step is to remove all the loose and water damaged plaster. After you've got rid of this, check the condition of the lath. If you have wood or plaster lath it might be best to remove this for it, too, will have been damaged by the water. It can be replaced with non-corrosive metal lath. You don't have to remove all the lath from the wall—just that portion that was in back of the water-soaked plaster. If the old lath was metal and it has rusted, better remove this and replace with a non-corrosive metal lath. The metal lath, by the way, must be fastened to the wall studs.

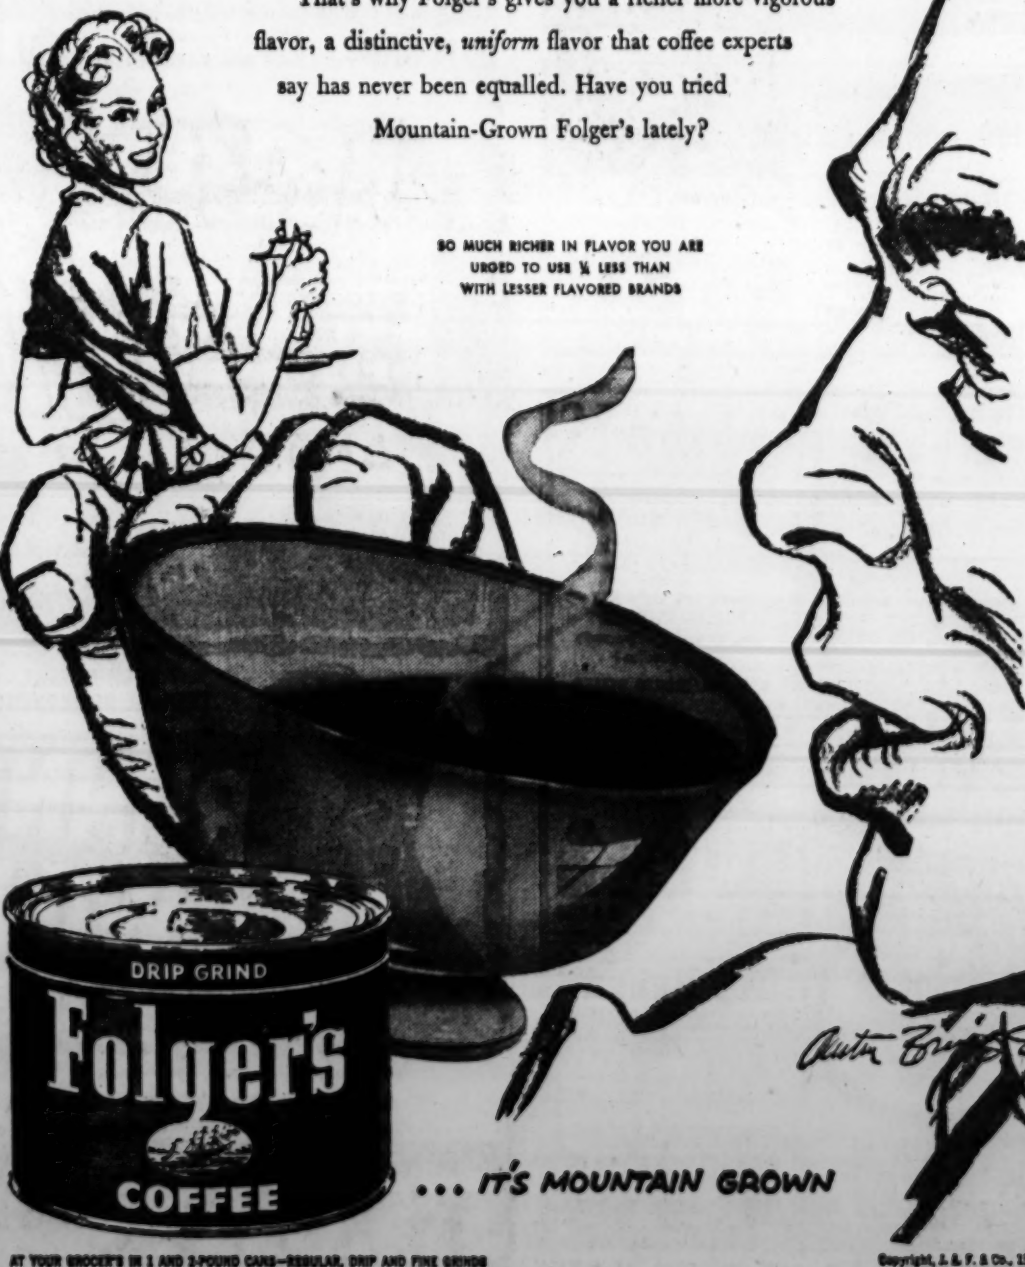

After the lath is in place, cut back the edges of the old plaster so that they will help to hold the patch in place. Wet down the edges and then apply the patching plaster. This, of course, goes on in two coats—one thick coat which should come up almost to the level of the surrounding plaster and then a thin second coat applied over this to bring the surface smooth and level.

To prevent further trouble of this sort, make the joint between the rim of the tub and the plaster wall waterproof with caulking compound or water-proof joint compound.

Folger's is the one coffee specially made to give you MORE FLAVOR PER CUP

Folger's starts with more than good coffee. They choose only Mountain-Grown coffees, coffees that nature makes richer, heartier, more flavorful. They blend and prepare them with a unique century-old Folger "touch." And they blend to a flavor, not to a formula.

That's why Folger's gives you a richer more vigorous flavor, a distinctive, uniform flavor that coffee experts say has never been equalled. Have you tried Mountain-Grown Folger's lately?

Farmer-Style Scrambled Eggs
 Ingredients: For each serving two eggs, one-fourth cup creamed cottage cheese (large-curd style), salt, pepper, one-half tablespoon butter or margarine.
 Method: Beat eggs enough to combine yolks and whites; beat in cottage cheese just until it is distributed; add salt and pepper to taste. Melt butter in a heavy iron skillet until it hisses but is not brown; use moderately low or medium heat. Add eggs; the second they set around edges, stir set part toward center. Allow to set again before stirring. Cook this way, adjusting heat if necessary or lifting skillet away from heat for a few seconds, until eggs are as dry as desired. Serve at once. Choose the size of the skillet according to the number of servings needed.

Imaginary Heart Trouble

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

THERE would be less imaginary heart trouble if people didn't know the difference between left and right.

Recently a 200-pound six footer was sure he had heart trouble. As he told his story his right hand held his left chest. "I have been having this severe pain and burning in my left side for the past few days. At times it's so bad I can't sleep at night. I'm pretty certain it must be heart trouble. The heart's on the left side. After all, what else could it be?"

Hundreds of thousands of people, like this patient, are unnecessarily filled with anxiety about their heart. Complete examination elicited no evidence of heart disease in the big fellow. A few days later the cause of his left chest discomfort was evident. Telltale vesicles of herpes zoster (shingles) now spattered his chest. What he thought was heart pain was really referred nerve pain due to inflammation of his spinal nerves.

PATIENTS with chronic gall bladder disease, often erroneously ascribe their symptoms to heart disease. They may have fullness in the upper abdomen after a large meal. Due to excessive gas and heartburn, they are certain that the chest awareness is due to heart trouble.

Many cases of imaginary heart trouble originate in the heat of the summer. For example, there is the woman, overweight, who is a saleslady at a small retail store. There is no air conditioning to keep her comfortable. She is on her feet all day.

SOME PERSONS say they are short of breath. On further questioning, we find that it is not that at all. It has nothing to do with exertion. The so-called shortness of breath is merely the inability to fill the lungs completely with air even when sitting down.

Patients say: "I just can't seem to have the pleasure and satisfaction that comes with taking a deep breath."

Palpitation and heart skips are common "left sided" discomforts. It is true, that on occasion, they are associated with heart disease.

What it all boils down to is this: diagnosis is a difficult enough job for your doctor.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

LISA'S refusal of Bob's invitation to "ride up the hill" was automatic but instead of accepting it he said, "I'm sorry, Lisa. I don't blame you for not wanting to go any place with me again."

His tone was sincere and his blue eyes so concerned that Lisa said, "You gave me a very bad time, Bob. I should have left you parked in the street."

"But you didn't," he reminded her. "So you should give me a chance to apologize." In a lower voice he added, "But not here in front of the beauty shop. Some old gossip will be sure to overhear."

According to her stepmother this was true. After all it was only a few more blocks. Bob was one of Peggy's friends and Elizabeth herself had suggested that Lisa go with Peggy.

As he helped her into his convertible, Bessie May opened a window of the beauty shop; but they did not see her; nor hear her remark. "Well, of all the nerve! After what happened last night she gets in his car and they drive up the hill together. That's what comes from living in a place like Hollywood."

Elizabeth Curtis said calmly, "People are much the same everywhere."

"Bob Milton drinks too much," Bessie said, taking the pins from her customer's hair. "As his father did before him."

"You can't blame that on Hollywood or Walnut City either," Mrs. Curtis insisted and Bessie May was too smart to continue the argument. Elizabeth was easy to please and generous. But she was also stubborn, Bessie May reflected. "Stubborn as a Missouri mule."

"Where?" Diane demanded as if it mattered.

"I don't remember the name. Some little restaurant on Main street. I sat at the counter but the food was good."

Diane sighed. "You wouldn't know, of course, but that place has a bad reputation. They say there is a poker game every Saturday night. Why didn't you ask me if you wanted to eat your breakfast downtown?"

"I didn't think it mattered," the girl answered truthfully. "I won't go there again."

"I already know about last night," Diane continued. "It's all over town that you picked up Bob up in Plainsville and you were drinking together. Then when he had passed out, you stopped at Jim Weston's filling station and asked him to bring you home."

"Who told you that?" Lisa asked, determined not to lose her temper.

"It so happens that my cleaning woman is Jim's mother," Diane replied.

Lisa had intended to explain the situation to her stepmother but suddenly changed her mind. She would tell her father but Diane was in no condition to discuss it. Her face was flushed, her pale blue eyes distended and no matter what Lisa said she would not believe it.

"Life was complicated enough without this," Diane declared. "I hate this town and everyone in it. I hoped it might be different after the baby was born but if you pull things like this I'll never be able to live it down."

"I shouldn't have come here," Lisa said.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

DURING the time of the first Queen Elizabeth there was a doctor named William Gilbert. This man had the duty of treating the queen when she fell ill but (more important) he was a clever scientist.

Dr. Gilbert was the author of several books. One of these, on magnetism, was published three and a half centuries ago. An idea which Gilbert held in advance of his time suggested the earth as a mighty magnetic ball.

Gilbert also ventured into the field of electricity. He made several tests in which he developed static electricity in objects by rubbing them with a woolen cloth.

Q. Who carried forward the work of Gilbert?

A. Otto von Guericke was the next important figure. He was only a year old when Gilbert died. After studying in German and Dutch colleges, he held government offices in Brandenburg and elsewhere. During his free time he pursued the work of science. He was successful in inventing an air pump.

Guericke became interested in electricity. One of his tests was made with a sulphur globe. He turned the globe with one hand, and rubbed it with the other hand. In that way he made the sulphur globe store up static electricity.

Q. Who were some of the other pioneers in the study of electricity?

A. Stephen Grey of England was one of them. He made a test which proved that electricity could pass through a human body. A boy was suspended from a ceiling by silk cords. A glass tube (well rubbed to give it static electricity) was touched to one of the boy's feet. A moment later another man touched one of the boy's hands, and felt a small electric shock.

Cold Front Approaching City

Today's warmer weather will be ushered out tonight by a cold front which may bring rain and snow with it, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren said.

The cold, expected to reach a low near freezing early tomorrow, will become more severe Thursday, dropping to near 15 or 20, and then falling still more by Friday morning, Wahlgren reported.

Most of the country, even the South, was blanketed in cold weather this morning. Missouri minimums ranged from 19 at Malden to 32 at Kansas City. Over the nation low temperatures varied from 4 below zero at Elkins, W.Va., to 67 at Key West, Fla.

Maximum reading yesterday for the state ranged from 35 at Kirksville to 41 at Joplin.

Nation-wide highs went from 18 at Bemidji, Minn. to 78 at Los Angeles.

The high temperature here for this date was 72 in 1948; the low was 1 in 1903. Yesterday's low was 38 with a low this morning of 23. There was no rain or snow recorded in this area during the 24-hour period ended at 7:30 a.m. today.
